ROOSEVELT SAYS YOUTH MUST GET GOVERNMENT AID

Defends Aim in Talk to Democrats.

The text of President Roosevelt's speech will be found on page 6.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—In a radio address tonight President Roosevelt delivered a defense of the New Deal which he portrayed as an intervention by government to protect and assist common men in the highly complex scheme of modern existence.

Not socialism but regulated individualism he declared to be the objectives of the New Dealers.

The radio speech was nominally addressed to the Young Democrats assembled in convention at Milwaukee, but in reality it was directed, by a nation-wide radio network, to the entire country at a moment when the first session of the seventy-fourth congress was coming to a close with the finishing touches to a vast structure of legislation for the creation of the new order the President visualizes.

Seen as Campaign Gun.

The utterance has been looked forward to as the opening gun of the President's canvass for reëlection upon which he soon is to embark in a transcontinental tour to renew contacts with the voters. In prefacing his remarks to the Young Democrats he disavowed any political motive, but in seeking to justify the New Deal he struck the keynote of his appeal to the electorate for another four years in the White House.

In doing so he ignored Mr. Hoover's challenge to state in what manner he would change the constitution to implement the New Deal. He thus preserved intact the silence he has not broken since the country, including his own party, reacted with patent frigidity to his "horse and buggy" comment on the Supreme court decision that destroyed the NRA, in which he suggested changing the form of government by amendment of the constitution or otherwise.

Avoids Unpopular Proposal.

The inference drawn from his continued silence is that the President is deliberately avoiding what proved to be an unpopular proposal and biding his time until the issue shall be revived by a further invalidation of New Deal legislation by the Supreme court.

Avoiding all reference to the monumental expenditures of his administration, the unbalanced budget, the danger of inflation and national bankruptcy, Mr. Roosevelt dwelt on the benefits of the New Deal to those whom he will seek to rally to support of a change in the form of government if the forthcoming battle with the Supreme court shall go against him.

With the passing of the old frontier to which the victims of other depressions were wont to escape, we have discovered, Mr. Roosevelt said, that individualism cannot cope with an economic crisis without the help of the government. It is such help that the New Deal provides.

Life is not only more complex today, the President holds, but its ideals are different. The rising generation is more interested in a "sufficiency of life" than in a "plethora of riches."

Cites "Big Business."

The development of great, intricately financed corporations, each employing men by the tens of thousands, has created the necessity, Mr. Roosevelt went on, for the New Deal measures protective of collective bargaining by wage earners and of the interests of the myriad of stockholders. Likewise the complexity of modern credit and banking requires new protections for depositors.

Recalling the opposition to labor laws in his youth the President said that the same elements are now "crying aloud about the socialism involved in the social security legislation, in bank deposit insurance, in farm credit, in the saving of homes, in the protection of investors and the regulation of public utilities."

Then to combat the charge that the New Deal is socialistic Mr. Roosevelt asserted that "serious as have been the errors of unrestrained individualism, I do not believe in abandoning the system of individual enterprise."

2 HOUSES MEET TOMORROW FOR FINAL BATTLE

Cotton, Wheat Loans Balk Adjournment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25 [Sunday].—[Special.]—The first session of the 74th congress, scheduled to adjourn sine die at midnight, was prolonged indefinitly by one of the strangest parliamentary deadlocks in the history of the republic.

With the senate in a near riot, the house of representatives stood its ground for hours against the celebrated dignity of that "greatest deliberative body on earth," and threatened for a time to kill the session automatically by refusing to return a concurrent resolution of adjournment effective at midnight.

Recess Until Monday.

The house finally relented, after the senate formally requested the return of the resolution, and the senate promptly reconsidered and rejected it. The senate then recessed until noon Monday, as did the house, for it could not adjourn sine die without concurrent action of the senate.

Center of the controversy was the $93,000,000 third deficiency appropriation bill, carrying $76,000,000 for the launching of President Roosevelt's greatly ballyhooed social security program.

To this bill the senate attached riders providing mandatory cotton loans of 12 cents and wheat loans of 90 cents, in rebellious defiance of President Roosevelt. The house rebelled against these amendments, refused even to appoint conferees, the first time in history when either branch had refused such a request from the other.

"Must" Bills Passed.

Both houses had completed action on all the other "must" bills, and the house stood its ground waiting for the session to end by expiration of the adjournment resolution at midnight, regardless of the fate of the deficiency bill and social security.

Just before midnight, however, the senate adopted a motion of Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] formally calling upon the house to return the resolution of adjournment and the latter body, on a roll call vote of 202 to 95, did so. It was necessary for the house to turn back its clock lest the session die by limitation before finishing the roll call.

Earlier in the evening, when Vice President Garner and senate leaders informally suggested reconsidering the adjournment resolution, the house leaders replied:

"Where are the papers? We passed the resolution and send it to you. You passed it and sent it back. What have you got to reconsider?"

Two Courses Open.

Although the possibility of killing automatically the cotton and wheat loans, the whole deficiency bill, social security and all, and the session as well, was averted, the legislative deadlock remained and there was still a question as to whether the house would appoint conferees. They have the alternatives of sending the bill back to committee, thus killing it, or concurring with the senate amendments, which they are not disposed to do.

The other possible way out of the impasse is for the senate to reconsider the amendments, which it adopted under suspension of the rules requiring a two-thirds vote. It appeared that President Roosevelt, who does not want the cotton and wheat loans—estimated to cost the government more than half a billion a year—but does want his social security money, would have to exert more pressure over the week-end than he brought to bear on the holding company "death sentence."

Faces Rosy; Walk Unsteadily.

Adoption of the Byrnes resolution in the senate followed one of the most extraordinary spectacles ever witnessed in that chamber on a closing night. Senators' faces were rosy, they walked unsteadily, and they spoke in raucous voices with amazing frankness.

Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] engaged in bitter exchanges with Senator John H. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] and defied the Vice President or any one else to silence him.

Then Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.] clenched his fists and made for Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], who had accused him of

HIS RECORD

DRY REPEAL LEADING IN TEXAS VOTE; OLD AGE PENSIONS WIN

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 24.—[U. P.]—Piling up a commanding lead, repeal of prohibition in today's special election appeared tonight to be winning in Texas, ending the 16 year drouth in the home state of Senator Morris Sheppard, "father of prohibition."

The Texas election bureau's 11:30 p. m. tabulation of returns, accounting for 230 out of the state's 254 counties with 40 complete, showed 226,453 for repeal and 188,619 against. The tabulation was believed to have accounted for half of the total vote cast.

Adoption of a constitutional amendment for payment of old age pensions was sweeping in by a landslide vote, the 11 p. m. count showing 276,528 votes for the amendment and 70,126 against. The proposal calls for payment of pensions to persons over 65 years old, not habitual drunkards and not inmates of state institutions.

Congressmen Come Up and See Mr. West

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHARLES WEST.

In the private office of Speaker Joseph W. Byrns last night and today sat former Representative Charles West, the lanky Ohioan named some months ago by President Roosevelt as his personal lobbyist and rewarded recently for his valiant efforts with the title of undersecretary of the interior.

Stand in Line.

Congressmen stood in line outside the office, waiting to interview West and seek his aid in getting action upon bills which would otherwise be lost in the adjournment rush.

He also summoned various Democratic leaders and transmitted to them the President's desires as to legislation. The Guffey coal socialization bill, the "compromise" on the utility control bill, and other measures on the administration's "must" list were all credited to West's warnings to the leaders that White House vengeance would be visited upon them if they did not take action on those bills.

Previously West had maintained a pretense that he was merely renewing old acquaintances on his daily trips to the house. But last night he came out openly as the President's lobbyist, usurped the speaker's office, and the statesmen meekly accepted his orders.

Phone Connects President.

A telephone connected President Roosevelt, seated in the calm cool of the White House, with the hurly-burly of the closing hours of congress where Democratic leaders fought, cajoled and argued in an effort to complete the program he had laid down for action.

From time to time throughout the early evening telephone messages from the capitol were carried to the President, while he took his customary swim in the White House pool before dinner and as he dressed for dinner. He was host to a number of White House employés and Secretary Morgenthau.

NEW RIP VAN WINKLE GAZES IN WONDER AT WOMEN AND AUTOS

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 24.—(AP)—An Alaskan Rip Van Winkle gazed in wonder at women here today, tried to figure out which end of an automobile was the front and tasted his first fresh fruit in 35 years.

"I never before saw women that looked like these women," said A. H. Creecy, Spanish-American war veteran who has been in the Kuskowim river gold country since 1900 when he was 25.

The operator of an open-cut mine, he flew here by airplane from Wiseman for medical treatment.

"I think I'll go down to the hotel," he said, "and sit at the window and eat some fruit and watch feminine beauty and the 'porcupines' his own term for motor cars] go by."

CALIFORNIA TO DENY ADMISSION TO DESTITUTE

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Destitute families seeking admission to California will be turned back at the border, federal transient service officers said today. Director H. A. R. Carleton said transients would be denied more than temporary aid and that every destitute family entering the state would be returned home.

Usual Prayer Omitted; House Stands Anyway

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[U. P.]—The house dispensed with the usual prayer today for more speedy consideration of business. But members are so much in the habit of rising at the rap of Speaker Joseph Byrns' gavel for the prayer that they got up anyway. "Excuse me, Mr. Speaker," said House Minority Leader Bertrand Snell, "I've got so used to the prayer that I just naturally stood up."

Hay Fever, Artificial Leg Cost Part of Trousers

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 24.—[U.P.]—A careless smoker threw a lighted cigaret into Harry Sheehan's trousers cuff. Sheehan, a railway station clerk, couldn't smell the smoke because he suffers from hay fever. He couldn't feel the heat because he has an artificial leg. The result: Half the leg of his trousers was burned off before he was aware of anything wrong.

Henri Barbusse, Author of Famed War Novel, Stricken

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Henri Barbusse, noted French writer who won international fame with his war novel "Le Feu" in 1916, was ill with pneumonia here today. He was taken to the Kremlin hospital.

7 Die, 13 Hurt, Day's Toll of Auto Crashes

Seven persons were killed, and 13 others were injured in three automobile wrecks in the Chicago area yesterday. Three were killed in a collision last night near Des Plaines; two met death in the collision of a car and a CCC camp truck near Hinsdale shortly before noon; and two were killed early in the morning when their car crashed into the rear of a freight train near South Holland.

Those killed in the evening collision were Hjalmar Wedo, 46 years old, 1630 Humboldt boulevard, a tool maker, driver of one of the machines; Anthony Grincewicz, 45, of 2224 North Leavitt street, a passenger in his car, and Mrs. Emma Christianson, 73, of Miami, Fla. The accident occurred during the heavy evening trafic at Mannheim and Higgins roads, three miles south of Des Plaines.

Cars Thrown Into Lot.

Morton Grove county highway and state highway policemen were informed that Wedo, headed west in Higgins road, failed to heed a stop sign. His automobile crashed into that of Spencer Le Roy, 45 years old, 715 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, who was driving north in Mannheim road. He is a foster son of Mrs. Christianson, whom he had not seen for ten years.

The crash sent Wedo's car onto a filling station lot at the northwest corner where it knocked down a gasoline pump. Though neither machine turned over, several of the occupants of both cars were hurled out. Two were killed outright and ten were injured, one of whom, Mrs. Christianson, died later in a hospital. Four of those hurt were children.

Woman in Critical Condition.

All the injured were taken to the Northwestern hospital in Des Plaines. Most of them were found to have incurred minor hurts, except Mrs. Christianson and Mrs. Margaret Grincewicz, 45 years old, wife of Grincewicz, who is believed to have incurred a fractured skull and internal injuries. She was in a critical condition last night.

Highway police said they would hold Le Roy for the inquest tomorrow. His injuries were slight.

In the accident near Hinsdale, Clyde C. Netzley, 34 years old, Naperville automobile dealer, and cousin, Miss Sarah Stuff, 32 years old, of Mercersburg, Pa., were killed. Netzley's wife, Eva, Miss Stuff's brother, William, also of Mercersburg; and Miss Lois Greenwald, 24 years old, of Chambersburg, Pa., incurred cuts and bruises.

Witnesses Describe Accident.

Witnesses told police that Netzley, driving north in Highway 54, attempted to pass the truck at 31st street. At the same moment, they said, the truck started a left turn, but they did not observe any signal by the driver, Ingolf John Madson, 22 years old, 1858 Humboldt boulevard, who is attached to a CCC camp near Elmhurst.

Unable to pull to the left because of an approaching machine, Netzley was forced to swerve into the turning truck. The crash spun his car into a ditch where it turned over five times, hurling the occupants through the roof.

Shatterproof glass and the steel body of the car, police believe, saved the three others in the car from death. Madson was held for $5,000 bail last night in the Du Page county jail at Wheaton for a hearing Sept. 3 on manslaughter charges.

Crash Into Caboose.

In the early morning accident, Walford Johnson, 25 years old, 11213 South Park avenue, and Francis Clements, 22 years old, a clerk in the Hotel Florence, 11111 Forrestville avenue, were killed when the machine in which they were riding crashed into the caboose of a Grand Trunk freight train at the Thornton Junction.

According to police, Fred Anderson, 23 years old, 11357 Stephenson avenue, apparently the driver of the car, was speeding at 50 miles an hour before the accident.

These five Cook county deaths and one other mentioned on page 10, brought the county's automobile toll for 1935 to 596 yesterday. At 4 p. m. 469 had been killed within the Chicago city limits since Jan. 1 and 10,624 had been injured.

Massachusetts Town's Cats Go on Gold (Fish) Standard

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Heavy rains of the last few days burst the dam of a private pond on the estate of Charles Cobb Walker, Boston broker. When the waters receded, many thousands of goldfish were left stranded on the bed of the drained pond and over several acres which had been flooded. Today many of the feline inhabitants of the town were having a field day.

BY WILL BARBER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Aug. 24.—That fateful day when Italian airplanes will zoom over the mountains and bomb the mud huts of Addis Ababa seemed very close today and a tremor of excitement ran through this cow town capital of 70,000 population.

What made the day seem near was the fact that Emperor Haile Selassie issued instructions to the populace on what to do when Addis Ababa is bombed. The people were ordered to leave their homes and get into the open, hiding under a tree or near a bush, or, if such shelter is not available, to flee to the open fields, such as the imperial race course or the plains outside the town, spread out, and remain calm.

"Follow the flight of the carriages of the air [the Ethiopian word for airplane] to see where the enemy is dropping his bombs and act accordingly," the principal order read.

Cannon to Sound Warning.

Police will fire three cannon shots, factories will sound sirens and church bells will be rung the moment an airplane is sighted. Seven cannon shots will announce that the attack is over and the people can return to their little round mud huts—if any are left after a rain of incendiary bombs. Police were ordered to guard all houses to prevent looting when the occupants flee.

The emperor's orders were supplemented by verbal instructions issued by the mayor. He advised every one who could to return to homes in distant towns and villages or on farms until the war is over. It is expected that many will follow these instructions and return to the interior when the rains lessen.

Another fact revealing the general anxiety was the issuance today by the British consulate of 35 visas to British Indians for Bombay. There is a saying: "When the Hindus go, trouble is near."

It looks as if the end of the rains instead of merely bringing the customary yellow blooms to carpet the plains and woods and herald the return of the Ethiopian spring, will bring war as well this year.

Begin Digging Trenches.

Foreign military advisers, who went to the border by air, are directing the construction. This manner of warfare previously was unknown to the fierce Ethiopian warrior, who relied on barricades of loosely piled stones.

Fired by a wave of patriotism, chiefs of various tribes are creating a national war fund. They are donating their gold and silver ornaments and precious stones which for generations have adorned saddles, shields, and trappings of their horses and mules. Many animals have harnesses covered with hundreds of silver dollars.

BRITAIN TO CIRCLE SUEZ

VALETTA, Island of Malta, Aug. 24.—(AP)—British plans to throw a tight ring of warships around the Suez canal, vital question mark in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, were announced officially today.

The crack vessels of the Mediterranean fleet will leave Malta on Aug. 29 for points in and around the Suez territory.

At the same time the government ordered construction of public air raid shelters throughout this island. Leaflets were distributed instructing the

[A similar precautionary campaign was launched in England some weeks ago.]

Where Ships Will be Held.

The biggest concentration of the fleet will be at Alexandria, Egypt. The ships Revenge and Valiant, the first and third cruiser squadrons, the aircraft carrier Glorious and other warships will ride at anchor there.

Other units will go to Suez, Port Said and Ismailia, the Red sea and Mediterranean entrances to the canal, and a point midway in the canal, respectively.

Other vessels will be stationed at Haifa and Acre, Palestine, and at Famagusta, Larnaka, and Limassol, in Cyprus, about 250 miles from the canal.

The first destroyer squadron and the first submarine flotilla will remain at Malta.

Reports were current that a brigade of British troops also would be posted at Suez, which hitherto has been unoccupied. A dispatch from Cairo reporting the recall from leave of Spinks Pasha, inspector general of the Egyptian army, was regarded as significant.

Admiralty Issues a Denial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The British admiralty today issued an official denial of reports that the Mediterranean fleet has been strengthened because of the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

It was pointed out in official circles that "these rumors are inevitable in times such as these" and probably have their foundation in routine movements of ships which normally would attract no attention.

It was pointed out that fleet exercises are about to begin, as they usually do at this time of the year.

WAR FEVER GRIPS LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 25.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—The British press was filled with ominous talk of war today.

The Sunday Observer published an article by J. L. Garvin demanding that parliament be summoned to approve a wholesale strengthening of the navy and air force through a special loan.

"A new hour has struck in our history," Garvin wrote. "With our whole mind and resolution we must create a strength which will either maintain our peace on equal terms or will turn the scales as of old against any assailant whatever who may make our peace impossible."

Calling the route via Gibraltar, Malta, Egypt, and Aden the lifeline of the empire, Garvin said:

"We cannot at present—although it is miserable that it should have to be said—hold the Mediterranean route against a hostile Italy."

Hurl Defiance at Mussolini.

The Sunday Times asserted, "War of some sort between Italy and Ethiopia is now certain, and it may begin with September, even before the league has finished its next sitting."

The article, written by "Scrutator," observed:

"The prospect is one to fill men of reason and humanity all over the world with disgust, but not Englishmen with alarm, still less to deflect any British government from the even tenor of its duty. Italy is a country with which we have an old and dear tradition of friendship and Mussolini is its Cæsar.

"But neither Cæsars nor kaisers, real or imitation, have been wont to put our people out of heart; nor would our friendship be worth much to Italy if it feared to dissuade her from what we are convinced will be to her hurt.

"We have done our best to dissuade and seemingly have failed. What is to follow will not be our fault."

Conciliators End Hearings.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission, which has been meeting here to take the testimony of Italian witnesses to the Ualual border dispute of last December, completed its collection of evidence today. After a final session tomorrow to discuss the testimony, the commission will go to Paris to draft its decision.

Deny Permit for Parade of Ethiopian Sympathizers

Police Commissioner James P. Allman yesterday declined to issue a permit to the Joint Conference for the Defense of Ethiopia for a parade on certain south side streets on Aug. 31. The purpose of the parade, according to Dr. Arthur G. Falls, secretary of the conference, which has headquarters at 184 West Washington street, is to protest Italian aggression. "An opinion of Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes which points out that the purpose of the march might cause disorder and thus endanger Chicago citizens," is the reason, Commissioner Allman said.

KING AND IL DUCE GO 'TO WAR'; LEAD RIVAL ARMIES

Big Maneuvers Under Way on Austrian Border.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, BOLZANO, Italy, Aug. 24.—(AP)—In the darkness of night 150,000 men moved through forest covered mountains near the Austrian frontier tonight to engage in a gigantic mock battle opening at dawn.

Their encounter was to be the signal for 350,000 others of Fascist Italy's man power to launch similar trial warfare in other parts of the country. It will be one of the largest military maneuvers ever held in the world.

A curious touch was given the maneuvers by the announcement that Premier Mussolini would make his headquarters at Bolzano and King Victor Emmanuel at Trento. Bolzano and Trento are the capitals of the opposing "red" and "blue" armies. Thus Mussolini and the king became virtually the commanders-in-chief of the opposing troops.

Try Out Secret Weapons.

New and secret weapons of a high destructive power will be tried out next Friday during the final phase of the maneuvers, a general said tonight.

Cannon and machine guns of a type hitherto unused will fire over the heads of charging troops, he disclosed. The idea is to rid soldiers of the panic into which troops sometimes fall when they believe their own artillery is firing into them.

The shots will rise from behind the troops and will fall some distance ahead of a point at which the soldiers' advance will be stopped.

"War correspondents" were taken over the area today. Forests which seemed innocent from a distance revealed tens of thousands of men under cover.

March Through Night.

Few soldiers were on the road. Most of the marching into position was done last night. Telephone wires enabling officers of the opposing armies and judges of the maneuvers to keep in touch with developments are strung everywhere. The vast extent of the maneuvers is indicated by an announcement that there is about 1,900 miles of such wiring.

The maneuvers are to reherse for what may be an African war; to show Germany that Italy is still ready to come to the aid of Austria if need be; and to try out the Italian "celerity divisions," or mobile units by which Italy hopes to replace trench warfare.

Probably the most interested spectators at the maneuvers are the German correspondents, who are well represented. Some saw service in the German and Austrian armies in the world war which occupied territory now devoted to the maneuvers.

Military attachés of various foreign nations are on hand to observe the maneuvers. The United States is represented by Col. J. C. Pillow, military attaché of the American embassy at Rome.

Duce's Sons Sail for Africa.

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Thousands of villagers flocked into Naples to cheer the embarkation for East Africa today of nearly 6,000 Black Shirts, including two sons of Premier Mussolini and a son-in-law.

Wild enthusiasm marked the departure of the steamships Saturnia and Atlante. The occasion was broadcast throughout the nation.

Mussolini's sons, Vittorio and Bruno, and his son-in-law, Count Galleazzo Ciano, minister of propaganda, sailed with aerial bombardment squadrons. All three had volunteered for active service.

Il Duce himself was not present to bid them farewell, but his daughter, Edda, saw her husband, Count Ciano, and her brothers off. Other high Fascist officials were here to wave farewell.

Crowd Cheers Trio.

The big embarkation was ordered as a part of a gigantic effort by Italy to finish sending the last contingents of about 250,000 men to East Africa colonies before the end of the month.

Mussolini's sons and Count Ciano, all three in uniform, were the special centers of interest of the gigantic water front crowd, which shouted "Duce, Duce," whenever they were glimpsed. Ciano is a captain and the two boys are lieutenants.

The Atlante got away first, bearing 1,300 men and officers. Hardly had its departure died down when the Saturnia, well known to the Atlantic trade and with its decks swarming with 4,700 soldiers, signaled its departure by a blast of the siren.

The noise of cheering men, shrieking women and chanting Black Shirts mingled with the whistled uproar of all the ships in the harbor as the big boat slowly drew from the slip.

This tremendous ovation was reflected in virtually every village and city of Italy, as it was transmitted by radio. In many cities large crowds gathered to hear the broadcast and held enthusiastic demonstrations.

ETHIOPIANS WARNED OF AIR ATTACKS; BRITAIN TO GUARD SUEZ CANAL

New York, Aug. 24.—[U.P.]—The Italian liner Roma sailed today with a cargo that at least two observers swear included airplanes and other war materials. Italian line officials deny it, however.

One boss longshoreman said "there's plenty of war goods aboard her." A reporter said he saw more than a dozen crates marked "Douglas Aircraft" and "Curtiss" put aboard.

A reliable source also revealed that Italy has placed an order in this country for 250,000 barrels of highest test airplane gasoline available, paying for the purchase in gold.

Advices from Cincinnati, O., said authoritative sources there revealed the Fiat Automobile company of Italy had ordered 28 lathes from the R. K. Leblond Machine Tool company. The lathes, varying from $30,000 to $50,000 each, are used for boring in the manufacture of munitions.

Arrows indicate where units of the British fleet will be stationed in and around the Suez canal, key point in the expected war between Italy and Ethiopia. It is also reported that British troops will be stationed at the canal, hitherto unguarded.

REPORT ALBANIA HAS EXECUTED 120 FOR REVOLT

VIENNA, Aug. 24.—(AP)—An official communique issued at Tirana today announced 11 gendarmes accused of participation in the Aug. 15 revolt had been executed, but dispatches from points outside Albania said wholesale executions, involving more than 120 rebels, had taken place.

Hundreds of other persons, these dispatches said, have been herded into concentration camps, their number including 80 prominent citizens of Scutari as well as four Mohammedan priests and numerous army officers.

The revolt Aug. 15 followed upon the assassination of Brig. Gen. Leon Gagliardi near the capital. The rebels were dispersed after they had seized the town of Fieri.

ITALIAN SHOT THROUGH CHEST WHILE TRYING TO ESCAPE TO FRANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, Aug. 24.—Augusto Richi, a young Italian, was critically wounded today when he was shot through the chest as he attempted to escape across the border, according to information from Ventimiglia, a frontier post.

A rifleman ordered Richi to halt but he continued to head toward France, to which he was bringing, it is said, a sum of 80,000 lire for a wealthy Italian. [The lira is currently worth 8.19 cents.] This is the most serious incident so far in the smuggling of money out of Italy, Italians with capital fearing a big drop in the national currency.

Italian carabineers on frontier duty today also arrested four young Italians who were attempting to cross the border to avoid military service in Ethiopia. It is reported they will be treated as deserters.

ITALY EVACUATES AEGEAN ISLE FOR HOSPITAL BASE

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A Reuters [British] news agency dispatch said today inhabitants of Peserimos, an island of the Dodecanese group, had been evacuated by Italian authorities.

The evacuation, the report said, was effected preparatory to converting the island into a military hospital base. The inhabitants were sent to a nearby island.

The Greek press demanded last week that the government protest against Italian military activities on the Dodecanese islands. The press said that not only were the Italians using the islands as hospital, troop and supply bases for their Ethiopian expedition, but that Dodecanesian political refugees reported they were attempting to conscript inhabitants and commandeering Greek homes and ships.

PARIS IS SHOCKED AS U. S. YOUTHS STROLL IN SHORTS

Police prevented a fight today when Parisians hooted a group of American youths and a girl wearing shorts and sleeveless shirts down fashionable Champs Elysées. Police made no objections to the girl's scanty bathing suit and her posing as "Miss Venus of 1935," nor did they complain of the youths' abbreviated attire.

It was a newspaper that protested. In an editorial headed, "A Little Decency, Please," the paper advised tourists not to "mistake boulevards for bathing beaches."

3 ITALIAN ARMY OFFICERS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

LESSANDRIA, Italy, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Italian aviators Maj. Sebastiano Bedendo and Lieuts. Tessore and Nicastro were killed today when their passenger plane, en route to the "Littorio" air derby at Rome, crashed near the village of Eglietto.

Maj. Bedendo, senior officer in the plane, was well known in aviation circles throughout the world, having captured a number of distance records.

He was flying to Rome with Tessore and Nicastro, hoping to reach there in time to engage in the air derby tomorrow in which planes from all over Europe are entered.

Italian Ship Line Offices Stoned by Pro-Ethiopians

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A stone wrapped in a placard bearing the words "leave Ethiopians alone—hands off Ethiopia" was thrown through a plate glass window of the Italian Steamship Lines, Ltd., office here last night. Police had no clew as to the identity of the stone tosser.

KING'S MENAGERIE OF PET LIONS IS INCREASED TO 55

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The number of lions in the personal possession of Emperor Haile Selassie, "the conquering lion of Judah," was increased today to 55. His favorite lioness, Ambo, gave birth to four husky cubs.

Informed of the event, the emperor went into the lion cages and patted Ambo's nose and stroked her mane.

Gabre Maryam, a warrior of the fierce Shoan tribe, who has been the emperor's lion master for 19 years, was bitten by Ambo when removing the cubs to another cage. He only shrugged his shoulders and proudly displayed a lacerated hand and marks on his foot and shoulder made by other vicious lions during his dangerous career.

HERE IT IS; DON'T CALL WAR WAR; IT WON'T BE WAR

PARIS, Aug. 24.—Some French officials suggested today that "a new word for war" might settle the Ethiopian problem.

If Premier Mussolini waged "war" against Ethiopia, they said, it would automatically require action by the league of nations. But if the "war" can be called a "punitive expedition" or a "police measure," the league might tolerate it, even if it did not approve.

"What is war?" asked one official. "Japan went into Manchuria and it was not called war. Why cannot the word war be ignored in Italy's case?"

ITALY MENACES FRENCH RAILWAY LINE IN ETHIOPIA

Complications Foreseen in Mussolini's Drive.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 24.—While Italy is preparing to launch its offensive against Ethiopia, the first objective of which is believed to be to gain possession of the only railroad in Emperor Haile Selassie's realm—the line from Djibouti, French Somaliland, to Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital—it is recalled here that this railway is the work of French engineers and is largely controled by French interests.

Starting from the French port of Djibouti, situated between the Italian colonies of Eritrea to the north and Italian Somaliland to the south, the railroad is exposed to the converging attacks of the Italian forces from both quarters. If the Italians succeed in cutting it they will isolate the Ethiopian capital from its main source of supplies.

Plans to build the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad date back to 1897, but they were not realized until ten years later. Work was begun on the line in October, 1907, following conclusion of the tri-partite accord of 1906 between Great Britain, France and Italy, establishing the zones of influence of these three powers.

The construction of the railway presented great difficulties, owing to the difference of altitude between the low lying Somali coastland and the mountainous Ethiopian plateau. The capital of Ethiopia is situated more than 6,000 feet above sea level, and is, furthermore, separated from the coast by deep valleys, rugged crags and rough passes. Many lives were lost in building the line, workmen dying in large numbers of epidemics in the unhealthy lowlands.

Interest Guaranteed by France.

Since 1908 the "Franco-Ethiopian Railroad company," as it is officially termed, has been a French concern, the successor of the original "Imperial Ethiopian Railroad company." Founded modestly with a capital of only 1,000,000 francs [at that time $200,000] the company has since increased its capital to 17,300,000 francs [more than $1,000,000 today] and issued two series of bonds.

The interest on these bonds is guaranteed at 3½ per cent by the French government, which has also assumed responsibility for funding of the debt.

GAMING LID'S ON, BUT THE DEV-LIN RUNS WIDE OPEN

Business Flourishing at Tessville Resort.

Despite assurances by all police agencies that the ban on gambling is being enforced throughout Cook county, the Dev-Lin, a large bungalow on Lincoln avenue near Devon avenue, just north of the city limits in Tessville, was running "wide open" yesterday. More than 600 people were jammed into its large gaming room and hundreds of automobiles were parked outside.

The Dev-Lin formerly was known as "The Hide Away." Under both names the resort has borne a charmed life during recent gambling raids. It was closed on May 19 with the statement by Lieut. Lester Laird, in charge of the county highway police north and northwest of Chicago, that it would never open again. But it did reopen—on June 16—and has been doing a flourishing business since.

Runs Day and Night.

The highway police have reported that there are no gambling violations in their territory. Strangely enough, they don't seem to be able to get to the Dev-Lin while the gambling is in progress. The resort is operating day and night.

Trafic into the resort was congested yesterday to the extent that a visitor saw several guards, not in uniform, directing the flow of automobiles into the Dev-Lin's parking lot. Guides facilitated parking for motorists.

Customers line up on a screened front porch at the bungalow. They are observed by a guard through a peephole in the entrance door.

"All right now, boys, two or three at a time," a guard says, opening the door. "Ladies first."

Check "Hardware" at Door.

The few men who are let in each time the door opens are then "frisked" by another guard. The guard prods the patron under the armpits, along the side and clear down the legs to detect any weapons. In response to a visitor's question the guard explains that if any customer is carrying "hardware," he has to check the weapon at the door and can get it back when he departs.

The visitor, having passed inspection, is allowed to enter. He finds himself in a small room where a bar and lunch counter are operating.

In the large gaming room adjoining the big crowd of patrons milled about yesterday. At least half of them were women.

There were all manners of games of chance. Roulette wheels and dice tables received a heavy play. At other tables poker and blackjack games were in progress.

Rush to Bet on Races.

To the rear of the big room the horse race bettors were gathered. Here the crush was so heavy that it was almost imposible to get through to the race charts hanging on the wall or to approach the wagering and payoff windows.

A spirit of hospitality pervades this gambling establishment. The visitor was invited to try his luck at the roulette wheel or at the dice table during the time between races. All through the room employés were posted to keep order and to make change for the patrons.

One woman, frail and middle aged, forced her way through the race bettors. She was on the verge of tears.

"My husband is going to give me hell," she said. "I lost the grocery money on that last race."

CAMERA RECORDS RUSHING BUSINESS AT GAMBLING HOUSE

Hundreds of automobiles of patrons were parked about the Dev-Lin in Tessville when Tribune photographer and reporter observed gambling which police agencies assert is not in operation.

POLICE ARREST 21 IN 14 RAIDS ON HANDBOOKS

The police continued their endeavor yesterday to convince gamblers that the lid is really on when three squads raided fourteen handbooks in the loop and nearby areas, arresting 21 men as operators.

One squad was led by Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan, who operates directly under orders of Commissioner James P. Allman. The other squads were commanded by Sergts. Fred Fertig and Francis Caraher, working on instructions from Capt. George O'Connor of the central district.

Acting on a number of complaints Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the Willow Springs county highway police last night raided a carnival being run on the grounds of the Proviso Township High school on Washington boulevard, just outside the eastern limits of Maywood, and arrested two men on a charge of operating crooked gambling games. They are Thomas Dukoff, 37 years old, 420 Wrightwood avenue, Maywood, and Jack Wilson, 29 years old, 6223 Vernon avenue.

THREE ROB WOMAN GROCER.

Three men, one of them armed with a revolver, entered a grocery at 4554 South Rockwell street last night and forced Mrs. Ralph Balzakas, the owner, to give them $10 which the cash register contained.

7 MORE FIRES SET IN DENVER; HUNT ARSONIST

One Blaze Is Started in Art Gallery.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Denver was terrorized tonight by an elusive arsonist who sped swiftly from one building to another, eluding half the city police force and a fusillade of bullets as he left tongues of red flames in his wake.

Seven new blazes were set during the day, three of them in the new $7,000,000 city hall. Nine other fires have been started since Thursday. Though all police and firemen in the city were called out to look for the incendiarist, their only clew was that he apparently is a fanatical reformer.

Calls from Pay Station.

Police received a telephone call from a man who warned that the fires would continue "until dance halls and liquor stores were closed." The man called from a pay station telephone and fled before detectives could reach the place.

The fires in the city hall were set despite the watchfulness of guards placed in public buildings and Catholic churches, on which the firebug has preyed. One was in the art gallery in the municipal building where there are several hundred thousand dollars worth of paintings and art objects.

That blaze and two others started in other parts of the building were quickly extinguished and all available officers were called to surround the place, believing the incendiarist was trapped.

But while half the police force searched for him inside the city hall and in adjacent streets, the elusive man escaped a volley of shots and set flames to the downtown Majestic building, occupied by physicians' offices and a bank.

Fires Four Catholic Edifices.

Other buildings fired earlier in the day were a Catholic school, the fourth Catholic edifice to be set on fire, a downtown hotel, and a large downtown supply house in the warehouse district. The first of the series of fires was in the Catholic cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, where a painting valued at $85,000 was set aflame.

Two householders this morning fired at a man they believed to be the arsonist. One citizen said he fired at a man he saw on the scene at the time the fire started in the municipal art gallery.

John McAuley, who lives near the Annunciation Catholic school in East Denver, said he shot at a man he believed was the incendiarist, who was near the fire started at the rear door of the school building.

PENAL CONGRESS VOTES APPROVAL OF STERILIZATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—The international penal and penitentiary congress adjourned today after adopting a resolution accepting the principle of sterilization as a means of combating crime. Several American and British delegates, however, asserted they had no chance to vote because they could not ascertain from the translation of the resolution what it was about.

Sterilization found its most vigorous champion in Dr. Jarmila Vesela, a young woman doctor of law from the University of Prague.

"We want to fight the causes of crime," she declared. "Sterilization and castration serve this purpose. Natural selection of the fittest has been destroyed by civilization. We must introduce scientific selection through the introduction of eugenic measures."

American delegates expressed surprise today when shown headlines in German papers declaring that "world experts are of opinion Nazi laws are models for the whole world." They pointed out that yesterday the congress rebuked the Nazis by defeating a resolution upholding principle of revenge in treatment of criminal prisoners.

Flees Jail for Own Bed; Shows Up for His Trial

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Annoyed by snores of fellow prisoners, Joe Garrott, held in the city jail last night on a petty larceny charge, decided he preferred his own bed. Therefore he took leave through an air chute and dropped down from the jail roof. Today he walked into court and announced he was ready for trial. He had a good night's rest, he said.

WAIT 55 YEARS TO WED; LEAVE ON HONEYMOON

Oelwein, Ia., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Hummell continued their "honeymoon trip today, the love for each other they knew 55 years ago fulfilled at last.

"We were just a couple of kids," explained Mr. Hummell, 73, of Viking, Alberta, Canada, "who grew up together in Arlington, Ia., loved, drifted apart and lost track of each other."

"But now we're happily married," said Mrs. Hummell, 72.

Years ago Hummell went to Canada and homesteaded a claim. He now operates a hardware store at Viking, which he helped settle. After his wife died, his lonely thoughts turned back to Jennie Marsh, the girl he had loved when a boy. So he wrote her brother, who sent Hummell's letter to her at Glendale, Cal.

More letters followed. Hummell learned the sweetheart of his youth had married, but that her husband, like his wife, had died. Finally he wrote proposing marriage and she accepted.

FIGHT PREVENTS ADJOURNMENT OF 74TH CONGRESS

Both Houses in Recess Until Tomorrow.

Tydings and Clark were held apart by some of their colleagues but they stood glaring at each other with faces ashen white. Clark gestured toward the corridor as he faced Tydings, and Tydings lunged in an effort to break loose from Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.].

Throughout this incident and the preceding discussion on Byrnes, motion senators had milled about the chamber in the greatest disorder and Vice President Garner constantly pounded with his gavel in a vain effort to quell the laughter in the galleries.

Just before the vote on the motion Tydings took the floor and asserted that the "senate ought to have dignity enough to stand its ground."

Yell for Vote.

Senator Clark and Senator Huey Long, the Louisiana "kingfish," yelled "vote," which infuriated Tydings.

"And if you think you can make me stop by yelling vote I'll be here for an hour," he challenged.

"I was one of those who said 'vote'," Clark replied. "If the senator wants to filibuster it is no more than he's done here many times before."

"That's an untruth!" Tydings shouted.

"Does the senator mean to say that I uttered an untruth?" Clark demanded, clenching his fists and moving forward. He was caught first by Senator George McGill [Dem., Kas.] and then by Senator Alben W. Barkley [Dem., Ky.].

A short time later Tydings approached Clark, smiling and extended his hand, which Clark grasped. The two stood for a time with clasped hands, grinning broadly, and the incident apparently was closed.

The senate's cotton and wheat loan amendments to the deficiency bill were adopted under a suspension of the rules, required to attach legislation to an appropriation measure, when southern cotton senators formed a coalition with the senators from wheat states. Requiring two-thirds for passage, the motion of Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] was carried 50 to 19.

Senator Lynn J. Frazier [Radical, N. D.] immediately moved to amend Byrnes' amendment to provide a 90 per cent loan on wheat, and it was carried, 43 to 20.

Bankhead a "Judas."

The southern senators voted solidly for the Byrnes motion, as did most of the wheat senators, and then the southerners reciprocated for the courtesy of their friends from the north and west. The only "Judas" was Senator Bankhead, who voted "no" on wheat.

Even Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and Senator Barkley, both rabid New Dealers, voted for the rule suspension, although it was in direct defiance of President Roosevelt's new cotton plan providing a 9 cent loan and a 3 cent subsidy on exports.

When the deficiency bill, with the senate amendments, reached the house, James P. Buchanan [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the appropriations committee, did not move to concur in the conference, but instead made a speech defying the senate.

Cost 500 Millions.

"If they insist on these amendments, there will be no deficiency bill," he shouted. "The wheat amendment alone would cost the government $500,000,000 a year."

It soon became apparent that southern members of the house had a different version of the crying need for the 12-cent loan, as advanced in the senate. They stated privately that it was not demanded by the cotton planters, but by the cotton speculators, who had been caught in a long position.

Over in the senate, however, Senator Bankhead, Senator Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the agriculture committee, and others argued that the whole economy of the south was founded upon the 12 cent loan and that without it, the agricultural program for cotton would collapse.

After the senate had completed all other business and taken a recess at 8 p. m., Vice President Garner and Majority Leader Robinson went over to confer with house leaders in an effort to break the deadlock. Two hours later, however, they came back and called the senate to order, Robinson giving an account of the apparent hopelessness of the situation.

Senator Byrnes then made his motion to ask the house to return the adjournment resolution and for the senate to reconsider.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], resplendent in brown coat and cream colored flannels, discoursed at great length with all the pollysyylabic ostentation at his command, on the general theme that the proposed action might be construed as an "affront" to the honorable body. The senate had no record before it to show that the house had refused to appoint conferees, he contended.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], chairman of the appropriation committee, informed the senate that he was officially advised by Mr. Buchanan of the house's recalcitrance, and authorized so to announce.

The controversy over the deficiency bill arose after both houses had finally approved the remainder of President Roosevelt's "must" bills.

Accept Soak Rich Bill.

Developments in the day's record breaking output of legislation included:

1. The senate, without a record vote adopted, the conference report on the $250,000,000 wealth confiscation tax bill, which the house a short time earlier had approved by a record vote of 247 to 72.

2. The senate approved, and sent to the White House, the conference report on the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility bill, with its mandatory "death sentence" for all holding companies beyond the second degree. The house earlier had approved it 222 to 112.

3. The house adopted and sent to the White House the conference report on the bill barring suits against the United States [after Jan. 1] for gold or its equivalent on repudiated government obligations. The senate approved it yesterday.

Bar Bulk Liquor Sale.

4. The senate approved, and sent to the White House, the conference report on the federal alcohol control bill, which the house had approved earlier. The bill bars bulk liquor sales.

5. The senate approved, by a vote of 77 to 2, the compromise neutrality resolution adopted yesterday by the house. Carrying mandatory prohibition of the shipment of arms and munitions of war to belligerents for a period of six months, it also went to the White House.

Just before the senate took a recess, Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, received a letter from President Roosevelt urging permanent NRA legislation at the next session. The letter, read on the senate floor, was identical with one received by Chairman Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee.

Prohibit Arms Shipment.

The neutrality resolution passed by the senate and sent to the White House carries a mandatory prohibition on the shipment of arm and munitions of war to belligerents for a period of six months, as well as for the licensing and registration of arms manufacturers. It also gives the President discretionary authority, without time limitation, to warn United States citizens that they travel on belligerent ships at their own risk and to prohibit belligerent submarines from entering American ports.

The neutrality resolution was criticized as unnecessary and unwise by Senators Lewis and Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], but both voted for the measure on final passage.

GUNMEN ROB SAUSAGE DEALER.

George Lindauer, 1830 South Springfield avenue, a sausage jobber, was robbed of $10 and $50 in checks yesterday by three armed men who stopped his truck near West Lake and North Morgan streets.

THIS CONGRESS BREAKS ALL RECORD FOR PASSAGE OF BILLS OF FAR REACHING IMPORTANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—In the passage of legislation of vast import to the nation the first session of the seventy-fourth congress has been a record breaker. The more important measures passed by the two houses which last night recessed for final action tomorrow include the following:

Wealth Taxation

Taxes estate after $40,000 exemption from 2 per cent of the first taxable $10,000 up to 70 per cent of estates over 50 millions. Taxes gifts without exemption at a graduated rate approximately three-fourths of the estate taxes.

Increases surtaxes on individual incomes over $50,000 beginning at 31 per cent and rising to 75 per cent on incomes over 10 millions. Graduates income tax on corporations ranging from 12½ per cent to incomes under $2,000 to 15 per cent of those over $40,000.

Levies capital stock tax of $1.40 per $1,000; 6 per cent of profits over 10 per cent, and 12 per cent of profits over 15 per cent. Levies tax of an effective 1½ per cent on intercorporation dividends.

Social Security

Provides for federal grants to states on a fifty-fifty basis for pensions to needy persons at the age of 65, the federal government's share being limited to $15 a month. An appropriation of $49,750,000 authorized for current fiscal year.

Provides for contributory old age annuities at the age of 65, ranging from $10 to $85 a month depending on wage and length of employment. A reserve fund to be created in the treasury, the amount to be determined by actuarial principles. For three years beginning with 1937 the employer will pay 1 per cent of his pay roll and the employé 1 per cent of his wage. The tax gradually will rise to 3 per cent for employer and employé after Jan. 1, 1949.

Provides for federal fostering of state laws to compensate persons thrown out of work, allowing wide latitude to states in setting up unemployment insurance. A uniform pay roll tax beginning next Jan. 1 is to be levied against employers of eight or more persons 20 weeks in a year. The tax begins at 1 per cent, rises to 2 per cent in 1937, and to 3 per cent in 1938 and thereafter.

Amendments to AAA

Specifically "legalize" the imposition of processing taxes and the payment of bounties for crop reductions put into effect by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace. Give Wallace dictatorial powers over milk, tobacco, fruits, and vegetables [except those for canning] and soy beans with respect to marketing and reselling. Open books of all handlers to inspectors of the AAA. Price fixing limited to milk, and then with approval of three-fourths of the producers or producers of three-fourths of the milk. Production control limitations may limit quantities flowing into various markets.

Add potatoes to the list of basic commodities, which includes cotton, corn-hogs, wheat, rye, barley, tobacco, etc.

Close courts to suits for the recovery of processing taxes, even if held illegal by the Supreme court, until commissioner of internal revenue has conducted hearing and certified record, together with findings of fact, to the courts. Allow recoveries only of such taxes that have not been passed on to the consumer or producer.

Authorizes Secretary Wallace to continue the levying of processing taxes even after the attainment of parity prices for farm products, which was the objective of the original AAA. When the farm price reaches parity, or the so-called fair exchange price, and until it reaches 10 per cent above, the tax is automatically reduced to 20 per cent of the parity price. Between 10 per cent and 20 per cent above parity, the tax is automatically reduced to 15 per cent of parity, and when the farm price is 20 per cent above parity, the tax is automatically reduced to 10 per cent thereof. The secretary is authorized to reduce the tax to zero upon finding that it is not necessary to effectuate the purposes of the act.

Banking Act of 1935

Makes permanent so-called "temporary" federal insurance of bank deposits with some modifications. Banks to be assessed ⅛ of 1 per cent on deposits annually for insurance, must join federal reserve system by 1942. Insurance covers up to $5,000 in each account.

Changes federal reserve board into board of governors, raises number of appointive members from six to seven and excludes secretary of treasury and controler of currency as ex-officio members. Shifts control of open market credit policies from the heads of 12 reserve banks elected by bankers to new committee composed of seven reserve board members and five reserve bank heads. Permits doubling of reserve requirements. Broadens national banks' authority to make real estate loans. Allows reserve banks to advance funds to banks on any satisfactory security with proviso that such special advances shall bear interest at a rate one-half of 1 per cent higher than the ordinary rediscount rate.

Guffey Coal Control Act

Establishes bituminous coal commission of five members empowered to decree a code covering working conditions, minimum and, possibly, maximum coal prices for 23 regions, and other trade practices. Requires union representation on regional boards. Enforced by excise tax on coal of 15 per cent of minehead value with 90 per cent rebate for operators complying.

Amendments to TVA

Gives the Tennessee Valley Authority the right to sell surplus power, a point challenged in the federal courts. Authorizes TVA to make loans to states and municipalities for the purchase of power distributing systems. Permits the authority to issue up to $50,000,000 in bonds and use proceeds for loans to municipalities and expenses. TVA may duplicate existing power lines and may purchase without competitive bidding in emergencies. Authority also is allowed to keep a $1,000,000 fund on hand for emergencies, but must come to congress for appropriations for other purposes. Controler General McCarl will audit the books at his own expense, but must forward the audit to TVA, which may attach its own report before the McCarl report goes to congress.

Utility Holding Company

Permits the Securities and Exchange commission to order dissolution of utility holding companies above the first degree after 1938; lays down elaborate federal regulations for holding and operating companies, including federal licensing, refusal of licenses where the government wants to develop government owned plants, provision for requiring interconnection of existing utility systems, and other opening wedges for government ownership.

Gold Clause Suit Act

Outlaws after Jan. 1, 1936, all suits by persons seeking to show that they suffered damages on gold coin, currency, or other gold clause obligations of the government at the time of the New Deal's revaluation of gold.

Farm Credit Measure

Revises emergency farm mortgage act of 1933, the federal home loan act, the agricultural marketing act, and the farm credit act of 1933. Reduces interest rates on farm mortgages at an estimated cost to the treasury of $100,000,000 a year. Federal intermediate credit banks are given the power to discount notes of farm coöperatives and broadens the FCA's power to make direct loans to coöperatives. Allows loans secured by real property with maturities up to 43 years.

Labor Disputes Act

Creates national labor relations board of three members appointed by the President with power to issue cease and desist orders against "unfair labor practices," subpena or fine witnesses, hold hearings and order elections among employés.

Forbids dominaton, interference with, or financing of a labor organization by an employer to supposedly outlaw company unions. Prohibits "discrimination" by employers against employés for union connection or activities, but permits a closed shop once the employés have selected a spokesman.

Stipulates that persons chosen by majority of employés in any industrial unit shall be sole representatives for collective bargaining. Provides that an employer must meet the majority representatives for collective bargaining.

Farm Mortgage Bill

Authorizes courts to stay all action against farm debtor for three years or, if his property is sold at public auction, to allow him to "redeem" it for the highest price bid, plus 5 per cent interest. If the property is not sold, if he is left in possession, and if a stay of action is issued, he need pay only a "reasonable" rental for three years; at the end of that time the property he has retained will be appraised and he can "redeem" it by paying the appraised value less all amounts paid as rental.

Home Loan Measure

Raises the bond issuing authority of the Home Owners' Loan corporation $1,750,000,000 from 3 billions to $4,750,000,000. Changes existing HOLC and housing acts to encourage mortgage lending by the purchase of shares in federal savings and loan associations and in state chartered home financing institutions.

Neutrality Act

Makes unlawful export of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerents until March 1, 1936. Establishes a national munitions control board to license the lawful import of arms. Makes unlawful transport of arms to a belligerent by an American vessel. Authorizes President to warn Americans they travel on belligerent ships at their own risk.

Work Relief Bill

Appropriates 4 billion 880 million dollars for relief and work relief. Earmarks 800 million for highways and grade crossing elimination, 500 million for rural rehabilitation and agricultural relief, 100 million for rural electrification, 450 million for housing, 300 million for white collar workers, 600 million for the CCC, 900 million for loans or grants to local governments for public works, and 350 million for soil erosion, reforestation, flood control, and rivers and harbors.

Miscellaneous

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR PENSIONS: Restores pensions to veterans of the Spanish-American war, Boxer rebellion and Philippine insurrection, their widows and dependents canceled under the economy act of March 19, 1933. Automatically provides 46 million dollars for 30,000 pensioners.

AIR DEFENSE: Authorizes selection, construction, installation, and modification of permanent stations and depots for the army air corps and frontier air defense bases.

INCOME TAX AMENDMENT: Repeals the provision in the revenue act of 1934 making public individual income tax returns.

RAILWAY PENSION: Establishes, effective next March, pension system for railway employés engaged in interstate commerce by levying a tax of 7 per cent on railway pay rolls, half to be borne by companies and half by employés. Employés who have worked 30 years or reached 65 years of age entitled to pensions ranging up to $120 a month.

FEDERAL ALCOHOL CONTROL: Puts distilling and sale of spirits under control of an administration appointed by the President and under supervision of the treasury department. Brewers may submit voluntarily to regulation.

NEW DEAL ENACTS INFAMOUS BILLS —WICKERSHAM

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 24.—(AP)—George W. Wickersham of New York, former attorney general of the United States, declared here today that ". . . congress has enacted infamous bills, and now, please God, it is to adjourn." He was addressing a nonpartisan meeting to support the constitution.

Wickersham termed the Guffey coal bill "the most shocking ever introduced by any government.

"It has been followed by a series of laws striking at the foundation of our government," he said. "It puts the government into all sorts of enterprises and make a nation of paupers out of a nation which was famous as a nation of hard working men. The question will be whether voters of this country want to be vassals of the government or be free to carve out their own destinies."

Explaining the meeting was called as "an expression of people of both parties who are deeply concerned over what is going on in Washington," Wickersham termed the New Deal "the old story of robbing Peter to pay Paul."

SENATE, HOUSE WIN PRAISE FOR 'STATESMANSHIP'

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt today wrote to the Vice President and Speaker Byrns, saying:

"If the opportunity presents itself, will you be good enough to extend my greetings to the members of the senate and to express to them my deep and sincere congratulations upon the work which they have accomplished.

"When a calm and fair review of the work of this congress is made, it will be called a historic session. It has dealt, in a spirit of statesmanship, with matters of vital interest to the lives of our people. Much has been accomplished for the permanent wellbeing of the nation as a whole."

74TH CONGRESS SETS ALL TIME SPENDING MARK

Levies Highest Taxes in History of U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The first session of the 74th congress, which was expected to end tonight but which recessed till Monday for a brief final cleanup, is the longest—234 days—since the Fordney-McCumber tariff second session of the 67th congress in 1922—is credited with three major precedents. They are:

1. It passed the largest individual appropriation bill in the history of the world—the 4 billion 880 million dollar bill for work relief.

2. It passed the most far reaching and most revolutionary piece of social reform legislation in the history of the republic—the social security bill.

3. According to senate lawyers, Democratic as well as Republican, it did more violence to the constitution of the United States than any of its predecessors, including the record breaking New Deal 73d congress.

75 Days On Relief Bill.

Although not by any means a record in duration—the Fordney-McCumber session ran 292 days and the second session of the 65th congress ran 354—this session was unusually long for three reasons.

First, the President's demand for the 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief bill precipitated such violent controversies in the senate that it required 75 days for passage.

Second, the Supreme court's momentous decisions in the Schechter NRA, the Frazier-Lemke, the railway pensions and the gold clause abrogation cases, required a brain trust revision of virtually all the pending "must" bills.

Third, the President's casual message suggesting consideration of taxes to effect a more "equitable distribution" of the national wealth and bring about a "better social order" was seized upon by Huey Long of Louisiana and Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, which forced Mr. Roosevelt to demand action at this session or else stand convicted of making "an empty political gesture," as Huey put it.

Upset by Supreme Court.

Most complicating factor of the session, from the New Deal's standpoint, was the decision of the Supreme court in the Schechter case, holding such things as production, manufacturing and marketing were local, and beyond the power of congress to regulate under the interstate commerce clause of the constitution. This historic decision elicited the celebrated "horse and buggy" talk from the President, and struck consternation in the ranks of the whole New Deal, particularly the brain trust.

Back to committees had to go the amendments to the agricultural adjustment act, the Guffey coal bill, the Wagner labor relations bill, the social security bill, the then proposed NRA extension bill and various new deal "must" measures. The New Deal was unhinged temporarily.

But the ingenious young legalists from Prof. Felix Franfurter's Harvard law school—the "hot dogs" of the brain trust—undertook to circumvent the Supreme court by sheer dint of language, and all the "must" bills save the NRA came back for action in both houses.

Even the "hot dogs" lacked the effrontery to attempt a resuscitation of the NRA, and it was extended merely in skeleton form with a research and propaganda agency to compile reports on the relative conditions before and after the codes.

They succeeded in convincing the legislators, including many ardent though very much lay constitutionalists, that they had drafted the bills in the light of the Schecter decision. As a result, all of them progressed through both houses and went on their way to the White House.

Republicans accused the President of making a deliberate effort to put through unconstitutional legislation in order to build up antagonism to the Supreme court and give himself a political issue of amending the constitution.

7 Billions Over Revenue.

Besides the regular appropriations of some 3½ billion dollars and the extraordinary appropriation of 4 billion 880 million this session of the 74th congress has authorized, according to New Dealers on the appropriation committees of both houses, making a grand total of 10 billion 350 million dollars.

This is 6 billion 850 million dollars more than the prospective revenue for the fiscal year 1936. The direct appropriations, other than the 4 billion 800 million dollar act, follow:

Department of Agriculture	$125,157,983
District of Columbia	40,547,115
Independent offices	777,501,956
Interior department	61,220,928
Legislative branches	20,746,760
Navy department	458,684,279
State, Justice, Commerce, and Labor departments	98,561,895
Treasury and Post Office departments	903,635,678
War department	401,998,170
First deficiency	112,633,830
Second deficiency	272,901,000
Third deficiency	93,000,000

Levy Largest Taxes.

In addition to its stratospheric appropriations, the first session of the second New Deal congress has levied more taxes than any of its predecessors in the history of the republic. The social security act alone levies taxes, when it becomes fully effective in 1939, of 3 per cent of the pay rolls upon the employers and employés on all American business and industry. These taxes will amount to more than half a billion dollars for the fiscal year 1937 and more than 2½ billion dollars for the fiscal year 1949.

The railway pension bill, which levies taxes of 3½ per cent of the payrolls upon both employers and employés, is estimated to yield 150 million dollars a year.

The Guffey coal bill levies a tax of 15 per cent on the value of coal at the mine, but, because 90 per cent of this tax is rebated to mines which comply with other parts of the bill, the net yield of the tax has been estimated all the way from 10 to 100 million dollars.

Bank Deposits Taxed.

The new banking act with its tax of one-twelfth of 1 per cent on the bank deposits of the country, will take about $35,000,000 a year.

The President's wealth confiscation taxes, including drastic increases in the estate and gift tax rates, graduated corporation, intercorporate dividend, and increased surtax rates, will take about $250,000,000 a year.

In addition this session extended the gasoline, increased postage and other nuisance taxes, amounting to about 500 million dollars, and specifically legalized the processing taxes imposed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, amounting to another 500 million dollars a year.

Thus, taking the social security taxes at the minimum beginning in 1937, the taxes levied, legalized or extended by the session aggregate some 2 billion dollars a year, or about three-fifths of the present annual internal revenue of the federal government.

Lobbying Most Powerful.

The session has been marked by the most powerful two sided lobby in history, culminating last Thursday in the surrender of the house to President Roosevelt on the "death sentence" of the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility bill. While the special lobby committees of both houses, appointed as a result of this situation, have disclosed that one utility system, the Associated Gas and Electric company of New York, spent $1,000,000 in efforts to defeat the bill. The administration moved heaven and earth to put it over.

Perhaps due to this powerful lobby, with the backing of the 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief fund at his disposal, Mr. Roosevelt suffered very few major defeats during the session. First and foremost was the rejection by the senate of his proposal to adhere to the league of nations' world court. Next in importance was the rejection by congress of his proposed inheritance taxes, designed to supplement the existing estate taxes in the process of confiscating the wealth.

Mr. Roosevelt was temporarily defeated on the McCarran prevailing wage amendment to the 4 billion 880 million dollar works bill, but after much high pressure lobbying and committing of pork, enough senators recanted to give him his way. Both the house and senate defied him on the 2 billion 200 million dollar Patman greenback bonus bill, and the house overrode his veto. But the senate, under tremendous pressure, sustained him.

10 BILLIONS VOTED BY CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Chairman James P. Buchanan of the house appropriations committee estimates that the grand total appropriations of the present session will be about 10 billion 150 million, arrived at as follows:

Appropriations [estimated]	$ 7,550,000,000
To which must be added appropriations which occur each year without annual action by congress	2,200,000,000
Also the sum made available for relief from funds of the RFC	500,000,000
Grand total	$10,250,000,000

The amounts carried in the regular annual appropriations bills, plus the two deficiency bills, follow:

Independt offices—$777,501,956.

Interior—$61,220,928.

Legislative—$20,746,760.

State, justice, commerce, labor—$98,561,895.

Treasury, postoffice—$903,635,678.

First deficiency—$112,633,830.

Second deficiency—$272,901,233.

HOUSE WORKS ON AFTER IT VOTES TO END SESSION

Fight Over Cotton, Wheat Loans Proves Snag.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Until it ran afoul of an open disagreement with the senate over making government loans on wheat and cotton, the house of representatives today whirled along toward adjournment, passing bills by the armful.

Late tonight, however, the house was snagged on the refusal of its leadership to agree with the senate action in writing 12 cent cotton and 11½ cent wheat loans into the third deficiency appropriation bill.

Before it ran into the stalemate, the house had ground out final action on the public utility holding company bill, the federal liquor control bill, the gold clause suit bill, and a number of minor measures.

With a roar of approval, the house had whooped through, at 1 p. m., a resolution calling for adjournment sine die, with senate concurrence, at midnight, and then settled down to cleaning up unfinished business.

Compromises Are Made.

Typical compromises were made in the alcohol bill. The house bill had created the Federal Alcohol administration as a division in the treasury department, headed by an administrator to be appointed by the President. All rules and regulations were to be subject to the approval of the secretary of the treasury.

The senate amended the bill to establish an independent agency to be known as the federal alcohol commission.

The senate conferees agreed to recede on the senate amendment. In return the house receded on its stipulation that distilled spirits might be distributed without restriction in barrels or kegs of more than one gallon capacity.

Bulk Sale Knocked Out.

This bulk sale was knocked out in the conference report. Direct control of brewers was omitted in the bill but a clause was added under which brewers can voluntarily submit to regulation. Representative Thomas H. Cullen [Dem., N. Y.] said he believed breweries would do this in order to avoid such evils as arose during the prohibition era.

The lower body also voted for a bill designed to regulate customs house brokers through a licensing system set up under the treasury. Ways and means committee members asserted the measure was aimed to stop the "racket" of brokers who "have their offices in their hats."

Another bill, designed to promote safety in coastwise shipping by limiting load capacity was also approved. Such a limitation has previously been in effect only on ocean-going vessels.

Rebuff for President.

A rebuff to President Roosevelt was tendered by the house when a bill to extend the period in which the President may cancel the ocean mail contracts failed of passage by a two-thirds majority.

The issue was put clearly by Representative Schuyler O. Bland, [Dem., Va.] who asserted that "defeat of this bill will constitute a vote of no-confidence in the President." Only 190 members could be mustered for the bill with 126 against it and a two-thirds majority was necessary under the suspension of the rules.

The President was given the power to cancel the contracts last year after evidences of fraud had been uncovered by an investigating committee.

The President wished to delay cancellation until after the ship subsidy bill was passed and wanted the period in which cancellation was possible extended from Oct. 31, 1935, to March 31, 1936. In this manner, it was hoped by administration leaders to push the ship subsidy bill through early at the next session beginning in January.

Failure of the bill means that the President must cancel the contracts if he wishes before next Oct. 31. After that date he will have no such power.

The lower body then approved the conference report on the utility control bill by a vote of 222 to 112 and sent it to the senate.

As representative George Huddleston, [Dem., Ala.] put it: "It is like reprieving a man from the death sentence and then requiring him to eat a keg of nails for breakfast."

Huddleston made one last plea to his colleagues to defeat the bill.

"I am heartily in accord with regulation of holding companies," he said. "That part of the bill carries out the Democratic party's campaign pledge of 1932. The other part was an afterthought and had no place on the bill. This is the most drastic and extreme regulatory measure ever offered to an American legislative body and I predict that it will produce serious and detrimental consequences to the people of the United States."

"There's no use in taking up any more time talking about this bill," said Representative John G. Cooper [Rep., O.], "but I want to leave this last thought with the house. Under the provisions of the bill, there has been established a new economic policy going to the extreme length of government dictatorship over private industry."

Shows Wasteful Program.

Moving along at the same rate of speed, the house quickly considered, then approved the conference report on the "soak the rich" tax bill by a vote of 247 to 72 and sent it to the senate.

"If the bill serves no other purpose," declared Representative Allen T. Treadway, "it will at least demonstrate to the country that the Democratic administration's wasteful expenditures cannot be met merely by soak the rich."

Joe Crosson Leaves After Short Visit Here

Joe Crosson, pilot who brought back from Alaska the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post, left Chicago yesterday for Los Angeles on a Transcontinental Western Airways plane after an overnight visit here with friends. He had arrived here late Friday with Jimmy Mattern from Oklahoma City where they attended Post's funeral. Crosson, while here, visited officials of Pan American Airways, for which company he is a pilot on the Alaska division, and other airlines executives.

ROOSEVELT PLAN GIVEN PRAISE AT DEMOCRAT MEET

Choke Off Resolutions Drawn by Critics.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The Young Democratic clubs of the United States, an organization professing 3,000,000 memberships, ended a two days' national convention here late tonight, the more loyal members staying over to hear the radio speech by President Roosevelt, and a good many skipping out for home to save a night's hotel bill. For the delegates the climax came in the afternoon when they elected Frank Wickhem of Sioux Falls, S. D., national president, and chose Indianapolis, Ind., for the next convention. Mrs. John Galleher of Virginia was chosen vice president in charge of women's organization.

Charles Murphy of Portland, Me., was elected treasurer, and Joseph Carr of Nashville, Tenn., secretary. George Williamson of St. Paul, Minn., Carr's opponent for the position of secretary, conceded his votes to Carr to make the election unanimous.

Resolutions Are Delayed.

Indianapolis won the convention in 1937 after Jacksonville, Fla., put up a spirited fight to get it. Other cities to put in a bid included Chicago and St. Paul, Minn. Mayor John W. Kern of Indianapolis spoke.

The elections lasted until it was nearly time for the President's speech, and the convention decided to hear the report of its resolutions committee after the President had spoken.

A tumultuous demonstration followed the President's speech.

Participating were representatives from each of the states, many of them beautiful women stylishly dressed in formal evening clothes ready for the convention ball. Their dignity was forgotten as they joined arm in arm with New Mexico's cowboy costumed delegations and the bearded "Mennonite" band from South Dakota.

Resolutions Praise Roosevelt.

The political purpose of the convention, well controled by the hands of the national officers and committeemen, was served with the adoption of resolutions of praise for the President and the national administration.

Spasmodic efforts of Harlan Kelley, Sheboygan, an outspoken Wisconsin delegate, to get a resolution into the convention were smoothed over. Kelley first wanted to censure the President for playing with the La Follettes and then was willing to compromise by asking the President to speak a kind word for the Wisconsin Democrats, but he failed to get anywhere with either of his ideas.

"The whole convention is just a marshmallow roast for these school boys and girls," Kelley declared in disgust. "There isn't a thought in their combined heads."

Another Threat Delivered.

Kelley declared that Henry Glass Jr. of Michigan, a member of the resolution committee, was standing around with a resolution censuring the administration and demanding resignation of Harry Hopkins and Secretaries Ickes, Wallace, and Perkins, and that he was going to introduce it from the floor if he couldn't get it in as a minority report of the committee.

Kelley said Glass had been promised some support from the Georgia delegates and that he was going to help him, but he was getting discouraged about getting a chance.

Glass' resolution was turned down by the committee as "too radical." Glass is a former national committeeman for the Young Democrats' clubs of Michigan and now a member of the state house of representatives.

Tells Resolution's Aim.

"The purpose of the resolution," Glass explained, "is to have Democrats give some thought to making the party truly Democratic. As it now is it is Progressive Republican and purely in the hands of social workers. Why not give it back to the party

"Personnel appointments by the present administration have been made with complete disregard of all party organizations, and right now the Democratic party has no real character."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS TO CONFERENCE OF YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[U. P.]—The text of President Roosevelt's radio address to the Young Democratic clubs at Milwaukee, Wis., follows:

"I am deeply sorry that I have had to forego the opportunity of accompanying my old friend, Senator Ryan Duffy, to Milwaukee to be with you, as I had planned, tonight. But the closing days of a far reaching and memorable session of the congress of the United States keeps me here in Washington.

"You doubtless know everything that I am going to say to you—because starting as early as last Monday certain special writers of a few papers have given you a complete outline of my remarks.

Amused by "Clairvoyants."

"I have been interested and somewhat amused by these clairvoyants who put on the front page many days ago this speech, which, because of pressure of time, I could only think out and dictate this very morning.

"Whatever his party affiliations may be, the President of the United States, in addressing the youth of the country—even when speaking to the younger citizens of his own party—should speak as President of the whole people. It is true that the presidency carries with it, for the time being, the leadership of a political party as well.

"But the presidency carries with it a far higher obligation than this—the duty of analyzing and setting forth national needs and ideals which transcend and cut across all lines of party affiliation. Therefore, what I am about to say to you, members of the Young Democratic clubs, is precisely—word for word—what I would say were I addressing a convention of the youth of the Republican party.

Tells of Older Councils.

"A man of my generation comes to the councils of the younger warriors in a very different spirit from that in which the older men addressed the youth of my time. Party or professional leaders who talked to us 25 or 30 years ago almost inevitably spoke in a mood of achievement and of exultation.

"They addressed us with the air of those who had won the secret of success for themselves and of permanence of achievement for their country for all generations to come. They assumed that there was a guarantee of final accomplishment for the people of this country and that the grim spectre of insecurity and want among the great masses would never haunt this land of plenty as it had widely visited other portions of the world.

"And so the elders of that day used to tell us, in effect, that the job of youth was merely to copy them and thereby to preserve the great things they had won for us.

"I have no desire to underestimate the achievements of the past. We have no right to speak slightingly of the heritage, spiritual and material, that comes down to us. There are lessons that it teaches that we abandon only at our own peril.

"'Hold fast to that which is permanently true,' is still a counsel of wisdom.

"While my elders were talking to me about the perfection of America, I did not know then of the lack of opportunity, the lack of education, the lack of many of the essential needs of civilization; that all these existed among millions of our people who lived not alone in the slums of the great cities and in the forgotten corners of rural America—existed even under the very noses of those who had the advantages and the power of government of those days.

"I say from my heart that no man of my generation has any business to address youth unless he comes to that task not in a spirit of exultation, but in a spirit of humility.

"I cannot expect you of a newer generation to believe me, of an older generation, if I do not frankly acknowledge that had the generation that brought you into the world been wiser and more provident and more unselfish, you would have been saved from needless difficult problems and needless pain and suffering.

Calls Results Inadequate.

"We may not have failed you in good intentions but we have certainly not been adequate in results. Your task, therefore, is not only to maintain the best in your heritage, but to labor to lift from the shoulders of the American people some of the burdens that the mistakes of a past generation have placed there.

"There was a time when the formula for success was the simple admonition to have a stout heart and willing hands. A great new country lay open. When life became hard in one place it was necessary only to move on to another. But circumstances have changed all that.

"Today we can no longer escape into virgin territory; we must master our environment. The youth of this generation finds that the old frontier is occupied, but that science and invention and economic evolution have opened up a new frontier—not one based on geography but on the resourcefulness of men and women applied to the old frontier.

"The cruel suffering of the recent depression has taught us unforgettable lessons. We have been compelled by stark necessity to unlearn the too comfortable superstition that the American soil was mystically blessed with every kind of immunity to grave economic maladjustments, and that the American spirit of individualism—all alone and unhelped by the coöperative efforts of government—could withstand and repel every form of economic disarrangement or crisis.

"The severity of the recent depression, toward which we had been heading for a whole generation, has taught us that no economic or social class in the community is so richly endowed and so independent of the general community that it can safeguard its own security, let alone assure security for the general community.

"The very objectives of young people have changed. In the older days a great financial fortune was too often the goal. To rule through wealth, or through the power of wealth, fired our imagination. This was the dream of the golden ladder—each individual for himself.

"It is my firm belief that the newer generation of America has a different dream. You place emphasis on sufficiency of life, rather than on a plethora of riches. You think of the security for yourself and your family that will give you good health, good food, good education, good working conditions, and the opportunity for normal recreation and occasional travel.

"Your advancement, you hope, is along a broad highway on which thousands of your fellow men and women are advancing with you.

"You and I know that this modern economic world of ours is governed by rules and regulations vastly more complex than those laid down in the days of Adam Smith or John Stuart Mill. They faced simpler mechanical processes and social needs.

"It is worth remembering, for example, that the business corporation, as we know it, did not exist in the days of Washington and Hamilton and Jefferson. Private businesses then were conducted solely by individuals or by partnerships in which every member was immediately and wholly responsible for success or failure. Facts are relentless. We must adjust our ideas to the facts of today.

"Money Concepts Modified."

"Our concepts of the regulation of money and credit and industrial competition, of the relation of employer and employé created for the old civilization, are being modified, to save our economic structure from confusion, destruction, and paralysis.

"The rules that governed the relationship between an employer and employé in the blacksmith's shop in the days of Washington cannot, of necessity, govern the relationship between the 50,000 employés of a great corporation and the infinitely complex and diffused ownership of that corporation. If 50,000 employés spoke with 50,000 voices there would be a modern Tower of Babel. That is why we insist on their right to choose their representatives to bargain collectively in their behalf with their employer.

"In the case of employés, every individual employé will know in his daily work whether he is adequately represented or not. In the case of the hundreds of thousands of stockholders in the present day ownership of great corporations, however, their knowledge of the success of the management is based too often solely on a financial balance sheet.

"Need Public Protection."

"Things may go wrong in the management without their being aware of it for a year, or for many years to come. Without their day to day knowledge they may be exploited and their investments jeopardized. Therefore, we have come to the recognition of the need of simple but adequate public protection for the rights of the investing public.

"A rudimentary concept of credit control appropriate for financing the economic life of a nation can hardly be urged as a means of directing and protecting the welfare of our twentieth century industrialism.

"The simple banking rules of Hamilton's day, when all the transactions of a fair sized bank could be kept in the neat penmanship of a clerk in one large ledger, fail to protect the millions of individual depositors of a great modern banking institution.

"And so it goes through all the range of economic life. Aggressive enterprise and shrewd invention have been at work on our economic machine. Our rules of conduct for the operation of that machine must be subjected to the same constant development.

"Cites Old Social Habits."

"And so in our social life. Forty years ago, slum conditions in our great cities were much worse than today. Living conditions on farms and working conditions in mines and factories were primitive. But they were taken for granted. Few people considered that the government had responsibility for sanitation, for safety devices, for preventing child labor and night work for women.

"In 1911, 24 years ago, when I was first a member of the New York state legislature, a number of the younger members of the legislature worked against these old conditions and called for laws governing factory inspection, for workmen's compensation and for the limitation of work for women and children to 54 hours, with one day's rest in seven.

"Those of us who joined in this movement in the legislature were called reformers, socialists, and wild men. We were opposed by many of the same organizations and the same individuals who are now crying aloud about the socialism involved in social security legislation, in bank deposit insurance, in farm credit, in the saving of homes, in the protection of investors, and the regulation of public utilities. The reforms, however, for which we were condemned 24 years ago are taken today as a matter of course.

"Can Cure Social Ills."

"And so, I believe, will be regarded the reforms that now cause such concern to the reactionaries of 1935. We come to an understanding of these new ways of protecting people because our knowledge enlarges and our capacity for organized action increases. People have learned that they can carry their burdens effectively only by coöperation.

"We have found out how to conquer the ravages of diseases that years ago were regarded as unavoidable and inevitable. We must learn that many other social ills can be cured.

"Let me emphasize that serious as have been the errors of unrestrained individualism, I do not believe in abandoning the system of individual enterprise. The freedom and opportunity that have characterized American development in the past can be maintained if we recognize the fact that the individual system of our day calls for the collaboration of all of us to provide, at the least, security for all of us. Those words 'freedom' and 'opportunity' do not mean a license to climb upwards by pushing other people down.

"Any paternalistic system which tries to provide for security for every one from above only calls for an impossible task and a regimentation utterly uncongenial to the spirit of our people.

"Consistent with U. S. Tradition."

"But government coöperation to help make the system of free enterprise work, to provide that minimum security without which the competitive system cannot function, to restrain the kind of individual action which in the past has been harmful to the community—that kind of governmental coöperation is entirely consistent with the best tradition of America.

"Just as the evolution of economic and social life has shown the need for new methods and practices, so has the new political life developed the need for new political practices and methods. Government now demands the best trained brains of every business and profession. Government today requires higher and higher standards of those who would serve it.

"It must bring to its service greater and greater competence. The conditions of public work must be improved and protected. Mere party membership and loyalty can no longer be the exclusive test. We must be loyal not merely to persons or parties, but to the higher conceptions of ability and devotion that modern government requires.

"Going to the Dogs."

"There was a day when political sages, or those who controled them, took the attitude that anything new, or what they called 'new-fangled' would lead to dire results. There is nothing new in those prophecies of gloom. I read these lines in a paper the other day—a little poem entitled "Going to the Dogs."

'My grandpa notes the world's worn cogs
And says we're going to the dogs;
His granddad in his house of logs
Swore things were going to the dogs;
His dad, among the Flemish bogs,
Vowed things were going to the dogs;
The caveman in his queer skin togs
Said things were going to the dogs.
But this is what I wish to state:
The dogs have had an awful wait.'

"I would be lacking in any sense of responsibility and lacking in elementary courage if I shared in such a hopeless attitude.

"I, for one, am willing to place my trust in the youth of America. If they demand action as well as preachments, I should be ashamed to chill their enthusiasm with the dire prophecy that to change is to destroy. I am unwilling to sneer at the vision of youth merely because vision is sometimes mistaken. But vision does not belong only to the young.

"Must Guard Ourselves."

"There are millions of older people who have vision, just as there are some younger men and women who are ready to put a weary, selfish or greedy hand upon the clock of progress and turn it back.

"We who seek to go forward must ever guard ourselves against a danger which history teaches. More than ever, we cherish the elective form of democratic government, but progress under it can easily be retarded by disagreements that relate to method and to detail rather than to the broad objectives upon which we are agreed.

"It is as if all of us were united in the pursuit of a common goal, but that each and every one of us were marching along a separate road of our own. If we insist on choosing different roads, most of us will not reach our common destination.

"The reason that the forces of reaction so often defeat the forces of progress is that the Tories of the world are agreed and united in standing still on the same old spot and, therefore, never run the danger of getting lost on divergent trails. One might remark in passing that one form of standing still on the same spot consists in agreeing to condemn all progress and letting it go at that.

"Unite and Challenge!"

"Therefore, to the American youth of all parties I submit a message of confidence—unite and challenge! Rules are not necessarily sacred—principles are. The methods of the old order are not, as some would have you believe, above the challenge of youth.

"Let us carry on the good that the past gave us. The best of that good is the spirit of America. And the spirit of America is the spirit of inquiry, of readjustment, of improvement, above all a spirit in which youth can find the fulfilment of its ideals.

"It is for the new generation to participate in the decisions and to give strength and spirit and continuity to our government and to our national life."

High Spots in Roosevelt Address

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Excerpts from the speech of President Roosevelt to the Young Democrats tonight included:

It is true that the presidency carries with it, for the time being, the leadership of a political party as well. But the presidency carries with it a far higher obligation than this. . . . Therefore, what I am about to say to you, members of the Young Democratic clubs, is precisely—word for word—what I would say were I addressing a convention of the youth of the Republican party.

I say from my heart that no man of my generation has any business to address youth unless he comes to that task not in a spirit of exultation but in a spirit of humility.

Let me emphasize that serious as have been the errors of unrestrained individuals, I do not believe in abandoning the system of individual initiative.

Any paternalistic system which tries to provide for security for every one from above only calls for an impossible task and a regimentation utterly uncongenial to the spirit of our people.

To the American youth of all parties I submit a message of confidence—unite and challenge. Rules are not necessarily sacred—principles are. The methods of the old order are not as some would have you believe above the challenge of youth.

HUEY LONG AND LIFT OPERATOR GET GOAT OF VICE PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The brittle tempers brought by the closing moments of congress found Vice President John Garner rapping Senator Huey Long [Dem., La.] and himself being talked back to by an elevator operator.

In the midst of the incessant debate that was sending the session toward an automatic adjournment and holding up a vote the Louisiana senator addressed the chair:

"Mr. President, if we take up the remaining hour and fifty minutes like we have the last thirty there won't be any use talking about it, will there?"

"That would be in line with the Louisiana senator's conduct for the last six months," Garner snapped back.

Just a few minutes before the Vice President had stepped into a crowded elevator in the house.

Ellis Betts, who helped write a Populist party platform back at the turn of the century, was running the elevator. He started up.

"Down!" Garner shouted. "I want to go down!"

Betts stopped the elevator and started down, but not before he replied:

"You didn't say which way you wanted to go. I'm no mind reader."

LEGAL EXPERTS SCAN BILLS FOR SERIOUS ERRORS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A few misplaced commas and misspelled words slipped into the law of the land during this week's drive toward adjournment of congress.

It takes two acts of congress to correct an error in a bill already passed.

Government lawyers, who sat at their desks tonight to check over the last batch of bills before they are signed by the President, closed their eyes to minor errors which would not affect the meaning of the bill.

Every bill is given eagle-eyed legal scrutiny before it is signed and becomes law, but errors sometimes slip by.

A printer once dropped a line of type, and a bill was passed by both houses, signed by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house, signed by the President and sent to the government printing office for publication in the statutes-at-large before some one discovered that the law was meaningless, because one line had been omitted.

When a serious error creeps in, congress must pass a new law, correcting the error. If the error is caught in the final check before the President has made the act a law, congress must pass two new acts—one asking the President to return the bill; the other correcting it.

PRESIDENT ASKS PREPARATION OF NEW NRA BILLS

Urges Measures for Vote at Next Session.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight urged congressional committees to prepare legislation for presentation at the next session "preserving permanently to the nation such social and economic advantages as were gained through previous emergency enactments," including NRA.

In letters to Chairmen Harrison [Dem., Miss.] of the senate finance committee and Doughton [Dem., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee the President declared that since invalidation of the NRA, investigation had disclosed that "notwithstanding successful and praiseworthy efforts being made by many employers to maintain standards of employment, these indicate a tendency towards serious impairment of established standards by a minority."

"To place these facts before your committee," the President said, "I am transmitting herewith certain information substantiating this conclusion.

Survey Under Way.

"As additional evidence is gathered, I shall continue to furnish it to your committee to lay as broad a factual base as possible for your consideration of the problems involved. The National Recovery administration is also making a general survey of the results so far obtained.

"Your committee could meet, in the fall, for hearings and the formulation of proposed legislation for preserving permanently to the nation such social and economic advantages as were gained through previous emergency enactments. This would enable you to offer at the opening of the coming session, a well considered program for congressional action.

"Pending determination by the congress of whether further industrial legislation will be enacted, it is hoped that industrial groups will, in increasing numbers, avail themselves of the provisions of the point resolution extending the National Industrial Recovery administration which permit agreements [1] putting into effect the requirements of section 7A, minimum wages, maximum hours, and prohibition of child labor, and [2] prohibiting unfair competitive practices which offend against existing law.

Points to Exemptions.

"Such agreements, when approved by the President, as to matters covered by the joint resolution, are exempted expressly from the penalties of the anti-trust laws, including criminal prosecutions, injunctions, and treble damages.

"By such action, industry can undoubtedly do much to preserve the very substantial gains made while the codes were in effect. Applications for approval of such agreements should be filed with the federal trade commission.

"Industry may continue to take advantage of the familiar trade practice conference procedure of the federal trade commission.

"It will be my purpose during the adjournment of congress to call into conference representatives of management, labor and consumers in the hope that discussion will create among them a general agreement as to the best means of accelerating industrial recovery and the elimination of unemployment."

4 G. O. P. CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT VOTE ON NEW DEAL BILLS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The records of four Republican senators mentioned as possibilities for the party's presidential nomination next year show wide divergence of opinion on measures of major importance acted upon by the 74th congress.

Support for New Deal sponsored legislation, or direct support for the President, is shown in the records of Senators Borah of Idaho, Vandenberg of Michigan, Dickinson of Iowa, and McNary of Oregon. But on seven issues they voted en bloc but once.

Here is the record:

AAA amendments requested by the President to broaden the farm adjustment program: Favoring, Borah and McNary; opposing, Vandenberg. Dickinson did not vote.

Patman bonus bill, vigorously opposed by the President: Favoring, Borah and Dickinson; opposing Vandenberg and McNary. All four repeated their votes on the move to override the veto.

Wheeler-Rayburn utilities bill, favored by the President: Favoring, Borah and McNary; opposing, Vandenberg and Dickinson.

Social security bill, a New Deal measure: All favored.

NRA extension measure: Opposing, Borah, Vandenberg, and Dickinson; McNary did not vote.

Guffey coal bill, designed by the administration to set up a "little NRA" in the soft coal industry: Opposing, Vandenberg and Borah; Dickinson and McNary did not vote.

World court adherence, urged by the administration: Favoring, Vandenberg and McNary; opposing, Borah and Dickinson.

On the seven measures listed Borah supported the administration three times, opposing four; Vandenberg supported three times, opposing four; Dickinson supported once, opposed four times and twice did not vote, and McNary supported five times, twice abstaining.

CHANGES IN AAA ACT APPROVED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today signed into law the amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment act intended by the New Dealers to bolster the AAA against rough treatment by the Supreme court.

"This legislation," the President said in a formal statement issued upon signing of the amendments, "supplements and strengthens the original Agricultural Adjustment act, enacted May 12, 1933, which unquestionably has been of great value to American farmers. It carries forward the agricultural program on the broad economic basis of the original act.

"The act as a whole will enable the Agricultural Adjustment administration to move forward in its constructive and essential work in behalf of agriculture."

G. O. P. GATHERING DEMANDS RETURN TO CONSTITUTION

Bonus, Monetary Revision Planks Rejected.

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—A plank for immediate payment of the bonus and another favoring revision of the monetary system after a world conference, with inclusion of silver in the currency plan of the United States were rejected by the conference of young Republicans of eleven northwestern states at its final session here today.

These planks and others favoring repeal of the reciprocal tarif treaties and opposition to the AAA were offered by Clarence Hillman of Rexburg, Idaho, as a substitute for the majority resolutions presented by Ames Baggley of Utah. Hillman objected to adjournment of the conference without showing where it stood on vital questions and placing the younger men in the position of waiting for the older leaders to define policies.

These differences of opinion in the resolutions committee followed an all day session at which speeches were made by Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.] and former Gov. Thomas E. Campbell of Arizona.

Fish, assailing the Roosevelt administration, offered an eight point program calling for a return to "representative and constitutional government."

Borah Leads in Poll.

A poll made among conference delegates showed a dominant sentiment for Senator Borah for Republican nominee for President.

The vote in the poll was as follows:

Borah	52	13
Knox	16	14
Vandenberg	3	2
Hoover	1	0
William Allen White	0	1
Gov. Landon	1	9
Nye	0	1
Lowden	1	3
James M. Beck	0	1
McCall	1	0
Dickinson	1	0

Campbell, warning the Republicans not to outdo the Democrats in offering political panaceas, urged a return to fundamentals.

The objection to a bonus plank was led by John M. Hoffman of California, a veteran, who said it had no place in the action of the young Republicans. Thomas Miller of Montana, who severely criticized the administration silver policy, succeeded in getting the currency plank tabled.

Resolutions Adopted.

Another resolution, originally presented by Hillman, opposed the AAA but favored its continuance until the Republican party devised a system that would not include regimentation of the farmer.

The resolutions finally adopted read:

"We, a conference of young Republicans of the intermountain Pacific coast states, do hereby resolve:

"That we call upon all young Republicans to redouble their efforts to organize and to assume their proper place in party councils and call upon the older party leaders to join with us in rehabilitating and revitalizing the Republican party.

"That we return to a representative form of government with both the legislative and judicial branches free from executive interference.

Urge Specific Platform.

"That we recognize that the problems of this country are real and vital and must be solved by a definite program, and we therefore urge the young Republicans to insist upon a party platform of specific constructive and forward looking policies in 1936.

"That we do reaffirm our faith in the fundamental principles of the constitution of the United States of America and call upon the citizens of this country to demand that any proposed change be made in the prescribed constitutional manner.

"That we urge the Republican party to adhere to the principles enunciated by Abraham Lincoln."

LABOR COMMISSIONER REFUSES TO SPEAK IF SENATOR LONG DOES

Long has accepted the invitation.

BOTTLE MAKERS WIN IN BATTLE ON LIQUOR BILL

Sales in Glass Containers Only Approved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The victory of the glass manufacturers in getting through congress the liquor control bill with a provision that liquor be sold in bottles only represents a vast benefit from the New Deal to bottle producers.

This bill was the subject of long controversy between the senate and house, but yesterday the house receded from its demands that bulk sales of liquor be allowed. The surrender of the house to the senate's stand for bottled goods only represents a defeat for the keg and stave interests.

Policies benefiting such groups as glass manufacturers—among numerous others—have meant money in the hands of big stockholders and executives. Dividends have improved, salaries are more healthy, and now and then a few thousand dollars may be plucked from the stock market, as administration policies have sent favored companies' securities kiting in price.

Restriction Part of Law.

The Owens-Illinois Glass company is the largest producer of bottles and the beneficiary of an earlier treasury department order restricting the distribution of whisky to bottled goods. Now this restriction is made part of the law passed by congress and ready for the President's signature.

There are 1,200,000 shares of common stock of Owens-Illinois company outstanding, on which the dividend was increased from $2 in 1933 to $3.25 in 1934. The company's net profit in 1934 was $6,496,395.

None Owns 10 Per Cent.

According to a report filed with the SEC no one owns 10 per cent or more of the Owens-Illinois stock, but reports are that the company is controled by the Solvay-American Investments corporations through the Allied Chemical and Dye corporation.

The largest stockholdings shown on SEC returns are: William S. Wolbridge, 9,800 shares, worth $935,000; Ben F. Hazelton Jr., vice president, 9,100 shares; Fred W. Schwenck, 8,431 shares; Henry F. Atherton, 6,081 shares; W. H. Boshart, 3,800 shares, and Marshall Field, 600 shares.

STUDENT RELIEF REGULATIONS OF NYA ANNOUNCED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.] — Regulations providing not more than $6 a month each to aid needy young people between the ages of 16 and 25 who are unable to attend school because of lack of money for lunches, clothes, and carfare were announced today by the National Youth administration.

Contained in a letter to all state youth directors from Aubrey Williams, executive director of the NYA, the regulations limited payments to the periods of school terms. Youths to be aided must be selected from families on relief on certification made to school authorities by relief authorities. They must also be both willing and able to do high grade school work. Only students carrying three-fourths or more of a regular school program are eligible.

"Careful selection" by school authorities in coöperation with relief authorities is directed by the letter, which also empowers selection of a committee to advise on this work.

All those aided must perform some form of work that would not otherwise be performed, such as "clerical work, library assistance, the checking of students' exercise, etc," the announcement said.

MOVIE PICKETS, POLICE CLASH; 65 ARRESTED

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A clash between police and motion picture theater pickets turned West 42d street into a bedlam tonight.

The outbreaks spread to other sections in the vicinity of Times Square, but after 65 arrests were made the pickets were called off. Several policemen suffered bruises.

Pickets before two theaters off Times Square began mass picketing, crowding pedestrians into the street, and tying up trafic. Police, after a 20 minute struggle, dispersed the group which then reassembled in front of a theater at 46th street and Broadway. Another mêlée with police ensued.

PRESIDENT PICKS L. J. MARTIN AS DIRECTOR OF NRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today appointed L. J. Martin, former compliance director of the NRA, to the post of administrator of the skeletonized "recovery administration."

At the same time the President sought to make sure that the New Deal will have some control over the labor standards of manufacturers and contractors working on government projects. This morning he summoned to the White House a group of representatives and urged them to pass the Walsh bill authorizing requirement of old code standards on government work.

Martin becomes the fifth man to head the NRA. He succeeds James O'Neill, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company, New York, who took over the duties of administrator in order to map out liquidation of the burocracy after the Supreme court decision.

O'Neill returned to private business Aug. 1, when his leave of absence from Guaranty Trust expired.

STRIKERS PLAN CAR PICKETING IN OMAHA AGAIN

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Striking Omaha street car workers—their objective still unreached after more than four months of strife—tonight laid last minute plans to resume picketing Monday at car barns here.

The strikers moved forward with their picketing plans in the face of an ultimatum by Police Chief Robert Samardick that the pickets can expect arrest. Nebraska law forbids picketing and the chief had notified strike leaders that the police will use "whatever force is necessary" to uphold the law.

The strikers, 268 strong, left their jobs with the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company last April with higher wages and shorter hours as their main demands. Picketing was halted by police soon after the strike began. A demonstration parade led to an open clash in the streets and three bloody riots in South Omaha shattered the police ranks.

Two men were killed in the South Omaha fighting and the National Guard was called out to restore order.

WOMAN SAYS SHE 'MIGHT' BE HER SISTER'S SLAYER

Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Detective Capt. Owen M. Murphy said today Mrs. Florence Boykin Dowling admitted she might "have been forced" unknowingly to shoot her sister, Mrs. Gladys Glena Fair, 34, naval board clerk.

Mrs. Fair's body was found in her apartment here Tuesday morning, a bullet through the skull.

Capt. Murphy said Mrs. Dowling, after long questioning, told him a "strange power" sometimes forced her to do things of which she had no recollection later.

"I told her," he said, "that she was possibly facing hanging for the murder of her sister.

"She replied: 'Isn't that strange? Isn't that terrible? Oh, my God, to think that she had to be murdered! To think that I might have been forced to do it!'"

Charges U. S. Relief Funds Aid Communistic Activities

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Charges that federal relief funds distributed here are supporting communistic activities were made today by T. M. Jettet, charity investigator. Jettet said his investigations disclosed that many checks were indorsed over to agents of Soviet News here. State officials are planning a further check to determine the extent of support given communist organizations by relief recipients, Jettet said.

WITNESSES CALLED BACK FOR NEW QUIZ IN TAVERN KILLING

Witnesses to the slaying of Attorney David K. Cochrane Jr., 27 years old, who was shot to death in front of a tavern at 721 East 75th street early Tuesday morning were resummoned to the state's attorney's office yesterday afternoon for further questioning. The action was taken when the latest clew in the killing failed to reveal the identity of the slayer.

John Mulvey, 28 years old, who is on the waiting list for a city fireman's job and who was reported to have represented himself as a policeman in the tavern last May, was questioned by the police. He was released when witnesses said that he was not the man who shot young Cochrane.

Cochrane, son of a prominent attorney, was shot through the head when he attempted to intercede in a fight outside of the tavern. His father yesterday was granted letters of administration in the Probate court for his estate, amounting to $3,500 in real estate and $250 in personal property.

CLAIM BIG LOSS IN $269,000 LAND DEAL WITH PWA

Sale of a 17 acre tract to the federal Public Works administration for $269,000, for use as a site for a proposed $2,500,000 housing project, involved a heavy loss to the owners of the property, Attorney Arthur J. Hughes, counsel for Miss Mary Jane Seng, 401 Lake Park avenue, Wilmette, nominee for the property, said yesterday: The government takes the property clear of all encumbrances at the $269,000 price in the transaction which was confirmed in Washington Friday.

According to Attorney Hughes the property was acquired from the International Harvester company in 1931 for $369,159, of which $150,000 was paid in cash, a mortgage being accepted by the harvester company for the balance. Expenses of purchase and administration, less revenues, have increased to $201,167 the cash investment of the purchasers, said actually to be Frank J. and W. P. Seng, hardware manufacturers.

The face value of the mortgage, $219,159, accrued interest and taxes and other indebtedness as of July 1 left liabilities of $265,605.67 against the property, Attorney Hughes said.

Terms of any possible compromise in which the owners and the harvester company, holders of the mortgage, shared the loss were not revealed.

SEEK INDICTMENT TOMORROW OF 5 IN CLUB MURDER

Probationers Implicated by Pal's Confession.

Indictments against five young gunmen, three of whom are in custody, charging them with the wanton murder of William Barry, 69 years old, watchman at the Hickory Hills Golf club, West 95th street and 87th avenue, Palos township, will be sought before the grand jury tomorrow.

Two of the three gunmen in custody have in recent years been granted probation after having been convicted of crimes less serious than murder, and one of the two was twice the beneficiary of probation. The third gunman is an ex-convict who served 6 years for robbery.

Watchman Dies After Beating.

Barry, the slain watchman, a graduate of Creighton university at Omaha, Neb., and of the law school of Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., died at the Little Company of Mary hospital early Friday, a few hours after he had been beaten by members of a gang of five bandits who broke into the golf club and stole a slot machine.

The three men held and facing indictment are James Whelan, 25 years old, 8005 Calumet avenue; Daniel Slattery, 25 years old, 8142 West 52d street, and Edward Ryder, 25 years old, 7306 South Morgan street. Whelan, according to police, has confessed, implicating Slattery and Ryder as well as two other members of the robber gang who are now being sought.

Hunt Wild Bill Donovan.

One of these was said by Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office to be William [Wild Bill] Donovan, 54 years old, who served 8 years in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., for his part in the $80,000 Evergreen Park mail robbery in 1926. Donovan is also known as Jim Adams and Jim Peters.

Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan announced yesterday that indictments will be sought tomorrow charging the three men in custody and two others with murder. Death in the electric chair will be the penalty sought for all five.

Meanwhile the state's attorney's office and the Chicago Crime commission were investigating the criminal careers of the three in custody and the leniency granted to two of them by Chicago judges. Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the crime commission revealed that Ryder nad twice enjoyed probation.

As "Walter O'Donnell" Ryder was placed on probation in Municipal court following his conviction on a charge of grand larceny. While still on probation he was fined $25 and costs—again in Municipal court—on a charge of assault and battery on Oct. 31, 1932. Also while on probation he was arrested on suspicion on Dec. 19, 1931, and released.

Courts Kind to Ryder.

Despite this record, Judge Harry A. Lewis in the Criminal court on May 23, 1933, again placed Ryder on probation upon his conviction on charges of grand larceny. This trial followed Ryder's indictment for burglary and grand larceny in connection with the burglary of the home of Nathan Fried, 1024 West 63d street, and the robbery of Luke S. McGinty, 6730 South Peoria street. Ryder's probation was extended at the expiration of one year and he was finally released from probation a month ago.

Whelan in 1927 was indicted on 17 charges of robbery and sent to the state reformatory at Pontiac, from which he was released on July 18, 1933.

Slattery was given probation in 1927 when convicted for stealing an automobile and later in the same year was fined $50 and costs for driving while intoxicated. Found not guilty of robbery in 1931 and "no billed" by the grand jury on a similar charge in 1932, he was sentenced to 9 months in the Bridewell in 1933 for petty larceny.

Seek to Indict Other Robbers.

Indictments also will be sought tomorrow against four members of another gang of six confessed bandits who have raided a score of golf clubs in the Chicago areas in recent months. One member of the gang has been turned over to Woodstock, Ill., authorities, another is to be turned over to Aurora authorities, and a seventh man still is being sought.

Michael Derrico, Melrose Park hoodlum, was turned over to Woodstock police last night to face a robbery charge, and George Bougadis will be prosecuted in Aurora for the robbery of a gambling establishment there, Lieut. Charles Egan of the state's attorney's police announced yesterday.

Indictments will be sought against the other members of the gang, Andrew Chemento, Rocco Prano, Michael Moreano, and John Provenzano. All, with the exception of Derrico, have confessed to a number of robberies. They also face federal prosecution under the Dyer motor vehicle theft act.

AID DECLARES THERE IS NO DOUBT HORNER WILL SEEK RE-ELECTION

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24—(AP)—Gov. Henry Horner definitly is a candidate for renomination. Any doubt about what he told the Democratic crowd at the state fair rally this week was dispelled today by his close advisers.

After some speculation that the governor's announcement might have been patterned after Calvin Coolidge's famous "I do not choose to run" statement, Alexander Wilson of Cairo, who is Mr. Horner's administrative assistant, said:

"The governor is a candidate for renomination. He will be renominated and reëlected."

U. S. Soldier Dies as Army Bomber Crashes in Hawaii

HONOLULU, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Army authorities pressed an investigation today into the crash and burning of a bombing plane last night at Luke field, near here, in which one soldier was killed and three other men injured. Private Hicks G. Wilson, 29, of Mills Spring, N. C., was killed.

(ADVERTISMENT)

New Hearing Aid Reduces the Number of Deafened People

Deafness, one of the age-old problems of society, is finding substantial relief in America through the tireless efforts of scientific research. Thousands of deafened people are coming out of self-imposed exile every year with the aid of scientifically constructed hearing aids.

These thousands include many who are successfully employed in fields, where acute hearing is important. Theatre and church services are now placed within the scope of many who were unable to enjoy aural entertainment in any form.

Hearing aids are now so highly developed that impaired hearing is concealed by perfect transmission of sound through instruments so small that they are completely unobtrusive. Probably the most beneficial of these devices is the new Silver Seal Symphonic Acousticon, a bone conduction instrument which can be successfully employed by eight out of ten deafened people.

This scientific hearing aid has met with widespread enthusiasm among the hard of hearing. In some, the eardrums or middle ear organs had lost all their functioning. Now this new method brings sound directly to the hearing nerve detouring impaired parts of the ear.

Free daily demonstrations of the Silver Seal Symphonic Acousticon are being conducted at ACOUSTICON, 180 N. Michigan Blvd., Chicago. Anyone who is deafened is invited to attend, without obligation, or to write Dept. 715 for further details.—Adv.

Gerald Thompson of Peoria, convicted rapist-slayer of Mildred Hallmark, was moved yesterday from a cell on the second floor to one on the first floor of the Joliet penitentiary where he is scheduled to die in the electric chair on Oct. 15. Prison officials explained that the change would give the 26 year old prisoner more light and would reduce the cost of guarding him. His confinement on the second floor necessitated a 24 hour watch while in the new cell he can be guarded by the regular man who watches the prisoners in solitary confinement near by.

JAPAN CLEARS TWO U. S. YOUTHS OF SPY CHARGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 24.—Japanese espionage authorities today cleared two American youths who were sought yesterday for taking photographs of a fortified zone from an American freighter, the Golden Mountain.

The two youths—whose names were given as Philip Maas, a Stanford university graduate, and William Felix—had left the ship before it was detained at the port of Tokuyama and searched.

A small camera and three rolls of film belonging to a member of the crew were found by gendarmes aboard the freighter. They reported that the pictures, although apparently amateurish, were confiscated. The Golden Mountain will be permitted to resume its voyage to Shanghai Monday, it was said.

HITLER DECREES SILENCE AS NEW CENSOR WEAPON

Orders Tongues Hushed to Curb His Critics.

Embarrassment to the all-powerful propaganda ministry because of the publication of figures on sterilizations led to a law forbidding persons appearing before sterilization courts to tell about the verdicts.

In the same way the obligation of silence was imposed upon convicts seeking pardons, apparently in an attempt to control the character and amount of news available to Germans and newspaper correspondents about important cases involving "state enemies."

Redouble Censorship Efforts.

This and other measures—direct censorship of telegraphed messages, banning of foreign publications, and pressure by the propaganda ministry staf on foreign writers, all of which are being invoked increasingly—indicate the redoubling of Nazi censorship efforts.

The purpose is to create a "favorable" press abroad and to sift news at home through the fine Nazi screen of what is "good" or "bad" for the populace to know.

When correspondents are called upon the propaganda ministry carpet the veracity of their reports is secondary to a printed request that they become "friendlier to Germany" and the reminder that "you should not write about so-called sensations here when you have so many in your own country."

63 Foreign Writers Ousted.

At least 63 foreign correspondents have left Germany under some sort of compulsion since the Nazi advent.

Complaints are frequently heard among newspaper men that the difficulty lies not so much in sending dispatches out of Germany—for when censorship is feared regarding the telegraph, other methods of transmission are employed—as in getting the news itself.

And the greatest handicap is the "I don't know" reply that is so frequently given by officials.

Another is the fear of Germans to talk to correspondents.

RIDES BICYCLE 420 MILES

Mrs. John S. Andrews surprised her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clement K. Bennett of Philadelphia, by arriving unexpectedly for a summer visit. She traveled the 420 miles from her home in Kenmore, N. Y., near Buffalo, by bicycle, averaging about 100 miles a day.

92 Degree Heat and Hunger Cause Girl to Collapse

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Virginia Evans, 21, collapsed from the combined effects of heat of 92 degrees and of hunger today.

GERMANY URGES BAN ON JEWS AS AGENTS OF FILMS

Movie Exporters Told to Deal with Aryans.

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The reich film chamber urged a ban upon Jewish agents abroad for German films today as new domestic anti-Semitic restrictions made their appearance.

In a round robin letter the president of the chamber said, "as regards the export of German films I expect every German producer to make every effort to deal abroad with Aryan firms only and to eliminate non-Aryan employés in case he maintains sales organizations abroad."

Strauss' Opera Banned.

Although the Berlin state opera had intended to bring out Richard Strauss' latest opera, "The Silent Woman," here in the coming season, theater circles reported it would not be produced. They expressed belief this was due to objections from Nazi circles to the fact that a Jew, the author Stefan Zweig, wrote the libretto of the opera.

Movie fans attending the première of "Episode" last night were surprised to find the cast of characters did not appear on the screen, as is usual, but was spoken. Men on the inside of the film industry said the reason was that the manuscript was by Walter Reisch, a Jew.

Those who attended the première said Reisch's name was hardly audible and that music made it difficult to be understood.

Bar Jews from Street Cars.

Jews were barred from trolleys today in Madgeburg and at Karschin meat dealers were forced to make deliveries to Jews at night and secretly. In some provincial towns many Jews were reported depending upon mails and freight from Berlin for necessities.

The newspaper Der Angriff, owned by Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, said most commercial inquiry offices in the United States are in Jewish hands.

"That used to be the case in Germany and the rest of Europe," the article said. "In America the best known inquiry offices are in Jewish hands. If today a merchant wants information concerning a possible business partner, say in Singapore, he may be pretty sure that because of international relations, the inquiry will proceed at least once through Jewish hands.

"In the hands of these Jews then at times rest the honor, reputation and standing of German firms and German persons."

Barbers Must Report "Gossip."

Meanwhile barbers and restaurant owners were warned they are liable to arrest and withdrawal of their licenses if they do not immediately report to secret police any "subversive talk" among their customers.

One restaurant keeper at Frankfort was taken into custody for "tolerating conversation hostile to the state" without attempting to put a stop to it or informing authorities.

PRIEST LEADS PARADE OF 180 SINGING NUNS; NAZIS IMPRISON HIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEUNKIRCHEN, Saar Territory, Germany, Aug. 24.—Returning from a pilgrimage to a chapel near Burrweiler, 180 Roman Catholic nuns marched through Herrnsheim singing Catholic songs. Describing this as a "demonstration against local political leaders," the court at Landau sentenced Father Geraldy, who headed the procession, to 20 days in jail and fined him $100. Two nuns were each fined $10.

Montrose Beach Water Carnival Opens Tomorrow

A three day water carnival of the Chicago park district will open tomorrow at the Montrose-Wilson beach. The festival was suggested by George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district, to acquaint people of the north and northwest sides with the new beach facilities. Swimming and diving events and a two mile marathon will feature tomorrow's program. Orphans and underprivileged children will be the guests of the park district and Northwest Side Business Men's association on Tuesday.

ANOTHER HOTEL REFUSES GERMAN SCIENCE MEETING

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A second New York hotel—the Astor—today turned down reservations for the annual convention of the German-American Technologists association Aug. 31. to Sept. 2.

The Hotel New Yorker a week ago conceled convention plans after H. J. Sohn, a member of the technologists group, included German swastika banners in his list of decorations.

The management of the Astor said in a statement that arrangements for the convention "have been canceled" and declined to explain the action.

Rudolf Wilderman, president of the Association of Conservative Scientists previously had denied that possible anti-Nazi rioting might develop during the sessions. He called the New Yorker's fear a "huge joke" and declared his organization included "plenty of Jews."

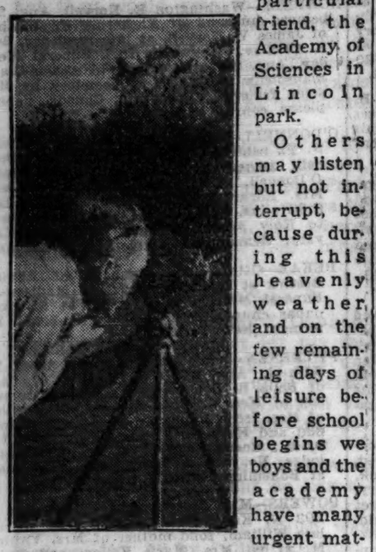
OPEN NATURE'S GREAT SECRETS TO CHICAGO BOYS

Academy of Science Maps Little Expeditions.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

This article is largely personal business between Chicago boys and their particular friend, the Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park.



FRANCIS R. DICKINSON. President, Academy of Sciences, at work.

Others may listen but not interrupt, because during this heavenly weather, and on the few remaining days of leisure before school begins we boys and the academy have many urgent matters on our minds.

To wit:

Where are the best places within an hour or so's ride from the loop—and even nearer—to go bird hunting with a camera? Bloodless hunting this fascinating sport is called. It causes no peril or grief to either the hunter or the hunted and it adds to the sum of human knowledge.

And where are the safest and richest quarries for fossil hunting? Where are the most beautiful fields of wild flowers for botanizers? Girls are especially anxious to get that information and the more they have of it the less they bother us boys in our work.

What of the Dunes?

And what are the celebrated dunes at the southern end of Lake Michigan and how were they made?

Why does a loon cry at night?

Why do fireflies light up?

Which are the poisonous mushrooms? The answer is important because several persons are killed every year in Chicagoland by eating the bad kind. "Seems silly," said Mr. Bailey, director of the academy, "because there are only a few of the poisonous kind, and they are easily told—after we have told you."

And what is a sand dollar?

Most important of all, what are the most direct routes to those interesting things and places by street cars or suburban trains?

All that valuable information the academy has thoroughly in hand and it is any boy's for the asking.

Where to Go; What You'll Find.

As a matter of a fellow's convenience and his speedy getting to work, the academy's prime gift is a free map and finder that tells you precisely where to go and what you will find when you get there. It measures 11 by 16 inches and is very clear as to the map part. The finder on the margins is a treasure. It names 33 places within easy distance of the loop and under each place name are listed from four to thirteen of the things that make it worth a nature lover's while to go there—glacial moraines, stone quarries so deep that fine fossils are to be found, birds and butterflies, rare flowers, water animals and plants, shore cliffs, minerals, land snails, rock gorges, peat bogs, and curious beach formations.

The map covers near-Chicagoland from Dead river, so called because it does not seem to flow, on the north to Joliet on the south, and Dune park and Chesterton on the east, to Aurora on the west. Under each place name is given the quickest electric car or railroad train to it.

How to Make Maps Last.

If you will permit me to say so, the map is just pie for any inquisitive boy and if he pastes it on half a yard of linen he can get from his mother it will last him a year.

The map is supplemented by dozens of vividly illustrated booklets—most of them costing only 10 cents—on birds, on the dunes and their meaning and their wild inhabitants, on mushrooms, and on fossils. Those are not namby-pamby, googly-goo pamphlets in the strain of "Come, dear children, with me and let us view the wonders of God's creation"—the kind of thing that makes a self-respecting boy sick at his stomach—but good, honest, informing booklets that a self-respecting person is glad to add to his nature library along with old Gilbert White's "Natural History of Selborne" and some of Henry Thoreau's writings.

Deep but Easy Reading.

The booklets are the work of the most eminent scientists in Chicago, but they are all in a popular strain. It is not a case of one scientist writing for another scientist, but for the people.

The academy's new bird book—"Birds of the Chicago Region"—runs you into money. It costs 50 cents, but that seems fair enough because it is no mere pamphlet but a substantially bound booklet of 80 pages, with map, index, and pictures by Mr. C. C. Sanborn of the Field museum and Messrs. E. R. Ford and Blair Coursen. All three are leading naturalists of this region. Their book lists 371 Chicagoland species and subspecies of birds, of which 92 are of rare occurrence here, and it mentions every bird recorded in this area from the earliest times of our recording, which means 1852.

But for cheapness the big buy in bird pamphlets at the academy is the 16 page "At Home with the Birds," by Director Bailey himself—ten of its big pages in brilliant color by that genius in color, Mr. Earl Wright of the academy.

Photos That "Talk to You."

And its other pages are adorned with 21 halftones that fairly talk to you. The Regensteiner corporation reproduced Mr. Wright's wonderful colors so successfully that even he, fussy about accuracy though he is, is satisfied. How the academy can afford to sell the book for 10 cents beats me. It would make a lovely greeting at Christmas time for a shut-in.

The 24 page "Mushrooms of the Chicago Region," copiously illustrated, is also outside the 10 cent class. It costs a quarter and is by Dr. V. O. Graham, one of America's leading botanists.

All those brochures are printed on a little Gordon press in the academy's natural history museum in the park and are such work as would delight a master printer.

Now I will tell you how to go about getting your start for the free maps and the 10 cent booklets.

Many Street Cars Go There.

Seems as if all the street cars in town run to the academy's museum on the Clark street side of Lincoln park. Its gray stone building is at the head of Lincoln avenue and Center street if you come from the northwest; at the head of broad Ogden avenue if you come from the southwest, and at the head of Center street if from the west. All north and south Clark street cars pass the door.

When you reach the entrance hall present yourself to Mr. Martin Olsen, retired fireman, now the museum's guard, and tell him what you seek. He is friendly. He will escort you to the library and study room on the right of the entrance and introduce you to either Miss Harsch or Miss Royce. They will give you the free map and finder and discuss with you your particular problem. They are not schoolmarmy but interested and responsive. They will show you the way to the exhibits upstairs and that is a big favor because those exhibits include nearly all the 371 birds in the 50 cent "Birds of the Chicago Region."

Having seen those stuffed birds in the pictorial reproduction of their habitats and having read the very alluring labels on the cases, you won't go blundering around when you sally into the fields and woodlands to study them as they live. You will know what to look for and will recognize it when you find it.

Miss Royce and Miss Harsch will also show you the exhibits of plants in color and arranged according to the seasons in which they bloom, and the very fine exhibits of invertebrate fossils of our region. That last is a big lift for a boy who wishes to go pecking with a hammer in the limestone quarries of the Sag in the west part of the county. They have been dug to a considerable depth and hence provide a good opportunity to fossil hunters.

The long and short of it is that when those two ladies send you with map and finder and pamphlets into the forests and fields it is like going from the beautiful stage drama of wild life in the museum out into the sunshine and to the real thing.

May Hear Words of Great.

Without being intrusive you may have the luck to listen to some of the academy's great men as you wander and wonder through its exhibition halls, for they all are approachable persons and your enthusiasm will be the open sesame to their good will.

You may encounter Mr. John R. Ball, the museum's honorary curator of invertebrate paleontology, who wrote the absorbing 10 cent booklet, "Fossils of the Chicago Region." He can tell you how to hunt fossils safely in Cook county quarries which, what with powder blasts, moving trains, and treacherous gullies, are, as he puts it, "not the safest places in the world"; and he says that a sufficient equipment for a boy geologist is "a 10 cent cold chisel, a hammer with a fairly heavy head, a khaki collecting bag, and some old newspapers for wrapping specimens."

More Chances to Learn.

Or you may meet Lawyer Francis R. Dickinson, president of the academy and a mighty camera hunter of birds. Ask him what is the secret of success in camera hunting and he will reply, "Infinite patience!"

"And our president has it—tireless, tireless patience," says Director Bailey. "Hence his triumphs in a difficult field."

Alfred Marshall Bailey—of the Marshalls of Virginia—has heaps of information for us boys as to our field study of birds, but only three admonitions. They are: "Admire them but do not molest them. . . . Never touch the eggs or the young birds. . . . Do not move quickly, for that frightens the old ones."

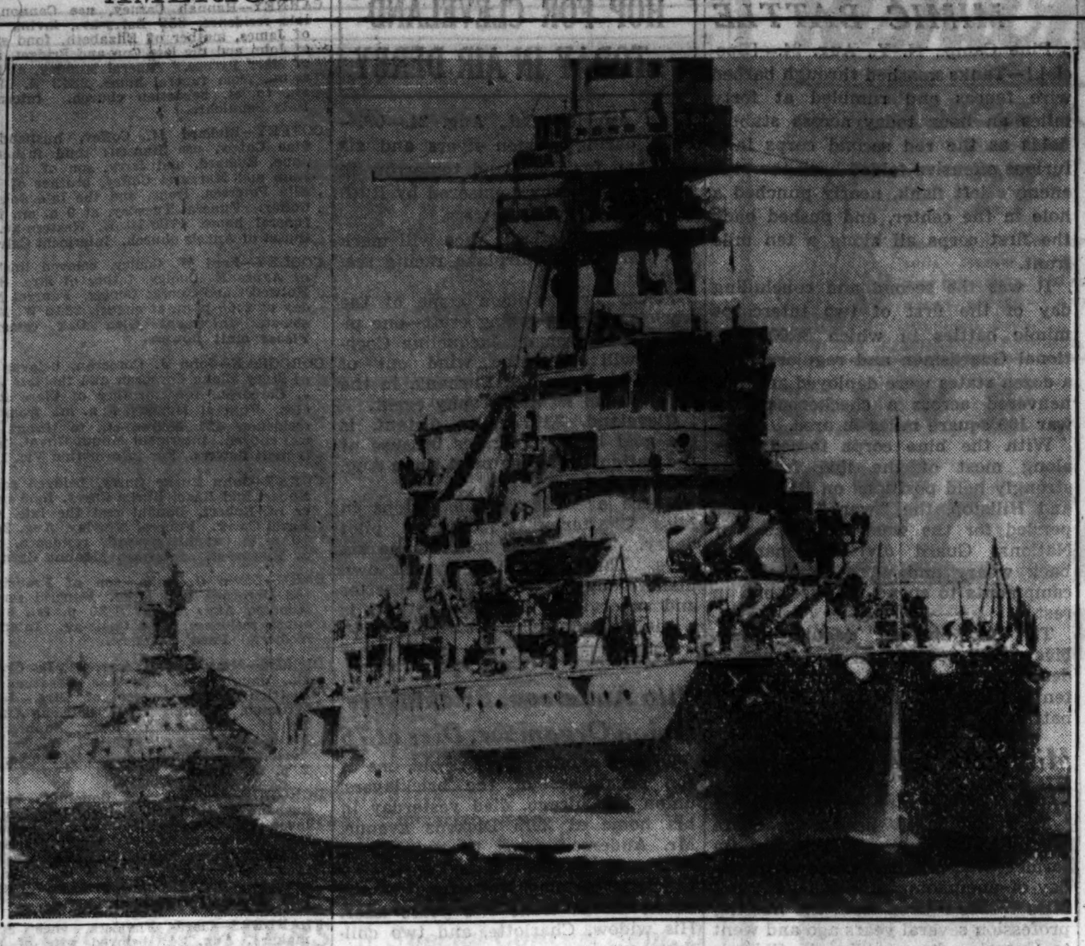
"The Piper of the Dunes."

Before you leave the museum buy—for 10 cents—the director's beautifully illustrated 8 page story entitled, "The Piper of the Dunes"—meaning the piping plover. It is a poignant little drama and, as a specimen of pure literature, worthy of Thoreau.

After your hour or two with Miss Royce and the others you will depart with the feeling that Cook county farm boys, who think they know everything, have nothing on you when it comes to finding the haunts of the strange and lovely wild life of our Chicagoland.

O, yes—why do fireflies light up? Well, you ask them at the museum. There are two answers—both true and both unforgettable.

AMERICAN NAVAL POWER ON PARADE



Led by the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, flagship of the fleet, the combined power of the navy's sea and air forces was paraded off San Diego. Ninety warships and 400 planes participated in the review, which Admiral J. M. Reeves, commander in chief, designated as in honor of the school children of the nation.

VINCENT SHEEAN WEDS DAUGHTER OF BRITISH ACTOR

VIENNA, Aug. 24.—[U.P.]—Vincent Sheean, American author and journalist, and Miss Diana Forbes-Robertson, youngest daughter of the noted British actor, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, were married today at the city hall.

They departed for a honeymoon, the destination of which they declined to divulge.

Sheean, who was a reporter at various times for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and other papers, is the author of "Personal History," a highly sucesstul autobiography. Earlier he was a student at the University of Chicago.

BLAME NEW DEAL GRIP ON STATE IN MIDGET'S ESCAPE

Hold Horner Is "Too Busy Pleasing Washington."

The concentration of the Springfield administration on New Deal legislation to the neglect of other duties was blamed yesterday for the lax conditions at the Joliet penitentiary which enabled Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes, death-dealing bandit who was serving a 10 year to life sentence, to walk out of prison last Aug. 3.

State Senator Earl Searcy of Springfield and Representative Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville united in a statement that if Gov. Horner had paid less attention to "orders" from Washington and more to Illinois affairs Fernekes would still be a convict instead of a free man.

Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet and Representative Elmer Schnackenberg of Chicago joined in the denunciation of the administration for its neglect of state institutions and state business, due to pressure of Washington "must" legislation. State's Attorney Will R. McCabe of Will county voiced the opinion that the escape of Fernekes is chargeable to the indifference of the state administration.

Blamed on Mismanagement.

"Fernekes could not have escaped if Gov. Horner had not been too busy with the New Deal to think of anything else," said Senator Searcy. "That statement applies to other things that have gone wrong in the state. The escape is the natural consequence of mismanagement and I do not blame Warden Frank D. Whipp, who has been shorn of authority.

"Due to changes in personnel under the Horner administration the caliber of the prison guards has decreased. Men familiar with police work should be given those jobs, irrespective of politics. Possibly civil service ought to apply but civil service is dead in Illinois' state affairs."

There is a senate committee and a house committee charged with the duty of visiting penal institutions. The senators and representatives who discussed the Fernekes case said that in the last session these committees had made perfunctory visits to the institutions and if they made reports there was nothing important in what they found or recommended.

"Important Bills Sidetracked."

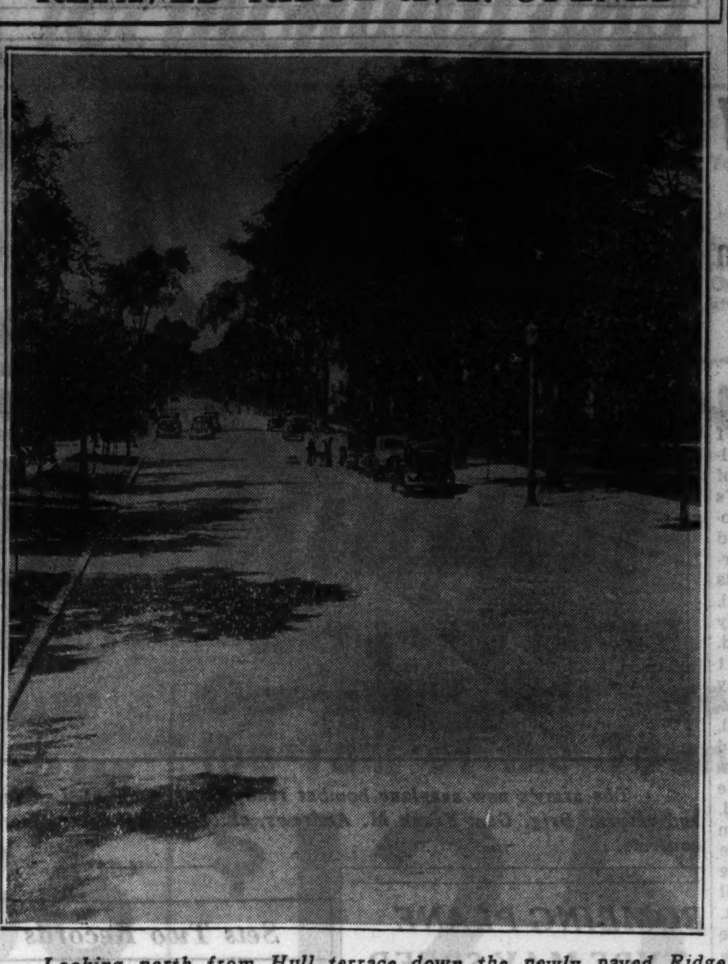
"Not a thing was done in the last session to aid criminal law enforcement," said Representative Lyons. "Washington directed the very life of the Illinois legislature. Important bills were sidetracked to give legislation ordered by Washington the right of way.

"I don't believe we have a governor who really represents Illinois. Mr. Horner has destroyed the sovereignty of the state and rendered Illinois a province of satrapy. I would like to see a comparison of telephone toll charges of calls from Springfield to Washington during this year and other years. I believe this year's bills would be ten times higher.

"I would also like to have the auditor's office make public all expense accounts for trips of state officials to Washington. One committee was laughed out of Washington when it went there to inquire about 'must' legislation."

Prosecutor McCabe said he still is seeking the truth of Fernekes escape. The "Midget" got civilian clothes within the prison and passed through three street doors to the street without question. McCabe voiced a suspicoin of bribery somewhere along the line and he says he expects in time to have evidence which he can present to a grand jury.

REPAVED RIDGE AVE. OPENED



Looking north from Hull terrace down the newly paved Ridge avenue in Evanston, which was opened to trafic yesterday. The new concrete, 36 feet wide, extends 2 1-2 miles from Howard street to Emerson street.

Built with Gas Tax

New concrete paving covering two and a half miles on Ridge avenue in Evanston from Howard street to Emerson street was opened to the public yesterday in ceremonies conducted by Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston. This section of Ridge avenue, part of an important thoroughfare between Chicago and northern points, had been closed to trafic since work on the paving began on June 15. The pavement cost $160,000, the funds coming from state gasoline tax collections. There are eleven trafic lights on the new roadway, set to regulate motor travel at 29 miles an hour.

ALBERTA SOCIAL CREDIT LEAGUE'S VICTORY GROWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 24.—"Investors should have no fear of my government," William A. Aberhart, evangelist and school teacher, whose Social Credit league swept Thursday's Alberta provincial election, said today. The new political party won the contest on its slogan, "$25 a Month for Everybody."

The United Farmers' party, which has ruled Alberta since 1921, was swept from power by the landslide and Aberhart is expected to succeed Premier R. G. Reid.

The party standing in the election was announced as follows:

Social credit elected	47
Liberals elected	4
Conservatives elected	2
Social Credit leading	9
Liberals leading	1
Total seats	63

Two women, Mrs. F. Gostwick and Mrs. W. W. Rogers, won legislative seats in the Social Credit party's victory.

Aberhart, who promises to give every adult bona fide citizen of Alberta $25 a month in "credit dividends," issued the following statement at his home in Calgary:

"Our money is standing absolutely standard.

"Social Credit is determined to maintain the credit of the country at par. There is no better investment in Canada than Alberta bonds at present.

"We have no intention of confiscation or repudiation in any way, shape or form. Our purpose is simply to scientifically distribute the goods and services we have in abundance. No rash or precipitate action will be considered. We will build on a firm foundation."

Funeral services for Dr. Edwin Raymond Le Count, head of the pathology department of Rush Medical college and one of the country's leading pathologists, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Oak Woods cemetery chapel. Later the body will be cremated.

DR. E. R. LE COUNT.

Dr. Le Count died late Friday night at the Presbyterian hospital, where he had been a heart disease patient. He was 67 years old. He had been associated with Rush Medical college ever since he graduated in 1892. He taught classes for many years until he was stricken with a heart ailment. He retained a professorship at the college while studying at Johns Hopkins hospital in 1893 and 1894, and while attending the Pasteur institute in Paris in 1896.

Authority on Skull Fractures.

He was credited with history making work in more than one field of medical science, but it was the expression "Le Count on skull fracture" that commanded the instant and respectful attention of the medical world. He specialized in the treatment of skull fractures for years and is credited with exposing the shocking mishandling of such cases among derelicts, the poor and toilers in rough occupations.

His researches brought him some unpopularity because they exposed ignorance in too many places. He was discharged in 1924 as a coroner's physician on the charge that he performed too many post-mortems on the bodies of persons who were victims of sudden deaths. Oscar Wolff, then coroner, said the relatives of the dead persons complained.

Defended by Medical Leaders.

But leaders in the medical profession instantly sprang to the defense of the knowledge-thirsty physician. His colleagues asserted that during his 18 years as a coroner's physician, Dr. Le Count was known as a most thorough public servant and that his manner of probing sudden deaths was most competent.

Dr. Le Count was an attending pathologist at the Cook county, Presbyterian, St. Luke's, St. Elizabeth's and St. Anthony's hospitals. He was a member of the American Medical association and was once president of the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists. He had offices at 1758 Harrison street.

ARMY GETS NEW BOMBER—A SEAPLANE

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Two of the big commercial airlines —United, and Transcontinental and Western Air—are watching the tests now under way at Wright field, Dayton, O., of the three new bombardment airplanes entered in the army air corps' competition. The commercial operators expect to purchase new equipment within the next twelve months and the performances of the new military airplanes are approximately those the airlines expect to obtain from their new models.

Although officials of the company refuse to make any statement about their plans for the future, it is known that United airlines, at least, is interested in inaugurating a "highball" service from San Francisco to New York City with not more than one stop, presumably at Chicago. They want a big airplane capable of carrying up to forty passengers, which can be flown at economical altitudes at a cruising airspeed at least 50 miles an hour faster than the 170 made today by the Boeing 247-D's.

Find Stops Expensive.

They expect the big new airliners they are seeking to climb up to their cruising altitude, probably from 12,000 to 15,000 feet, where only mild supercharging of cabins is necessary, and fly at that level for hours at a time. Frequent stops with equipment of this type would be uneconomical. The Douglas DC-2's flying today proved that the most efficient way to operate airplanes is to have few stops.

W. A. Patterson, president of United, is now on the west coast. He has been visiting at the Boeing plant in Seattle and he made a close inspection of the Boeing bombardment plane, the 299, before that four motored battle cruiser was flown to Dayton on last Tuesday.

That flight, 2,100 miles made at an average ground speed of 232 miles an hour on 65 per cent of full throttle of the four 750 horse power Hornet engines, proved that this ship as least has the speed and range performance wanted by the airlines.

Second New Plane Slower.

The sleeper airplanes ordered from the Douglas factory by American Airlines, according to the announcement of Friday, are to be very similar to the bomber DB-1 now at Dayton.

The passenger accommodations of these airplanes are expected to range from 25 to 32, depending on the size of the crew and the desired operating range. Because this ship is powered with only two motors, each being an 800 horse power Wright Cyclone, it is expected to be somewhat slower than the Boeing, although no official tests of its speed have been held.

It is in the Douglas that TWA officials are interested. Many of their pilots, officials, and some of the officers of North American Aviation corporation, of which they are a branch, have journeyed to the Douglas plant at Santa Monica to look over partially completed plans for this machine.

Sets Two Records

Flying two laps over a triangular course he failed on the first lap to lower the mark of 157.580 miles an hour for the 1,000 kilometer distance. On the second lap, however, it was unofficially computed that he had broken both the 1,000 and 2,000 kilometer records.

On the first lap Gen. Andrews' big Martin bomber averaged 154½ miles an hour for the 621 mile course. On the second lap, with better wind conditions and lighter load, the bomber averaged 150 miles an hour for the first leg.

RED ARMY BEATS BLUE IN FURIOUS MIMIC BATTLE

Pine Camp., N. Y., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Tanks smashed through barbed wire fences and rumbled at forty miles an hour today across stubble fields as the red second corps in a furious offensive folded back the blue enemy's left flank, nearly punched a hole in the center, and pushed back the first corps all along a ten mile front.

It was the second and concluding day of the first of two intercorps mimic battles in which 36,000 National Guardsmen and regulars from a dozen states were deployed and maneuvered across a checkerboard of war 100 square miles in area.

With the blue corps forced back along most of the line from its strongly held positions on Ridgecrest and Hillstop, the "wars" were suspended for the week-end. The four National Guard divisions marched back weary and worn to their encampments to spend the week-end in rest.

The 1st division, regular army, bivouacked near the ground it had so dearly won, and will remain in pup tents in the field until Monday's battle.

Important Facts about Diseases of Women

There are three major problems in diseases of women which physicians are trying to solve:—cancer, maternal mortality, and sterility.

The most serious of these is cancer of the uterus. Cancer ranks second among causes of death in America—and over 25% of cancers occur in the uterus.

Early diagnosis is possible only by complete examination at least once a year by a specially trained physician.

MATERNAL MORTALITY can be sharply reduced if prospective mothers receive proper medical supervision throughout the full term of pregnancy, and confinement in a well-equipped hospital.

STERILITY may be due to infection or mechanical defect, and to many other causes. Venereal disease (gonorrhea) is often a contributing cause.

COMMISSIONERS PARRY QUESTION ON USE OF FIELD

Delay Constitution Day Action Till Sept. 3.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Three of the four active commissioners of the Chicago park district refused yesterday to say whether or not they would vote to permit Soldiers' field to be the scene of a patriotic demonstration on Sept. 17 in honor of Constitution day. Their replies were in response to telegrams sent to them on Friday by THE TRIBUNE.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the board, replied from Santa Barbara, Cal., where he is on a vacation. Park officials had refused to say where he might be reached, but his whereabouts were learned from other sources.

Delays Decision to Sept. 3.

"My duty to the public," Dunham wired, "and my respect for my fellow commissioners compels me not to express my decision until formal consideration of the application referred to in your telegram at our next meeting, scheduled for Sept. 3."

It was noted that Mr. Dunham's reply would indicate that he has already arrived at a "decision" in respect to the application which was filed on Aug. 12 by Julius H. Miner, general director of the Constitution day celebration.

Commissioner James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, replied as follows:

"I am very sorry that I am not in a position to give you a definite answer on this matter at this time, as the only knowledge I have of same is what I read in THE TRIBUNE this morning. I assure you that at our next meeting I will give the matter every consideration."

Witmanski Favors Delay.

Commissioner Stephen I. Witmanski said: "When the matter is before the board at its next meeting I will make my decision."

Commissioner Harry Joseph was fishing in Manitowish, Wis., and had not replied by last evening.

Martin H. Kennelly, the fifth commissioner, has not been active in board affairs for eight months. "I am not in a position to vote, as I have not attended any meetings of the board since my resignation as a commissioner on Dec. 26, 1934," he said in reply to the Soldiers' field query.

His resignation has never been accepted by the mayor, but Kennelly does not attend meetings.

Apprized of the responses, General Director Miner said: "It is obvious that a celebration of the birth of the constitution of the United States does not appeal to the park board. However, the committee will continue its fight to obtain the use of Soldiers' field. It is a public park and the people are entitled to enjoy it. It is the only stadium in Chicago which would accommodate the crowd of more than 100,000 which we believe will join in the celebration."

Another Difficulty.

In casting about for the next best site for the celebration, General Director Miner has tentatively approached the management of both the Cubs and the Sox baseball parks. But here he has met some difficulty, due to the fact that Father Coughlin, the Detroit radio priest, tried to get the grounds for a meeting of his National Union for Social Justice—as he also tried to obtain Soldiers' field—and was unsuccessful.

A manager of one of the parks wrote Miner that Father Coughlin was refused because "we did not want to involve baseball and politics." It was added, however, that "we do not believe this same thing holds true, of course, for Constitution day but it might be embarrassing."

Participation in the Chicago ceremony by the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution appeared likely through a request from John Henry Kirby of Houston, Tex., chairman of the committee. Miner wrote that the Chicago committee would be glad to have a delegation from the south attend the celebration.

LEGION MEMBERS GATHER IN QUINCY FOR CONVENTION

Expect 10,000 at 17th State Parley.

Housing officials estimated that approximately 10,000 Legionnaires and affiliated delegates had arrived by nightfall.

The first contingent of Legionnaires arrived last night when the Chicago police and firemen arrived. Arrangements have been completed for the reception of Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly of Chicago, who will arrive tomorrow. Mayor Kelly will make his headquarters in the Stillwell mansion, a guest of Newcomb Stillwell.

Both the Chicago mayor and the governor will be on the platform at Quincy High school at the evening session tomorrow.

Today's sessions were largely activities of the Forty and Eight, climaxing tonight with the big box car parade.

Election of officers will be the closing order of business at the convention and will be held Tuesday. By custom the state commander this year will be a downstate man, and four candidates have been announced. All of their workers are busy and hotel lobbies have the appearance of a political gathering. A similar situation prevails in the race for vice commander, alloted to Cook county, where half a dozen candidates are in the field.

Push Hunt for Rustler Slayers of Farm Guard

Handicapped by lack of witnesses or clews, Kankakee county authorities continued their investigation yesterday into the slaying of John Bleivernicht, 21 year old farm hand, shot Friday while on guard against chicken and cattle thieves on the farm of his employer, Charles Eckhoff, near Kankakee. A revival of cattle rustling, brought up to date through use of automobiles and trucks, has been reported by farmers in several Illinois counties, particularly in Will and Grundy counties.

Dancing Masters to Open Convention in City Today

The annual convention of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters will open today in the Congress hotel. Instruction and the introduction of new dance steps are the chief purposes of the convention, which will be attended by dancing masters from all parts of the country.

Special Concert Sept. 8

Climaxing the series of symphonies and band concerts in Grant park that have been in progress nightly since July 1, a special added concert, with three large orchestras playing jointly under the direction of Dr. Frederick Stock, will be held on Sunday, Sept. 8.

This was announced yesterday by James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, who is credited largely with the inauguration of the present series of open air musical treats, sponsored by the Chicago park district.

The musical groups that will be heard in the special concert are the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the Chicago Grand Opera orchestra, and the Woman's Symphony orchestra.

Petrillo said that Dr. Stock is cutting short a European vacation in order to fill the invitation to conduct the combined concert.

Only ten concerts, including tonight's, remain in the current series, Petrillo pointed out. The final performance will be given on the evening of Sept. 3. It will be the 64th concert since the start of the series.

About 1,800,000 persons have attended the open air entertainments, Petrillo estimated.

ANYTHING GOES.

Mr. Basil O'Connor, who was Franklin Roosevelt's law partner for seven years, until 1933, no doubt has a large and lucrative law practice. The full list of his clients and the fees they have paid him may remain a secret until the time comes for congressional investigation of the present administration and its hangers-on. Meanwhile, almost by accident, two of his cases have come to public attention. Senator Black's committee brought out the fact that O'Connor had received $25,000 from Mr. Hopson's Associated Gas for services in connection with corporate reorganization, as Mr. Hopson was careful to point out; and the city of Joliet, Ill., paid him $10,000 for inducing the controler of the currency to give it priority on $48,000 of its deposit in a busted bank.

Mr. O'Connor is obviously a lawyer of versatile talents and his services command substantial fees. No doubt Mr. Roosevelt was mindful of Mr. O'Connor's competence when the firm of Roosevelt & O'Connor was established. Law partners are selected for congeniality of temperament as well as learning and earning capacity. On all counts Mr. O'Connor seems to have qualified.

Mention of Brother Basil brings to mind sundry other lawyers who have prospered under the New Deal. There is Mr. Mullen, former Democratic national committeeman from Nebraska, who acted as lawyer for the Loup river power project in his state and induced honest Harold Ickes to approve it. Mr. Mullen should have been well rewarded for that job because competent engineers regarded the scheme as nutty. Another of Mr. Mullen's clients is Henry Doherty, head of the Cities Service company. The federal trade commission is supposed to be investigating that corporation's activities, but other, and no doubt more pressing, matters have been occupying the commissioners' attention. Meanwhile, Mr. Doherty has been drafted as grand panjandrum of the Roosevelt birthday parties and has been a guest at the White House. He should esteem Mr. Mullen highly.

Mr. Roosevelt goes yachting with his millionaire friend, Vincent Astor, and proceeds to approve a plan to grant enormous cash subsidies to Mr. Astor's shipping companies. About the same time the government waives its claim for penalties on account of the tying up of the Leviathan. Mr. Tom Bragg, the Wall street operator, picks up the New York Shipbuilding company and into its lap fall millions of dollars in contracts for naval construction. Mr. Bragg was a large contributor to the Roosevelt campaign fund in 1932.

The department of agriculture professes to be alarmed at the extent of commodity speculation by government employés with inside information. A law is proposed, but not enacted, to forbid and punish this kind of treachery. Rumors which appear to have much foundation say that certain members of congress are gambling in the commodities about which they are legislating. Senator Smith, chairman of the committee on agriculture, has been investigating the break in the cotton market on March 11. He called upon large merchants to disclose to him their current position. They hemmed and hawed and pleaded that the current position has nothing to do with what happened last March. Their real objection, as revealed in private conversation, is that they fear to entrust government officials with information which might easily be turned to profit.

Insiders of exalted station have taken fat fees for broadcasting and writing magazine articles. So have cabinet members and brain trusters. Their stuff is not worth the time and space it has received and no one knows that better than some of the advertisers who have sponsored it. Competent writers and radio artists, to say nothing of the public, have suffered from this unfair competition, but it has been highly profitable for the insiders and it is not impossible that the sponsors got their money's worth.

Corn Wallace was among the first to turn the New Deal to private profit. He used government money to pay the farmers to decrease their corn acreage, thus increasing the demand for the kind of seed corn which his company had to sell. Mr. Ickes writes for the magazines and plays ball with Mr. Mullen. Mr. Hopkins lectures. So does Sister Perkins. Brother Tugwell lectures and writes books and articles. Prof. Moley has what looks like a fat job editing a magazine for Vincent Astor. A Democratic congressman, Mr. Pettengill of Indiana, calls for an investigation of alleged trading in utility stocks by Brain Truster Corcoran, the White House lobbyist on the utility bill.

The New Deal has been characterized by unexampled squandering of the public's money. Its moral obtuseness is no less characteristic. Those in and close to the government can turn their jobs and their influence to private profit without danger of dismissal or even of reprimand. "Anything goes" is the New Deal's motto.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE ARMY.

Living victims of world war generalship read with pleasure that the First division has used tanks and trucks with great success in recent maneuvers. The English navy forced tanks upon a reluctant army staf, and the Germans, by cutting the railroads into Verdun, compelled the French to use trucks. But neither army used these means willingly or efficiently.

Our own brass hats, determined not to learn anything from the war experience of the allies, were no better.

After the war the experts returned to "the unchangeable principles of war," forgot what few lessons had been forced upon them and developed a phalanx formation for infantry parades.

Erratic Billy Mitchell compelled a recognition that airplanes had come to stay, but Christie, the great designer of tanks, was overwhelmed by the burocrats in the ordnance department.

The enlightenment of the army probably comes from the arrival in positions of authority of officers who were actually in the war and did not get their information as to what transpired from staf officers who in turn got theirs by telephone from observers near the front. It was a temporary colonel, afterward reduced to the rank of major, who got the guns to Soissons by fastening them to the ammunition trucks after the horses were played out.

The news that the First division is now acting upon the discovery it made seventeen years ago is welcome.

Schools and war colleges are obviously desirable, but they were badly abused before the war to create a privileged body of officers whose mastery of history led them to oppose all innovation as endangering their monopoly of high rank.

DEPOSIT INSURANCE.

The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, in its first year of operation, incurred liabilities through the failure of a handful of member banks which amounted to but a tiny percentage of the total premiums collected.

As an actuarial test of the feasibility of the deposit insurance plan that means exactly nothing. The risk involved in deposit insurance during the last year has been approximately that of insuring the convicts in Joliet penitentiary against being struck by automobiles. If anything, the banks have been more successful in keeping their assets off the street than Gov. Horner has been in keeping his convicts at home.

So long as it makes no loans a bank has little chance to make mistakes which would imperil its deposits. The real test of deposit insurance will not come until we have a general economic recovery—not necessarily a repetition of the days of 1929, but at least a situation in which banks throughout the country reënter the field of commercial and industrial financing on a comprehensive scale.

In his annual report to congress Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the FDIC, makes the frank admission that deposit insurance is not a cure for all the ills of the banking system. He also says this:

"By the very fact that the corporation offers security to depositors, the force of local pressure for pursuing sound banking practices seems to be diminished. Pressure of depositors upon closed banks for a rapid and efficient liquidation has been removed, leaving receivers subject chiefly to the pressure of debtors who wish to obtain maximum leniency.

"Losses which were formerly borne by local interests are shifted to the entire banking system. Such changes place responsibilities upon those administering the federal system of deposit insurance which differ from those placed upon other banking authorities. The FDIC insures deposits in 93 per cent of the commercial banks of the country, and its interest in the sound operation of banks is more tangible than what has hitherto existed in any bank supervisory agency."

There seems to be no defect in Mr. Crowley's chain of logic, which, if carried to its conclusion, would end with the plea that if the FDIC is to be responsible for the losses incurred by the banks it should also possess sufficient supervisory power over them to prevent their incurring such losses, so far as is humanly possible.

There remain but two questions: Whether it is possible for a centralized agency to administer the lending policies of the 14,124 insured banks more efficiently than their local officers; and, assuming the first possibility, whether the country wants that centralized control as the price of deposit insurance.

Will Father Coughlin be the next secretary of the treasury?

THINGS LOOK SAFE ENOUGH.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

As the war clouds over Africa grow thicker and thicker and Mussolini's scowl becomes blacker and blacker, speculation increases on the possibility that an Italo-Ethiopian conflict would prove to be the nucleus for another devastating world war. One guess probably is as good as another, but Lloyd's of London is willing to back its guesses with hard money.

That famed agency has manifested considerable shrewdness in its betting in the past and there is therefore quite a little comfort in its opinion that United States participation in another war within a year is an exceedingly remote possibility. The United Press quotes some of the underwriters' latest odds against war within a year as:

Italy and Ethiopia—No rate; war inevitable.

Japan and Russia—Twenty to one.

Invasion of the United States by any power—Five hundred to one.

It is presumed that Lloyd's has discounted all conceivable activities of radical American cartoonists, blathermouthed jingoists, blundering politicians, arrogant tourists, and other disturbers of the peace. And come to think of it, we doubt that there is a level headed American citizen who would bet as much as 25 cents that the United States will be involved in a war this year—even at those odds.

CHOOSING A COLLEGE

BY FRED H. TURNER.

Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Mid-August opens the season for one of America's greatest home sports—that of choosing a college or university.

Over a period of years the controversy which has probably had the most discussion is that of choosing between a large or small institution. Those who favor the small institution cite the fact that the student can really be some one in the small college where he would be lost in the crowd of a big university. They say that the student in the small college can know every other student and can know every faculty member. He will receive far more personal attention than he would in the big university. The educational facilities are just as satisfactory in the small as in the large one, and the opportunities for the student to develop into a social individual are much greater in the smaller type.

But those who favor the big institution answer just as enthusiastically that it is far more important for the student to secure his education in the high speed atmosphere of the big institution, and that it means far more to be some one in a big institution than it does in a smaller college. They will show you the statistical material which indicates that the size of classes is about the same in either large or small colleges, and that the ratio of students to faculty is constant. They will point further to the fact that in the larger institution efficient provision is made to prevent the individual from becoming lost in the crowd. They will indicate that the student can know just as many faculty men and fellow students as he wishes to know, and that the opportunities for making valuable contacts are much greater than in the smaller college. Finally they will point grandly to the number of buildings, the size of the library, and the physical plant with all that goes into making the particular university one of the greatest in the world. Whereupon the booster for the smaller college will ask where you can find a big institution with the inbred loyalty in its graduates which you will find in the graduates of his own little institution.

As usual, both sides are right. There are advantages and disadvantages in both types. The decision should not be based on the question of size alone. There are certain courses which can be taken just as well in one type as the other. There are others which cannot be taught in some of the smaller institutions, and are not taught there.

Another stock controversy is the choice based on how far away from home the student should go for his college work. Perhaps there is a good college or university in the student's home town or within commuting distance. What is the sense of sending the boy or girl away, with the added expense, when he can get his college work and at the same time live at home? The answer to that question is one which affects parents more than students. Too many parents fail to see that there is a great difference between college and high school work. If a college student is doing his work conscientiously he will have just about as much as one person can do in keeping up with his class work. And the student who is living at home and attending a college is likely to find that his parents are expecting him to be available for the same family duties which he carried along as a high school student.

It is true, though, that in the last few years there have been many students able to continue in college who would not have been able to do so if they had been forced to meet the additional expense of going away from home.

Another controversial point has been over the question of sending a student to a college or university in a city or in a suburban or country community. The arguments in favor of the college in the city lean toward the fact that in most cities there are libraries, museums, and institutes, as well as industrial plants for practical demonstrations which are not available in the country communities. The institutions in the country districts can reply to this argument that the well equipped college has library facilities adequate for its needs; that its laboratories and collections are sufficient for its purpose, and that its location is such that the distractions of the city are not constantly thrown before the student.

The sincere student will find that the matter of location in the city or country community will make little difference as far as his studies are concerned. If he has been raised in the country he will benefit from the experience of living in a city; if he has been raised in a city he will find it a very enlightening experience to go to a college in a smaller community.

The choice between colleges and universities of co-educational and nonco-educational policies is another one which has given parents great concern. There are the advantages in the segregated types—all girls or all boys—of having the distracting opposite sex absent, leaving the students free from their influences.

The fact remains for the other side of the argument that the association of the two sexes has gone on up to college time and will go on after college graduation. Why make an abnormal break in these relations at a most impressionable and important time in the student's life? Parents will do well to study their children carefully, for some will benefit more from the associations with all of their own sex for a time, where others will benefit more from the mixed group.

Location from the standpoint of climate may also have an important bearing on the choice of a college. The family physician can aid in answering the question. There are a number of other practical considerations which should enter into the controversy. What about the costs? The tuition varies so greatly that cost must enter into the choice. Living expenses vary to an unbelievable extent. Opportunities to work for self-support are available at some institutions which are not possible at others.

There are many intangible elements which enter into such choices. Certain families have always attended a particular college and feel that as a matter of tradition their children would have to register there. Students start going to a certain university from a particular community and it becomes "the thing to do" in that community.

Some of these controversies are important, while others are of little import. The questions which the student should answer in making his decision to attend a particular college or university should include:

1. Does the institution provide the course or curriculum for which I wish to register?
2. What is the rating of its faculty in the field in which I am most interested?
3. What are its laboratory and library facilities in relation to my particular field?
4. If I have not decided on a particular curriculum, does it provide a good general curriculum?
5. Can I see my way clear in the matter of financing my way through the particular institution?
6. What is the general reputation of the graduates of the institution in the matter of finding positions after graduation?

These are the most important questions; the matters of large and small, co-educational or not, city versus country, and the intangibles of atmosphere, tradition, and sentiment, while worthy of consideration, should take second place in the decision.

FAINTING OR SYNCOPE.

Any type of collapse is an alarming symptom, particularly if the patient loses consciousness. Fortunately most attacks of fainting or swooning are temporary in nature and are not attended with special significance.

What happens when an individual faints or swoons? Regardless of the other factors that may be involved, something has brought on an anemia of the brain, or a sharp drop in the amount of blood supplied to it. It has been pointed out repeatedly that the several functions of the body are closely related. For example, the nervous system can influence the circulation, and if this is thrown out of balance a fainting attack may ensue.

The symptoms vary with the individual and there may be little warning that an attack is impending. With most persons, however, collapse is preceded by certain definite signs. The room becomes dark, objects are obscured, cold perspiration breaks out on the forehead, and there is a feeling of nausea or emptiness in the stomach and abdomen. If one can obtain a glass of cool water, or move to a cool, fresh atmosphere, the sensations may pass. Again, if an individual feels a fainting attack coming on, the normal balance of circulation may be restored by bending forward with the head low, squeezing the abdomen against the knees.

During an attack we know that the individual is pale—that is, the skin area is well-nigh bloodless, and W. B. Cannon has shown that the vessels of the abdominal area are correspondingly engorged. The reason that the skin is drained of its blood supply is that the tiny muscles surrounding the blood vessels have squeezed them until they are practically empty.

When fainting occurs, unless a trained person is present, there is usually great excitement, and numerous useless procedures are undertaken. There is today the same reaction on the part of the public as there was in Bunyan's time [1684], namely, to give something. In "Pilgrim's Progress" Bunyan wrote: "Fetch something and give it Mercy . . . to stay her fainting."

Simple measures are often the best. The patient should be placed in a reclining posture, if possible with the head lower than the body. The collar and constricting bands of clothing should be loosened. A dash of cold water or a whiff of ammonia is about all that will be needed. Sometimes vigorous rubbing of the skin will help. No attempt should be made to give liquids by mouth; the patient may be unable to swallow, and hence fluid may reach the lungs with disastrous effects. Naturally the individual needs air, and crowding about a prostrate person is not in the slightest degree helpful.

Slight stimuli may initiate a fainting attack, such as going without breakfast, an unusual or unpleasant sight, foul odors, etc. Dressmakers have learned that they must not keep their patrons standing too long in one position. Overheated air interferes with the proper oxygenation of the blood, and may be a factor. A stalwart, physically perfect man may faint at the prick of a needle. On the other hand, this same individual may deliver an address before an audience of thousands, the very thought of which would strike terror to many.

When fainting occurs as an incidental matter it usually can be traced to some avoidable cause such as those noted above; but when it occurs frequently, a careful investigation of the general health of the individual should be made. The basis may lie in the heart or the nervous system, or in some metabolic or glandular disturbance.

There are many types of unconsciousness that must not be confused with simple fainting: Apoplexy, uremia, diabetic coma, heart-block, and epilepsy. If the unconscious person is not readily revived by the routine means suggested, some one of these more serious conditions may be responsible. A physician should be called promptly, or the patient removed without delay to the nearest hospital.

WATER DRINKING OVERDONE.

G. B. W. writes: I recently read some hot weather rules, one of which recommended drinking lots of water. A friend of mine contradicts this, saying that one can drink too much water in warm weather. He claims that one sweats too much then, and that the kidneys do not get enough work.

Another thing: I have often heard it said that one should not drink water, much less very cold water, with meals.

If thirst is a natural desire for water, I surely have it when I eat, in weather such as we have been having this summer. I drink about two glasses of cold water with my dinner, and perhaps a cup or so of coffee as well. I am past 60, and so far as I know haven't a thing the matter with me. Why, then, should I deprive myself of cold drinks with meals when I crave them? I know all about needing gastric juice to mix with saliva, and chewing food well. But if this saliva is so necessary for digestion, why are soups, bread and milk, bread puddings, and other nonchewable foods so healthy? How much saliva do they get without chewing?

REPLY.

Water drinking is greatly overdone, and in some quarters is little more than a fad.

Some years ago it became popular not to drink water with meals. This was carefully investigated by Hawk, a distinguished biological chemist, who showed that there was very little difference in the digestion of foods whether water was used with meals or not; that is, water drinking with meals is not contraindicated.

What I protest against is the forced drinking of water—6 or 8 glasses daily, in addition to the requirements dictated by normal thirst. This practice loads the circulation with additional fluid that is not needed.

The rôle of saliva is relatively unimportant. The secretion of this fluid is largely to assist the grinding of food. Fibers are broken up with greater ease when they are moist.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—The Rotonde, famous old café on the Boulevard Montparnasse, meeting place of artists, writers and revolutionaries of all lands, is on its last legs. The bar is still open, and there are some rows of chairs on its terrace, but the place has been deserted this many a day.

Many an American will regret the passing of the Rotonde. They came to it by the hundreds after the war, in the days of the great gold rush and of the great thirst. Some said they wanted to be painters or to cultivate their voices or to write the great American novel. The majority contented themselves with playing bohemian.

In November, 1929, came the deluge and they left in shoals. Few of them have returned and there have been no new bohemians to take their places.

Before the war the Rotonde was a simple little bar at the corner of the Boulevard Montparnasse and the Boulevard Raspail. Its celebrity began about 1900, when artists began deserting the hill of Montmartre in north Paris and crossed the river to the left bank of the Seine.

With them came the revolutionaries—unhorsed generals from South American republics, anarchists from Spain and Italy, conspirators against the comic opera dynasties of the Balkans. But in this crowd the place of honor for their numbers, daring, and eloquence went to the Russians.

Chief of the bolsheviks on the terrace in days before 1914 was Leon Trotzky. Occasionally he would be visited by a fellow bolshevik, short, bald headed and blinking. That was Ulianov, alias Josef Lenin.

The war was for the Rotonde, as for everything else in Europe, a line of demarcation. On one day students and conspirators from all nations had been drinking and laughing together; a few days later they were shooting at each other. A few came back, more or less damaged. The conspirators were either dead in the cataclysm or had succeeded.

But by 1919 the great rush of American tourists had started, and the Rotonde took on new life. There came also a miscellaneous horde of people from all corners of the world, the refugees and the disinherited.

Out of this crowd came new celebrities—Utrillo, the mad painter, swimming out of waves of imitation absinthe; Van Dongen, now the most renowned portrait painter in Paris, or perhaps in the world, and the Japanese Foujita, then just one more terrace sitter, but presently to be publicized into an international celebrity, exhibiting his studies of cats from New York to Tokio.

One man greater than any of them used to be seen once in a while on the terrace of the Rotonde whenever any kind soul would buy him the drink which his flat purse could not afford. That was Modigliani, who was to die in utter poverty and whose canvases now bring from $3,000 to $8,000. He gave two of them to M. Gaston, the Rotonde's manager, probably for coffee and rolls.

Also on the terrace of the Rotonde, and a favorite among Americans, was the artist's model, Kiki. She was the cause of a minor tumult in which the principals were Americans. There was a row and the management of the Rotonde took sides against Kiki. It put her out roughly. The Americans championed Kiki. And they "crossed the street" to the Dome café with all the solemnity of a British M. P. "crossing the aile" when he deserts his party. All the Americans swore to transfer allegiance from the Rotonde to the Dome.

From that time on the Dome became the favorite gathering place for Americans. There followed the boom which made the Dome into a huge bedlam with two bars, and carried its name around the world.

The Rotonde still had a big clientele. In those bonanza years there was room enough, and pelf enough, for every one. But with 1930 came the end.

The new glittering Rotonde was opened with a riotous party on Christmas eve of 1921, when the management all night long poured out free champagne to any one who could get it.

That and all the other gay parties are memories. The Rotonde as it was, either before or after the war, cannot be revived. It was a state of mind, a way of living, a conjuncture of spiritual, social, and economic circumstances.

CITIZENS IF BORN IN U. S.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Will you please tell me whether a child born in America of alien parents is an American by birth or if he is considered a foreigner until his parents become naturalized citizens?

2. Is the law the same in all states?

A. B.

1. All children born in this country and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States under the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States.

2. See answer to 1.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Immigration and Naturalization.

THE HORSES GOT THE FLOWERS.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—A dairy in our neighborhood offers a trying experience to the residents. Wagons are parked in the alley so that we cannot use our garages. We cannot have a flower near the fence because the horses destroy them. This has been going on for many years. What can be done to stop this nuisance? W. W.

The manager of the dairy has been interviewed and he has given assurance that the condition complained of had been rectified and that there would be no further cause for complaint at this place.

JAMES P. ALLMAN,
Commissioner, Chicago Police Department.

WAGE CLAIM.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me how to collect back salary owed me since March of this year? I have tried but all I get is promises. S. H.

The Illinois statute authorizes recovery of attorney fees on wage claims. Presumably it was the purpose of the legislature that the fees so allowed should be sufficient to enable the claimants to employ counsel, but in practice the courts have often allowed inadequate fees or none at all so that many attorneys ask for pay in advance. The legal aid bureau of the United Charities, in deserving cases, assists those who are unable to employ an attorney.

BRIEF INTRODUCTION TO FLORIDA.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 15.—We moved down here this summer. Folks said "Don't do it, you'll roast." But, though it is as hot as an old maid's kiss in the sun, it is always cool in the shade, and the nights are cool. Usually we have to sleep under covers—a thing we seldom did in July and August in Illinois. Eggs are 45 cents a dozen, bacon 45 cents a pound for first class brands. Watermelons 10 to 30 cents. Florida oranges 10 to 20 cents a dozen, grapefruit just a little bit more. Milk is 12 cents a quart. Electricity is 10 cents for the first 25 kilowats, 6 cents for the next 50, 3 cents for the next 100, and 2 cents for succeeding 100s.

A "homestead," any place you make your home, valued up to $5,000, is state tax free. There is a small city or bond tax in Tampa. The place we live in, a six room stucco house, would cost about $6,000 up north. It has a city tax this year of about $20, though they say there will be none at all next year. And there is no sales tax. Gasoline is 19 cents for regular gas. Florida is on the up. It is a great place to live. People catch fish from the bridges, the docks, or go out in boats for the big ones. They shoot deer with shotguns; and I am told there is plenty of quail and duck shooting in season. ED CHENETTE.

CARPET BAGGERS IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Why has it never occurred to THE TRIBUNE to publish an editorial with regard to the bringing in by this administration of hundreds of people from Washington to run the offices of the HOLC and probably the PWA, etc., etc., in Chicago?

If the situation weren't so pathetic it would be very funny to see the young upstarts with no experience in business whatsoever as heads of departments, while older, more experienced, and much more capable citizens of this city are doing all the difficult and mean tasks at one-quarter the salaries.

The politicians in such states as California and a few of the other western states wouldn't stand for this influx of would-be brain trusters and would insist that these jobs be given to their own citizens. What's wrong with Illinois?

SUCKER.

CHEER UP, SONNY.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—It doesn't seem to me that in the future we youth have anything to hope for. Our heritage, this country, with its economic structure sadly outmoded, its political system in the hands of crackpots, is but an empty shell. If through the grace of God we succeed in overcoming these great obstacles and rebuild from the ruins a new United States, perhaps this depression will have taught us to include political education of youth in the curriculum of our schools. ROBERT W. GROTH.

HE'S 15 DAYS TOO YOUNG.

Not contaminated by association with the politicians of either party, young, aggressive, honest, with sufficient close contact with big business to understand its problems—a national hero—Col. Lindbergh looms up impressively as a presidential possibility when compared to windbags of the Borah and Hoover type.

G. G. H.

FROM A PRINTER.

Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 13.—Permit me, as a printer of more than half a century in the game (as well as a regular reader of THE TRIBUNE for many years), to congratulate you on your dandy new dress. It's fine. In fact, the difference is almost that between six point and eight point—or nonpareil and brevier, as we used to say. W. C. BAILEY.

PRESIDENTIAL ORIGINS.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 18.—If it were true, as "Hoover Victim" suggests, that the Republicans went to England for a President, was it not preferable to the Democratic plan of going to Russia?

C. M. B.

FOR ROOSEVELT; AGAINST THE CONSTITUTION.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Although it is generally conceded that you do not print an opinion unless it coincides with your own, I am taking the liberty of disagreeing with you and your principles.

It is evident that any nincompoop who can wheedle a silly slogan out of his head, belittling the administration, finds favor in your columns.

You know as well as I do that for the first time in a long while we have a man in the White House who has the courage of his convictions and the welfare of his people at heart, and keeps these ideals foremost in each and every thing he does.

Thank God we have somebody who does not periodically and spasmodically recite in a toneless and vapid voice the forlorn hope that "recovery is just around the corner."

You make quite a to-do about guarding and preserving the sanctity of the constitution. What good, may I ask, is an antiquated and outmoded code of ethics and regulations written for the benefit of mule skinners, trappers, and candle merchants? What real reason is there for adhering to this foolscap, as you blatantly advocate? This is a day of progress and achievement. You would not attempt to regulate industry and development by a code of ethics printed the same time as the constitution, but you insist that our social and political life should be hampered by such rot.

Here's to a real man, Roosevelt, and the promise that he will carry 36 to 40 states in reëlection. JAMES S. BROWN.

FAIRNESS TO GOV. HORNER.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—I very seldom read THE TRIBUNE editorials any more because I do not approve of the panning they have given the administration, but seeing Gov. Horner's name as the headline I ventured to see what THE TRIBUNE had to say. I want to congratulate THE TRIBUNE on its fairness to Mr. Horner, and whether Mr. Horner is our next governor or not I think it is disgraceful to hear people pan the governor when he has made one of the very best that Illinois ever had. He supported the New Deal, as he had a right to do. If Mr. Kelly puts up Michael Igoe are they going to double-cross President Roosevelt? If Gov. Horner is not our next governor Illinois will see a Republican elected, because Igoe hasn't the following to make him governor.

MRS. J. TEISER.

KICK BACK.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The NRA, with its minimum wages, had a strong tendency to place all employment on the minimum wage basis. The new Social Security act with old age pensions, whereby the employer is required to pay 3 per cent, may lead employers to hesitate greatly about raising salaries because every time they raise a salary they would penalize themselves with a 3 per cent tax on the amount of the raise.

FRANK MORLING.

FROZEN MEN.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—We can't understand why this doctor out in California has to take a perfectly normal and healthy man and freeze the poor chap to death when he can wait until next winter and go under Wacker drive any cold night and try and "bring 'em back alive" and any of them will have seventeen assorted ailments he would appreciate getting rid of.

MORRISON DEATH CLEW HANGS ON BALLISTICS TEST

Killer Gang Held Here for Scientists' Report.

Suspicion of the murder of Kenneth A. Morrison, assistant controler of the Chicago park district, clung yesterday to three prisoners who have confessed 500 robberies here and one holdup killing in Cleveland. Pending ballistics tests of a .32 caliber Harrington and Richardson revolver found on one of the prisoners extradition of the men to Cleveland was delayed. It was with a revolver of this make and caliber that Morrison was slain the night of Aug. 13.

The prisoners are Donald Eberle, 30 years old; John Pleyer, 28 years old, and Charles Gordon, 36 years old. Miss Helen Harman, 19 years old, unwed mother of a 2 year old boy, and sweetheart of Eberle, who confessed being with Eberle and Pleyer when they killed Alex Wesocki Jr., in Cleveland on April 11, was turned over to Cleveland police yesterday.

All Depends on Gun Test.

Capt. Andrew Barry of the Hudson avenue station, and Assistant State's Attorney John S. Boyle, who have spent ten days investigating the Morrison murder have reached the belief he was killed by robbers, say the revolver test will either incriminate or eliminate the Eberle gang.

If test bullets fired from the revolver found in Eberle's flat at 4596 Lake Park avenue bear the same markings as the bullets taken from Morrison's bod- the case will be solved, they said. The tests will be made as swiftly as possible, probably tomorrow, said Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan.

Eberle and Pleyer admit the Cleveland murder but deny knowledge of the Morrison slaying. Gordon, who lives at 1001 North Clark street, was seized after the arrest of Eberle, Pleyer, and Miss Harman, and is not implicated in the Cleveland killing, but besides being held as a possible accomplice in the Morrison death, he was to be viewed by witnesses to the slaying of David K. Cochrane Jr., last Tuesday.

No Clew to Motive.

Nothing in the data on the life of Morrison obtained so far has indicated a motive for his murder, Capt. Barry said. The park official had several women friends and was believed to have spent some time and money with them, but had no trouble with any men, he added.

Mrs. Ethelwyne Dale Morrison, widow of the slain man, was granted control of his estate, appraised at $10,000 in personal property and no real estate, by the Probate court yesterday.

In addition to Mrs. Morrison, three children by a former marriage, Donald Edgar, 20 years old, Mary Alyce, 18, and Allen Murray, 11, were named as legal heirs.

JAIL NEW YORKER IN MILWAUKEE IN $473,000 FRAUDS

Peterson's schemes are alleged to have lost New Yorkers $473,000 and Milwaukeeans about $40,000. He was arrested by detectives in his automobile.

A woman, who said she was Peterson's wife, entered police headquarters shortly after Peterson's arrest and asked to see him. Peterson said: "Strange as it may sound, I was on my way back to New York to clear up that matter when I was arrested. You are often convicted before you are tried."

New York authorities said Peterson is charged with receiving money from wealthy persons, most of them women, for stock market operations. They are said to have been promised huge Pyramiding profits.

JAP SCIENTISTS CALLED TO FIGHT SLEEP SICKNESS

TOKIO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Many of Japan's most eminent scientists and physicians were mobilized today to search for the causes of, and means of fighting, the epidemic of sleeping sickness which in the last few days has swept over the central and western prefectures.

The number of cases throughout the country was estimated at more than 600 and the number of deaths at half that figure, although statistics were incomplete and conflicting. In the Tokio area seventy-eight victims were reported and scores of fresh cases were reported from Hyogo, Osaka, Shizuoka, and Fukuoka prefectures.

Although Japan suffered a similar scourge in 1924 when there were more than 6,000 cases reported, and again in 1929, medical authorities said that they were ignorant of the causes of the disease and knew only that it appeared to come with the midsummer heat.

6 GUNMEN ROB OFFICE OF $1,500 IN TAX RECEIPTS

Bind 7 During Raid in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—In a bold daylight robbery in downtown Philadelphia six robbers today entered the office of the state department of revenue a few blocks from the city hall and fled with $1,500 in tax receipts after binding seven men.

The bandits were flashing pistols as they stepped briskly into the office. Ella Cummings, only woman in the place, was standing near the safe, the door of which was open. They ordered her to lie on the floor with the seven men but did not bind her when she said she was "too scared to move."

While two of the gunmen tied up six employés and a salesman with cord they had brought with them, two others stood guard at the door and another pair searched the safe. The tax receipts were in packages preparatory to being sent to Harrisburg.

Robbers Work Swiftly.

The robbery was committed so swiftly that the bandits were gone in about three or four minutes after they had tied up their victims. As the office is on the second floor and it took some time for the men to untie their bonds, they did not see the gunmen's street flight from the scene.

As the gunmen left they warned the men not to make an outcry or to get up for five minutes. About ten minutes later Robert J. Fitzgerald, office supervisor, returned from the city hall and helped free them.

Miss Cummings still was nervous when she gave her account of the robbery to police.

Gunmen Peril Woman.

"I was putting away some of our rubber stamps at the time," she said. "I was told to lie down on the floor and there was nothing for me to do but to obey.

"They pointed revolvers at me. The money was on a table just outside the safe. We had just wrapped it up in packages to send to Harrisburg."

WITNESS IN HALL, MILLS MURDER CASE DIVORCED

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Ghosts from the still unsolved murder mystery—the 13 year old Hall-Mills case—walked in New Jersey today. Ralph V. M. Gorsline, former church vestryman, received a final decree of divorce as an aftermath of his nocturnal adventures with a girl in De Russey's lane.

While Gorsline and Catherine Rastall Lingeree sat in an automobile with the lights out, the shots that snuffed out their pastor, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and his pretty choir singer inamorata, Mrs. Eleanor C. Mills, were fired only 700 feet away. Afterward Gorsline said:

"I was so close to the shooting that, if I had turned on my lights, I could have seen who was there."

This proximity to the murder spot turned the spare and taciturn Gorsline from a quiet blueing manufacturer with a weakness for women into one of the most spotlighted figures in a police investigation that covered years.

It was this publicity that led Mrs. Helen Brower Gorsline of Lewellyn place, New Brunswick, to desert her husband, according to the manufacturer's allegations. He said his wife charged that the notoriety into which they were plunged when Gorsline became a witness in the 1926 murder trial had blighted her life.

POTATO CONTROL PROMISES HIGHER PRICES TO PUBLIC

U. S. to Butt In if Farmer Swaps 5 Bu. Over Fence.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Consumers will pay more for potatoes within a few months if Agricultural Adjustment administration officials are successful in carrying out the provisions of the new amendment to their act. The purpose of the legislation, passed recently by the senate and house of representatives, is to slash millions of bushels off the 1936 crop and get higher prices for farmers by forcing up retail costs due to scarcity.

Farmers who produce corn, wheat, hogs, cotton and tobacco under the government's restricted production program have been given a jolt by the potato law. These producers will not be allowed to use their idle acres in growing potatoes for sale.

Affects 5 Bushel Crop.

Any farmer who produces and tries to sell more than 300 pounds [five bushels] of potatoes will come under the compulsory "sales allotment" plan. This scheme of controling potato production is to be used instead of the production allotment system applied to some of the other crops now regulated by the government.

The new law will not apply to potatoes now growing but will become effective on crops harvested after Dec. 10.

When the new crop begins to move farmers will not be allowed to swap potatoes for corn or apples or any other product grown by a neighbor if more than five bushels of potatoes are involved. Farmers will not be limited on the amount of potatoes they grow or on the number of bushels their family may eat. But when they try to sell or barter them the government men will step in.

The Allotment System.

The secretary of agriculture is directed by the law to determine the desired quantity of potatoes to be marketed in any one crop year and this figure will be used in allotting [by complicated calculations based on past production figures] to states and by states to individual growers.

Men familiar with the plan expect the aggregate quota figure to be somewhere in the neighborhood of 210,000,000 bushels of potatoes, aiming at a price of 85 cents a bushel [60 pounds]. Last year there were 385,000,000 bushels of potatoes produced in this country and 325,000,000 bushels in 1933.

How It Works Out.

Under the new AAA potato amendment a grower may sell his allotment of potatoes without paying a tax to the government, but each container must bear a tax exempt stamp. If he sells more than his quota he must pay a tax of 75 cents a hundred pounds, ¾ of a cent a pound. A tax stamp must be on each container of potatoes sold over and above the quota. For example, if a grower's sales quota is 1,000 bushels and he brings to market 2,000 bushels he must have tax exempt stamps on half the potatoes and tax stamps on the other half.

After the potato law has been in operation one year growers will have an opportunity to vote in a referendum on whether or not they want to continue with the plan.

J. B. Hutson is expected to administer the potato amendment.

Applications for a federal grant of $542,123 to employ 705 men on a ten month survey of city streets, and another of $11,290 for the rehabilitation of the Illinois Eye and Ear infirmary, 904 Adams street, were approved yesterday by Ralph H. Burke, deputy state director for the federal Works Progress administration, and forwarded to Washington.

The street survey will include a study of the condition of pavement, curbs, walks, gutters, and sewers and will be the basis for a permanent record for the city bureau of streets.

With ten other applications for various downstate projects, the plans forwarded to Washington call for the expenditure of $679,863 in WPA funds and $45,237 in funds of sponsoring governmental units. For the street survey the city would provide $11,300 and for the rehabilitation of the infirmary $3,469. A total of 1,395 men would be given employment for from two to twelve months on the various projects approved.

Officials declared it appeared unlikely that WPA will be able to arrange a project which would provide work for unemployed lawyers, as proposed at a meeting of lawyers Friday night. It was declared by WPA officials that there are so few lawyers receiving poor relief, and hence eligible for WPA employment, that such a project would not be practicable.

GIRL BABY WINS FIRST PLACE IN CONTEST AT FAIR

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Donna Carolyn Eagle of Pittsfield, with a rating of 99.8 per cent, is the winner of the 1935 Illinois state fair's better babies conference.

Her parents will receive the governor's cup, annually awarded the parents of the child between 1 and 5 years of age who scores the highest.

John Young III. of Riverton, who scored 99.5, was the highest placed boy.

Although the sweepstakes were won by Donna and John, the highest scoring child of the 784 examined was Carolyn Louise Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Campbell of New Berlin, who was not eligible for the awards because she is above the age limit.

Seven years old, Carolyn Louise was pronounced perfect after she had been reëxamined by physicians, dentists, and psychologists.

TWO POLICEMEN AWARDED HERO PRIZE FOR JULY

Shot It Out with Four Armed Bandits.

Two policemen in plain clothes and off duty, who did not hesitate to open a gun battle with four bandits who had killed one man in an attempt to clear a path of escape, won THE TRIBUNE hero award of $100 each for July. The policemen, Franklin H. Smith and James Frawley of the detective bureau, killed one bandit and captured a second. The men who escaped are now sought.

Smith and Frawley had finished a day's work at the detective bureau, 11th and State streets, and they were in the North Western station awaiting their trains for home when they heard shots and screams near the door of the Liggett drug store in the station.

Bandits Open Fire.

The robbers, who had slugged Louis Herzig, assistant night manager of the store, stolen $125, and shot to death Daniel Haskell, an elevator operator in the station, charged through the entrance near Frawley, and opened fire on the policeman. He returned their shots, but was himself dropped by a bullet which struck his face just below the left nostril, splintering his jaw.

Smith heard the shots and rushed to the aid of Frawley. He shot one gunman and captured a second as the two others escaped through the Madison street entrance of the station. He then summoned aid for Frawley.

Patrolman Frawley was taken to the Mother Cabrini hospital where it was found that the bandit's bullet had shattered his jaw and emerged just below his ear. He was given small chance for recovery. The wounded bandit, found to be Sam Manno, 825 South Marshfield avenue, who had been implicated in several other robberies, was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where he later died. The captured bandit, who readily admitted his complicity in the holdup and shooting, gave his name as Anthony Spranze, 311 South Leavitt street. His hearing in Felony court has been delayed to Sept. 5, awaiting the recovery of Frawley.

Policeman Recovering.

Policeman Frawley later was removed to Henrotin hospital, where he is recovering, but is still in danger. He joined the police department Nov. 11, 1920, after serving in the world war. He is married, lives at 3851 Kedvale avenue, and has two children, a girl 6 years old and a boy 5.

Patrolman Smith became a policeman nine years ago after a number of years as a salesman and service in the army during the war. He is now a fingerprint expert and photographer in the bureau of identification. He lives at 4259 North Hamlin avenue, is married and has a daughter 2½ years old.

In recommending Frawley and Smith for THE TRIBUNE hero award, John L. Sullivan, chief of detectives, said: "Policemen Frawley and Smith showed exceptional bravery, efficiency, and strict attention to duty, while off duty, when they faced these holdup men, knowing they would endeavor to shoot their way out, inasmuch as they already had started shooting.

"The man coming at Policeman Smith was on the run, shooting directly at him, and were it not for Smith's army training and his ability to strike the gunman with the first shot, the bandit would have been so close he could not have missed killing Smith."

101, He'll Spend Birthday Hunting Mountain Lions

SEVERAL CITIES VOICE PROTEST AGAINST FHA

Home Shortages, Rising Rents Reported.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Banks and insurance companies throughout the country are making almost twice as many home loans as they were six months ago. In a special nation-wide survey just completed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, it was found in 47 per cent of the cities cash for residential building can be secured from banks as compared with only 24 per cent six months ago. Insurance companies are now placing mortgages for home construction in 45 per cent of the cities. This compares with 29 per cent six months ago.

The reports from 235 cities, however, show that interest rates still are high in many localities, running up to 8 per cent in some sections, with 6 per cent still the most common rate. In 62 per cent of the cities the charge is no higher than 6 per cent. Six months ago this was true in only 56 per cent of cities reporting. A rate not higher than 5½ per cent is now used in 9 per cent of the cities.

Report Banks Cool to FHA.

Reports from various parts of the country regarding activities of the Federal Housing administration and its "title two" insured loans, are reminiscent of the local situation. From New Jersey to California real estate boards not only report that banks are cool toward the FHA, but in several instances withdrawal of the government from the mortgage market is demanded.

The national home mortgage situation is spotty. In some localities money seems to be fairly easy to get and in others any kind of loan seems next to impossible to negotiate.

For example, Sam D. Walker, president of the Middlesex County Real Estate board, New Jersey, has this to say: "The only available mortgage money is so difficult to get that people give up in disgust. The FHA is too complex and mortgage companies offer too little."

Housing Shortages Prevalent.

Across the continent the Los Angeles Real Estate board reports: "The money market is easing up quite rapidly. Mortgage companies, particularly, are making large loans on apartment and business buildings."

From all directions come reports of both threatened and actual housing shortages. In several instances cheerful reports tell of actual building—in one locality fifty homes are under way. Higher rents and more sales activity are reported in various places.

In Davenport, Ia., rents have advanced $5 to $15 per month during the last eight months. Prices of real estate have gone up 15 to 20 per cent.

Tacoma, Wash., reports: "There is a shortage of desirable homes and few vacancies either in houses or apartments. We feel the shortage will raise rents to the point where new buildings must start. There have been between 300 and 400 old houses in Tacoma torn down during the last four years."

Demands U. S. Quit.

St. Paul, Minn., is one of the few cities which fears over loaning and which voices a protest against federal invasion of the mortgage situation: "The supply of money for mortgages on real estate far exceeds the demand. A very dangerous situation is close at hand. The federal government must and should withdraw from the mortgage market."

A Newark, N. J., commentator complains: "Private capital cannot compete with the government."

In Holyoke, Mass., the exact opposite to St. Paul's situation is found. "Several large and small contractors are looking for money to build houses and apartments, but money is impossible to borrow."

The president of the Lima [Ohio] Real Estate board says: "Desirable loans for new construction could be made under FHA plan, but financial institutions are neither willing nor qualified to make them."

Calls FHA a Failure.

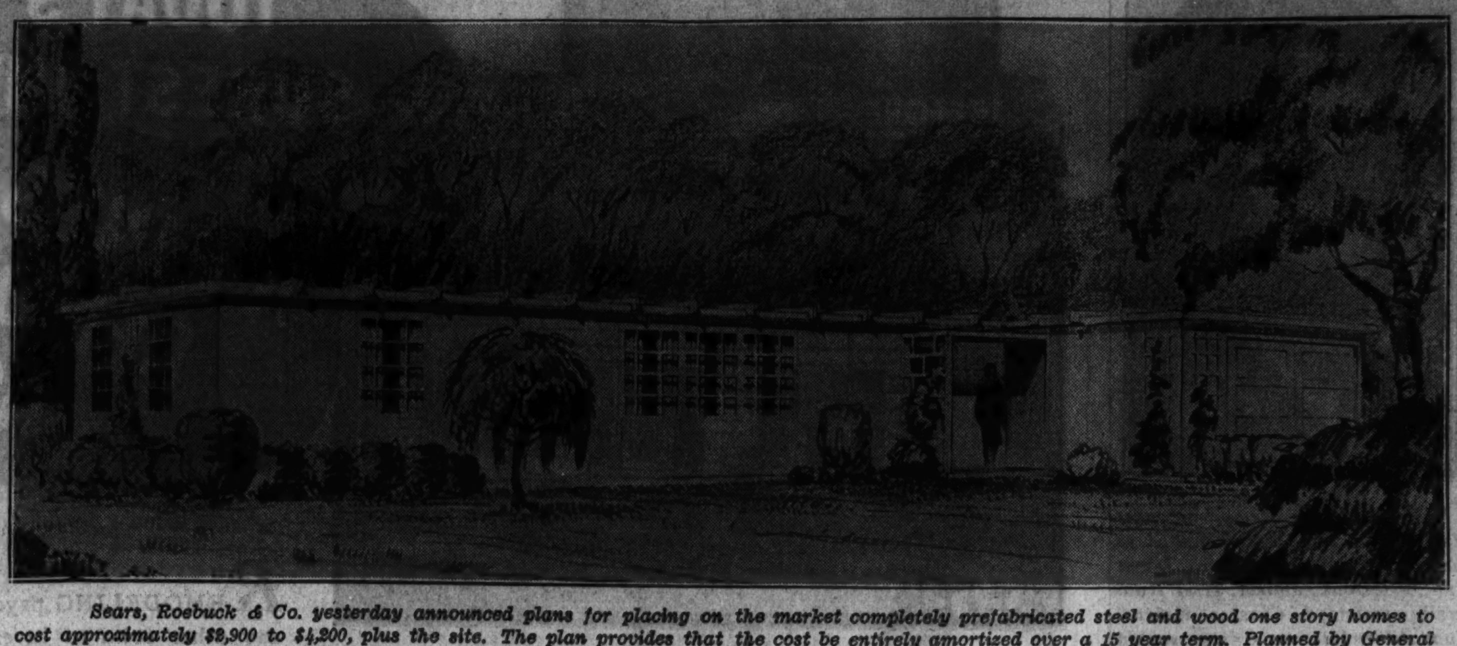
Another criticism of federal mortgage activities comes from Salisbury, N. C.: "FHA commitments are hard to place with an approved mortgagee, due to banks refusing to handle such loans or make construction loans. At least 25 one-family dwellings to be owner occupied would be started in 60 days if sources of financing were to be had."

"The FHA has been a failure in Eugene, Ore., as the banks would not coöperate," reports the local board's secretary. From Oklahoma City comes the following comment: "FHA is not functioning successfully here," and from Sacramento, Cal., comes this statement: "There is some dissatisfaction for FHA loans on account of delay in getting loans through after commitments have been given."

On the other hand, from San Antonio, Tex., comes the following comment on federal financing: "Most mortgage loans are being made through the FHA."

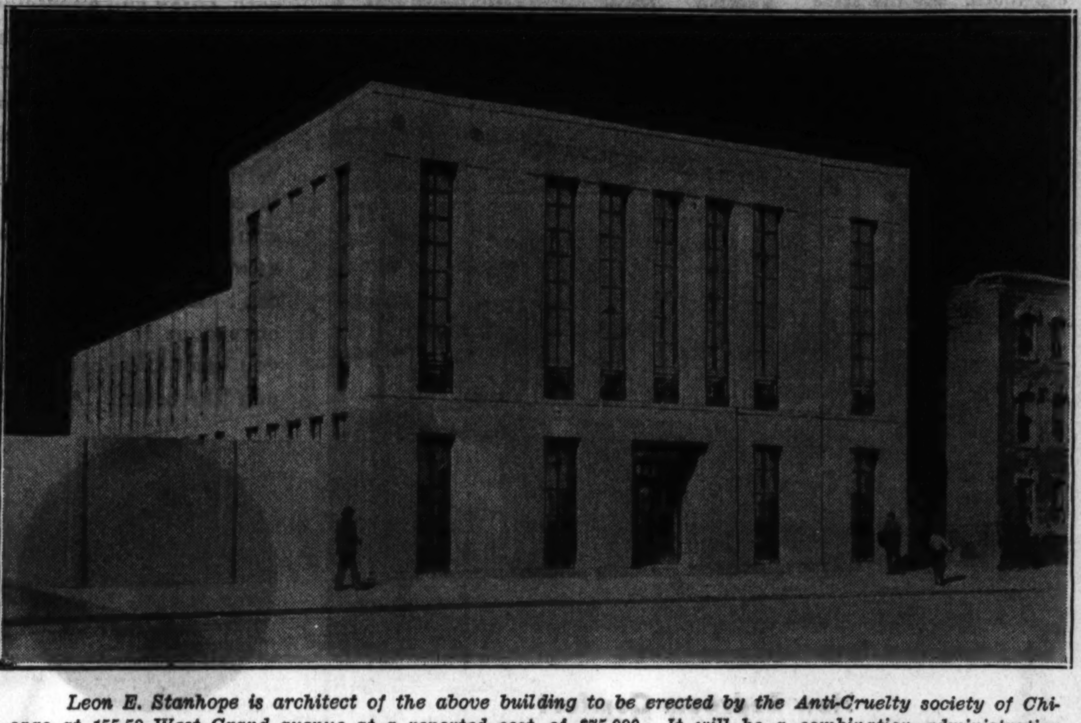
Milwaukee sounds the mortgage lenders' keynote with this comment: "Security again has become the first consideration, replacing 'interest rate,' which is now third and which during the hectic days was the first consideration."

Low Priced Home Program Announced by Mail Order Firm



Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday announced plans for placing on the market completely prefabricated steel and wood one story homes to cost approximately $2,900 to $4,200, plus the site. The plan provides that the cost be entirely amortized over a 15 year term. Planned by General Houses, Inc., with 30 designs available shortly, the first unit, a display home, shown above, will be erected soon in a suburb.

Near North Side Improvement



Leon E. Stanhope is architect of the above building to be erected by the Anti-Cruelty society of Chicago at 155-59 West Grand avenue at a reported cost of $75,000. It will be a combination administration building and shelter. Allen M. Weary made this perspective.

DE LUGACH PREDICTS SPRING CONSTRUCTION BOOM IN SMALL HOMES

Frank de Lugach, who recently completed the sale of 678 lots on the former Wanamaker property in Evergreen Park, announced yesterday he is head of a syndicate which has purchased 208 lots in and adjacent to the village of Oak Lawn. The property, bought from the Mutual National bank, trustee, and others, comprises 29 lots at 98th street and 55th avenue in Oak Lawn. The adjacent 179 lots are at 87th street and Central avenue.

All of these lots will be put on the market immediately at $50 and up each, De Lugach said. He added conditions are improving so rapidly that he is anxious to buy more property at once.

"Quite a number of small homes already have been started on our property in this section," he said. "With easy money available we look for a real building boom of small homes by next spring."

63d-Harvard Block Will Be Made Modern Shopping Center

The fifth major store remodeling project to be undertaken by the University of Chicago was announced yesterday by Lyndon H. Lesch, real estate manager. The triangular property at the southeast corner of 63d street and Harvard avenue, with old improvements, will be modernized into a shopping center to contain fourteen different lines of business. It will front 134 feet on 63d, 150 on Harvard, and 186 on Straus court.

Two leases already have been negotiated, a corner store having been rented by a druggist and the double store at 315-17 West 63d street by the A. & P. Other tenants, it was announced, would be selected from the list of applications now being received.

The fourteen nonconflicting businesses to be installed in the new shops will include, in addition to the drug store and A. & P. leases, the following: A meat market, bakery, confectioner, variety shop, milliner, laundry, tailor, shoe repair, barber, beauty shop, gift shop, and optician and jeweler.

Existing second floor apartment sections are being removed and the new building will be a one story structure of modern design. The façades will be black polished structural glass with aluminum moldings, trim, and show window frames. A contrast in color will be obtained by bright red lights of glass above the show windows on which will be lettered in silver and in a uniform script the nature of the business of each tenant. All tenants will be required to illuminate their windows after closing hours.

Plans for the remodeling were prepared by the architectural staf of the university. A general contract has been let to Gerhardt F. Meyne & Co.

John B. De Lany Leases Charles Netcher House

John B. De Lany, of Barrington, yesterday leased for a town house the residence of Charles Netcher [son of Mrs. Molly Netcher of the Boston store] at 40 East Burton place. The fourteen room house contains six baths, one of which was especially designed for bathing dogs. It was built by I. Newton Perry and purchased for a reported $190,000 by Netcher some years ago. Miss Mellicent Martin was the only broker.

Estelle Lawrence Rents Store on North Michigan

Mrs. Estelle Lawrence, head of the Estelle Lawrence corporation, which operates a women's wear shop at 132 East Delaware place, in the 900 North Michigan building, has leased from Raymond Cook the store at 671 North Michigan avenue, adjoining the new Saks-Fifth Avenue store location. She will move on or before Oct. 1. Howard L. Storch of Ross & Browne was broker.

Beg Your Pardon

Littleford Brothers of Downers Grove were the brokers in the recent purchase of a 120 acre farm in Du Page county by Thomas H. Slusser. It was incorrectly stated that Arthur L. Webster was broker. He surveyed the property.

Maling Brothers to Have New Sheridan Road Store

Work is under way on a new air conditioned store for Maling Brothers Shoe company at 4720 Sheridan road from plans by M. Louis Kroman. The front will be of stainless steel, with indirect lighting in the entrance ceiling and with free use of structural glass.

Anti-Cruelty Society Plans $75,000 Home

Wreckers have started clearing a site at 157-59 West Grand avenue for a $75,000 building to be erected by the Anti-Cruelty Society of Chicago, of which John J. Roberts is president. The new structure will be a combination administration building and shelter for animals. When completed, the present building of the society at No. 155 will be torn down and the space used for open air runways and outside kennels connecting with the new structure. Actual construction is expected to get under way on Sept. 3, according to Leon E. Stanhope, Chicago architect, with the expectation of having it ready for occupancy by Dec. 15.

Kennel in Basement.

The kennel floor of the building will be in the basement. The main floor, four feet above sidewalk grade, will contain a small lobby, waiting room, office of attending veterinarian with examination room, X-ray and operating room adjacent.

Near by is a kennel room for adoption animals. In the rear is a garage for ambulances and officials' automobiles and also a lethal room and morgue.

A large lecture room, 30x53, with an eighteen foot ceiling, occupies much of the second floor. Murals depicting the history and aims of the society are contemplated. Back of it will be offices for committees and officials.

Building to Be Fireproof.

The building will be fireproof with exterior walls of Indiana limestone or cast stone. All windows will be of plate glass.

Founded 36 years ago, the Anti-Cruelty society in its busiest year, which was 1934, cared for 29,000 animals. President Roberts predicts a total of 35,000 animals for this year.

The 20,373 calls made last year were divided among the following animals: 15,587 dogs, 12,706 cats, 495 white rats, 102 pigeons, 13 rabbits, 14 canaries, 2 robins, 1 martin, 2 parrots, 4 guinea pigs, 9 bears and 1 goat.

LEASE DOWNTOWN STORE.

The Checker Cleaners, Inc., leased a store in the Insurance Center building, and after remodeling will open their forty-sixth Chicago unit and the first in the downtown area, according to E. C. Holmberg, building manager.

SEARS TO PLACE PREFABRICATED HOMES ON MART

Cost $2,900 to $4,200, Plus Site.

Completely prefabricated steel and wood homes, which can be erected in approximately two weeks, to cost from $2,900 to $4,200, plus the expense of a site, are to be placed on the market by Sears, Roebuck & Co., it was announced yesterday. The first of the new houses will be erected and opened for public inspection by the latter part of October on a suburban site yet to be selected.

According to L. R. Walker, supervisor of the Sears division of home construction, prices to be quoted on all houses will include complete electric wiring and fixtures, piping and plumbing, with built-in apron bathtub, lavatory, toilet, kitchen sink, steel kitchen cabinets, automatic hot water and winter air conditioning system providing automatic oil fired heating, complete with humidifying, filtering and forced circulation of air through a built-in duct system.

Will Have 30 Plans.

Designed by General Houses, Inc., well known Chicago firm in the prefabrication field, the first modern-type factory made homes to be offered by Sears are of an entirely new design. Full specifications and prices on 30 different four to six room plans—comprising the company's initial line—will be available by the time the first modern prefabricated home is opened to the public, it was said. Later on more plans, including two story homes, will be listed.

The initial unit display house will contain five rooms: a 13x16 living room, 10x10 dining room, 8x13 kitchen, and two bedrooms, 10x13 and 10x16. All will be on one floor. In addition there will be a bath, a 13x20 garage [an integral part of the house] and a utility storage room in which will be kept the heating equipment and laundry tubs.

Roof of Steel.

All structural framing members, such as joists and studs, are to be of specially formed steel shapes. Walls will be of two thicknesses of plywood thoroughly insulated, the outer plywood being waterproof and made with a thermoplastic adhesive in a hot plate press. The roof, to be doubly insulated, will be of flat steel unit construction.

With the exception of the ingredients for the foundation, cement, sand, gravel and cinders, Sears will supply every inch and ounce of materials and equipment used in constructing the house, it was stated.

The Sears house type has been approved by the Federal Housing administration for loan insurance purposes on a 15 year basis.

SPACE FOR TWO STORES LEASED BY WALGREEN CO.

The Walgreen company has leased space for two modern air-conditioned stores, one at the southeast corner of Jackson boulevard and State street and the other on the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Adams street, it was announced yesterday. Terms of the lease were not disclosed.

The store at Jackson and State streets involves a long term lease with Marshall Field & Co., the space, including the corner store of 40 by 72 feet and the entire second floor, 40 by 144 feet. It will be the largest of the company's stores in the loop. Frank L. Wells of L. J. Sheridan & Co., realtors, represented both parties. Possession was taken immediately and the new store will be opened about Oct. 1.

A long term lease was made with the Pullman company for the entire corner of the Pullman building at Michigan and Adams, extending for 52 feet on Michigan avenue and 62 feet on Adams street, or a total space of 3,224 square feet. Richard Golden represented the Pullman company and E. L. Ohrman was broker in the deal. Possession will be taken about Oct. 1, with the new store opening about Oct. 30.

SEIZE HUSBAND AS SLAYER OF DUDE RANCHER

'Broke Up My Home,' Says Accused Man.

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—J. Bryson Corbett, an insurance salesman, was held today on an informal charge of murder for the slaying yesterday of Edward [Tex] Thompson, operator of a dude ranch and former treasurer of a Cleveland auto parts manufacturing concern.

EDWARD THOMPSON. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Corbett was reported to have admitted the shooting, asserting that Thompson "broke up my home and made a fool of my wife." Both Corbett and his wife, the former Kathlyn Hughes of Albuquerque, have divorce suits pending here. Thompson was divorced by his wife several years ago.

Slain at Suspect's Dwelling.

Thompson was shot yesterday on the porch of the local dwelling where Corbett had been living. District Attorney Thomas J. Mabry said Corbett told him the shooting occurred after Thompson had telephoned he was on his way to beat up the other man. Corbett said he suffers from a lung ailment.

Acting Chief of Police Dugan said he received his first information of the shooting when a man telephoned him and said, "I just shot a man. Send a car." Dugan said Corbett handed him a .38 caliber revolver when he arrived.

Thompson, proprietor of a dude ranch in Jemez county, was indicted in Common Pleas court in Cleveland last May 31 for failure to support his adopted son and on a charge of assaulting his since divorced wife, Mrs. Paula A. Thompson.

According to the indictment the assault occurred Jan. 11, 1930, the day on which Mrs. Thompson fell from a bedroom window of their home after a quarrel with her husband. She suffered spinal injuries.

In 1934 a Common Pleas judge ordered Thompson to pay his divorced wife $75,000 in settlement of alimony due her, and last January another judge in the same court awarded her a judgment of $62,000 for back alimony payments.

United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe will depart on the Capitol Limited today for Washington, D. C., to confer with Attorney General Homer S. Cummings on several suits recently filed in federal courts here seeking to restrain the collection of the Agricultural Adjustment administration's processing taxes. The appointment of five Democrats as assistant district attorneys to fill vacancies on Mr. Igoe's staf also may be discussed.

Quarrels with Husband; Hurt in Two Story Leap

Writ Ties Up Property Pending Divorce Hearing

Mrs. Ida Rolnick, 3520 Sheridan road, yesterday obtained an order from Superior Judge Walter T. Stanton restraining her husband, David Rolnick, from disposing of two large buildings near Lawrence and Kedzie avenues, which he owns, pending hearing of the divorce suit she filed Friday. The order also restrains the Chicago Title and Trust company from paying his daughter by a former marriage, Evelyn Rolnick Goldman, an income of $2,500 a month under an arrangement allegedly made two years ago.

What does the X-RAY Show?

Physicians at the United Medical Service

Chicago's first fixed fee low cost medical and dental service

make full use of the X-ray to check and verify their examinations

They know that information of vital importance, which cannot be obtained in any other way is disclosed through its use. They know that it is indispensable in the early diagnosis of heart disease, tuberculosis, gastro intestinal complaints, kidney disease and many other serious conditions which can cause serious disability and death. They also know that it has great value in the treatment of many serious conditions and that complete and fully protective medical service is impossible unless it is available.

Prior to the organization of the UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE many persons were denied the protection of the X-ray because of its high cost. Today this valuable service is available here to the lowest income groups within their ability to pay.

The X-ray Department of UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE is one of the most modern and completely equipped in the Middle West. Every type of X-ray service is available. Low costs are possible because of the close association of all the professions such as medicine, dentistry, optometry, pharmacy, clinical laboratory, X-ray, hospital and all other associated activities under one administration. Five complete floors are necessary for all of its diagnostic and treatment facilities.

UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE has been in operation since January 18th, 1933, and has cared for more than sixty thousand patients. From the beginning it has been under the direct administration of Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz whose advanced ideas and past experiences in providing low cost medical care made its organization possible. ALL-STAR GAME PROMISES BATTLE OF FULL BACKS

COLLEGE TRIO A MATCH FOR BEAR PLUNGERS

Just Watch Kostka, Wetzel, Wotkyns!

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago Bears or the All-Americans?

There's your problem. Make your choice and Thursday night at Soldiers' field you'll find out whether your favorites justify your confidence.

The All-Americans form the greatest group of collegians ever brought together. They are superior, not only in numbers, but in all around ability, to the squad which last year held the Bears to a scoreless tie. The Bears certainly can offer more offensive strength now than a year ago. The obvious answer, then, is that this game, the second annual college-professional fight, will be jammed with more thrills and better playing than the first scrap.

More Seats this Year

Eighty thousand saw last year's game. There are 92,000 seats this year, the additional number being arranged by extension of the bleacher seats from the wall to the cinder track.

Don't delay getting your tickets. There are several thousand $1.65 and $1.10 seats left, excellent locations, and they may be purchased at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby of Tribune Tower. Mail orders still are accepted by the ticket manager, room 530 Tribune Tower. The Public Service offices will be open today from 9 a. m. to midnight.

Preparations have been completed to present the All-Star game under ideal conditions. The lighting facilities have been increased one-third. One hundred lights are mounted on eight 60 foot poles. Each light is 1,000 watts. They will be focused so that the light is spread evenly over the gridiron. These poles, four on a side, are 20 feet higher than those used last year. They have been sunk in permanent caissons.

Easy to Identify Players.

The Bears will wear white jerseys. The All-American uniforms, which will be delivered Tuesday, are silver and gold. The players' numerals are to be so large that each man can be identified instantly.

A band of 175 musicians has been recruited from the university and college men of Chicago. They have been drilled by Glenn Cliffe Bainum, director of the Northwestern university band. Armin Hand's band will offer a concert prior to the start of the ceremonies at 8:30. A third musical organization is the Curtiss Kiltie band of 24 members which is the best Scottish band in America. Nearly all are native Scots and many are veterans of the world war. They wear the Royal Stewart plaids of the famous clan featuring blue tunics for the pipers, scarlet red for the drummers, and white for the drum major.

Passing Duel Likely.

The trappings will be spectacular. But the game itself is the piece de resistance. The Bears have indicated they are ready to flash a forward passing attack equal to that which carried them to the top of the professional world. The All-Americans, with Jack Beynon, Buzz Borries, Duane Purvis, Bill Shepherd, and Frank Sobrero pitching to such receivers as Don Hutson and Ray Fuqua, can counter with effective passing.

When it comes to sheer strength, the contest may develop into a battle of full backs. The pros need have no worry in this department. With Jack Manders plowing through and ready to give big Bronko Nagurski a rest, the Bears have two hard hitters. Manders' place kicking ability needs no comment. If his teammates can furnish the opportunity, Jack will boost the ball over the bar. These

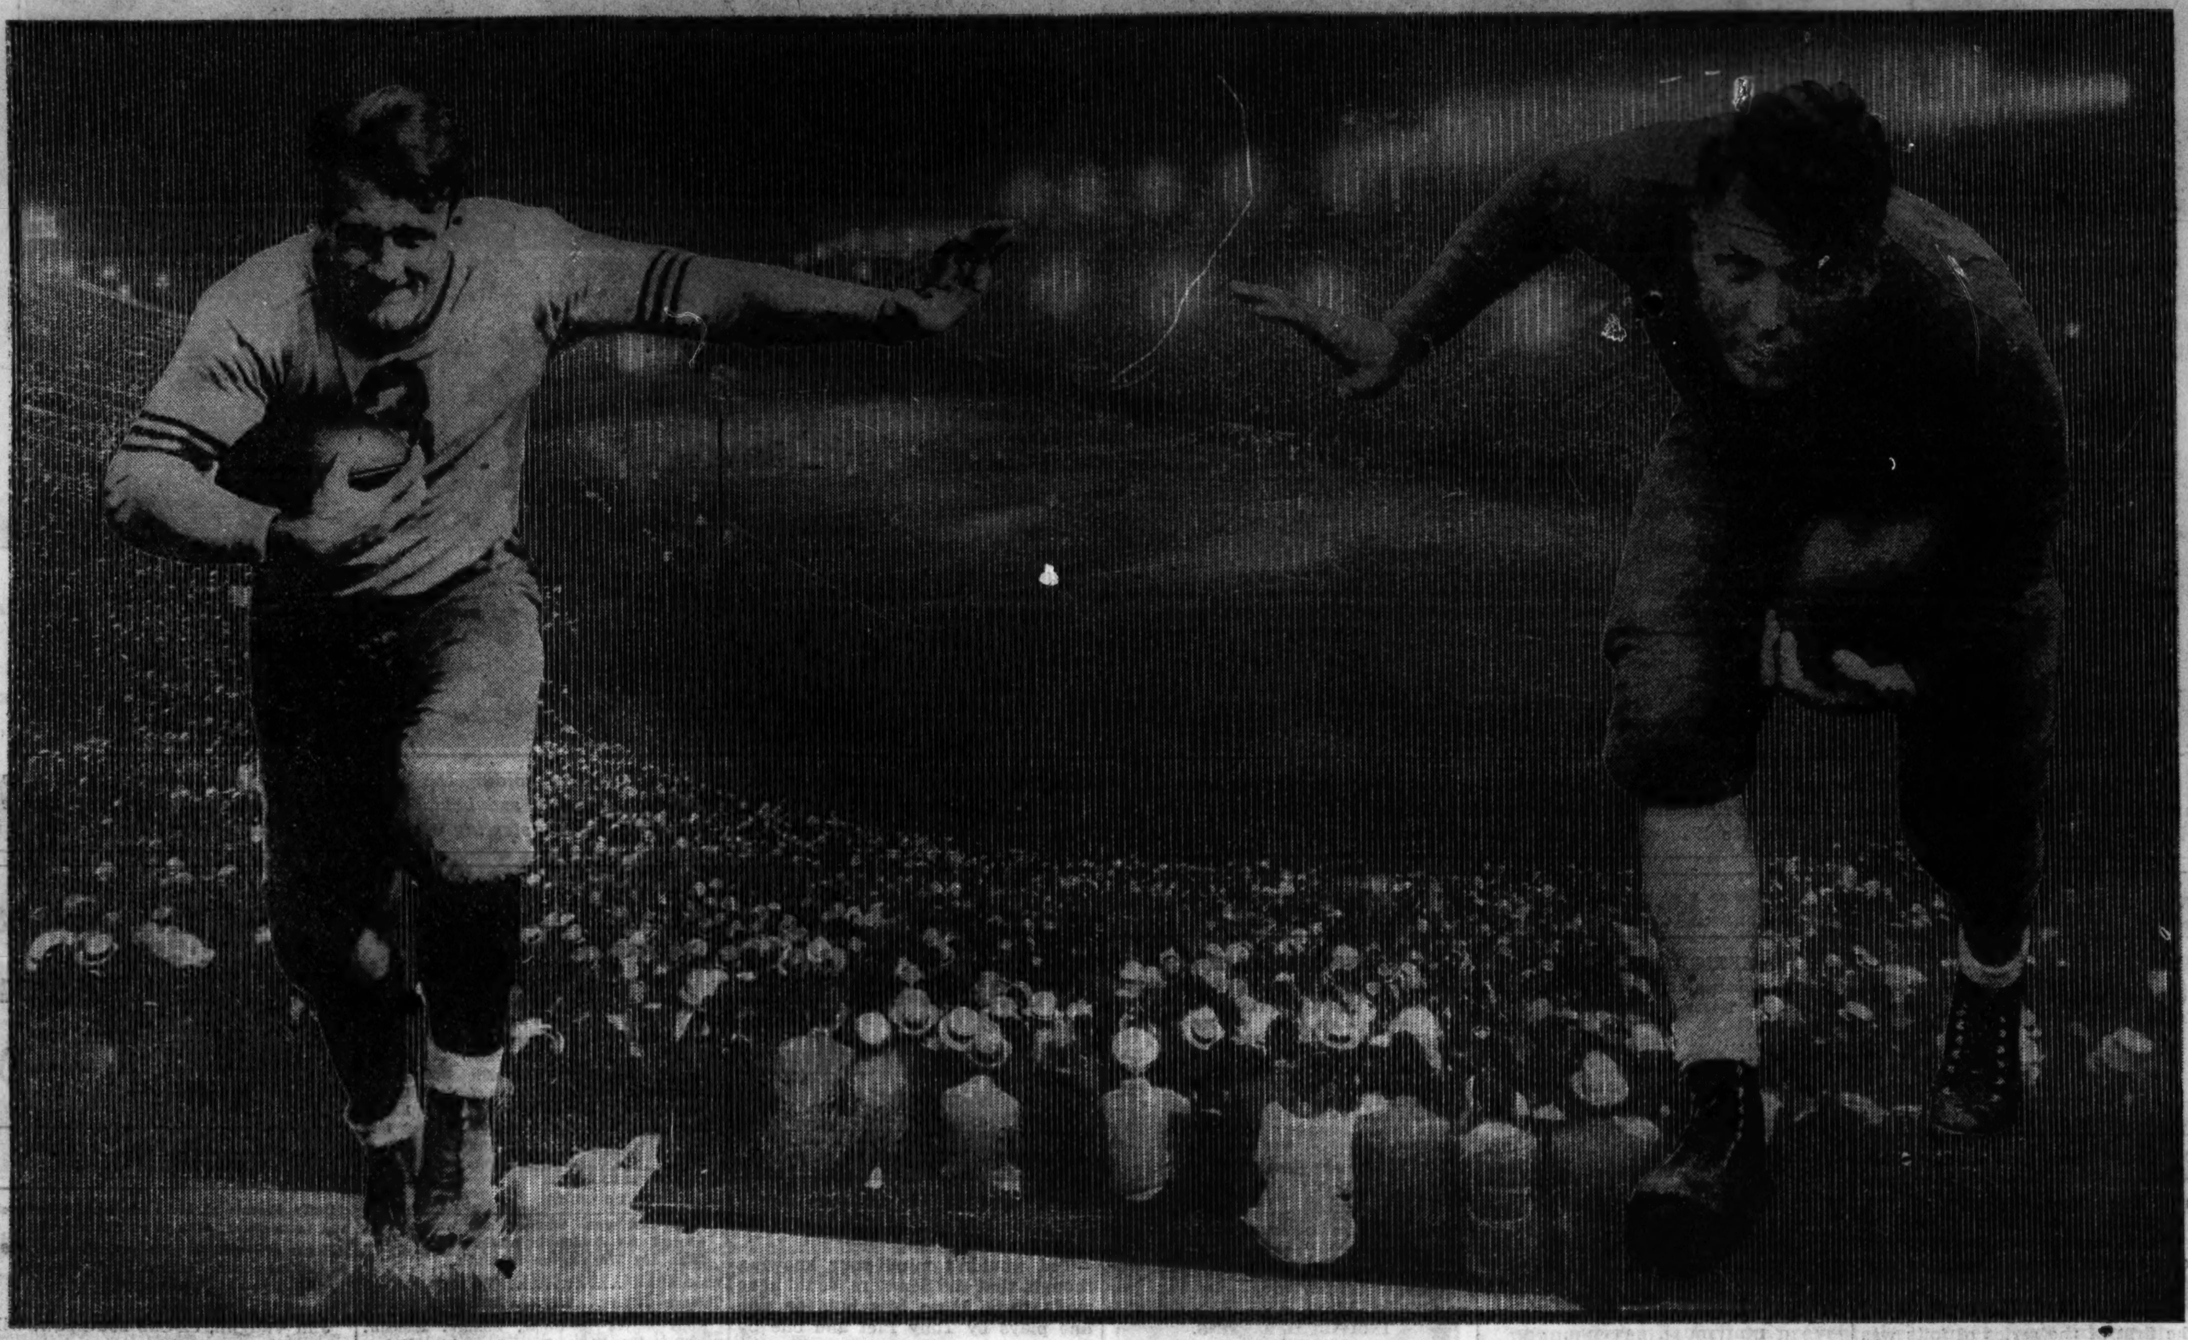
HERE THEY COME!—IT'S FOOTBALL'S GREATEST SPECTACLE



Bronko Nagurski of the Bears (left) and Stan Kostka, former University of Minnesota full back (right), are off on those smashing touchdown runs which have won the cheers of thousands of football fans in both professional and collegiate divisions. Fans will see them again at Soldiers' field Thursday night when the Bears meet the college All-Americans in the second great professional-collegiate game promoted by The Chicago Tribune. These thundering full backs are shown against the battle scene and crowd which attended the 1934 game at Soldiers' field. Last year the All-Americans and Bears fought to a 0 to 0 tie. Football fans throughout the nation await the verdict in Thursday night's encounter.

Dykes Named Sox Manager Another Year

J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, yesterday announced that Jimmy Dykes had signed to continue as manager of his team throughout 1936.

Such announcements during a playing season usually are designed to quiet rumors or demands for a replacement, or to quell dissension on the team. None of these elements entered into Dykes' reappointment. The extension of Dykes' reign is regarded as a reward for the success he has enjoyed this season.

Dykes, who succeeded Lew Fonseca as Sox skipper in Washington on May 8, 1934, has been a popular manager, and until recently was being hailed as something of a miracle man. Most of his managerial policies have been considered sound and intelligent and recent merry-go-round rides he has taken have been attributed solely to mental distress over the foldup of his team.

18th Year in League.

Dykes now is performing in his 18th year as an American league regular and despite his 38 years, is considered one of the most agile infielders in the majors. He expects to continue as an active player next year.

The former Philadelphia infielder was unable to get the White Sox out of the American league cellar last season, but laid the groundwork for a campaign which made the south side club the early season sensation.

The White Sox were in the thick of the pennant fight up to three weeks ago, when a general decline, caused for the most part by injuries, dropped them out of the race. The Chicagoans slid into fifth place Friday when they lost their third straight game to the Washington Senators, but bounced back into fourth place by yesterday's victory.

Salary Not Revealed.

Dykes is one of the three playing managers in the American league, the others being Joe Cronin of Boston and Mickey Cochrane, Detroit. Alternating at third base and first this year, averages give him a hitting mark of .276. Last year he hit .268 and fielded .944.

In making the announcement, Comiskey said that salary provisions would not be revealed.

The Sox obtained Dykes from Philadelphia at the close of the 1932 season in the same deal which brought Al Simmons and Mule Haas to Chicago.

Sox Win, 2-1, and Return to Fourth Place

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Ted Lyons was foremost among the White Sox who didn't like the air in the second division after one night of breathing it. So Ted, aided especially by Rip Radcliff, yesterday moved the slumping Comiskey brethren right back into the elite neighborhood by pitching a handsome 2 to 1 victory over the Washington Senators in the final of the series.

The Sox supplanted the Boston Red Sox in fourth place and had to wait till long after their game was over before it was decided in Cleveland that they wouldn't be back in third place. The Indians remained in third place by beating the Athletics, 2 to 0, in the fifteenth inning.

Lyons Scores Winning Run.

Lyons, who previously had made three tries to ring up his thirteenth victory of the year, only to be thwarted by timid offensive backing, scored the winning run himself when he sprinted home from first on Radcliff's double to right center, with two out in the ninth. Radcliff's cheering smack came just as a bad fadeout seemed imminent.

Vernon Washington, who has his troubles when playing regularly, enhanced his reputation as being a swell pinch batter by opening the ninth with a double to left. Marty Hopkins went to second to run for Washington. Luke Sewell gummed up two attempts to sacrifice, then grounded out to Strange, Hopkins holding second.

Lyons also grounded to Strange and Hopkins was trapped for the second out. Radcliff previously had been robbed on a great shot to right center, and Lyons had been doubled. If there had been fewer than two outs Ted's earlier experience might have slowed him, but with two down in the ninth he was in full flight with the crack of Rip's bat and when he slid home the elusive No. 13 victory was his.

Lyons Yields Five Hits.

So much for the scoring windup. Ted surely pitched a sweet game. He allowed five hits, none of which was knocked after the fourth inning. After the fifth the Senators, who had made 43 hits in the first three games of the series when Manager Dykes was trying to skin by on bull pen pitching, knocked only one ball to an outfielder. Joe Kuhel, who got Ted's only pass, with two out in the eighth, was the only Senator to reach base after Jonathan Stone's scratch

LEIBER KNOCKS TWO HOMERS IN SECOND INNING

Ott Hits His 28th to Help Rout.

New York, Aug. 24.—The pacemaking Giants, who had suffered in silence for two days while the Cubs roared, bounced back this afternoon with a terrifying roar of their own. It came in the second inning, when a series of dazzling incidents brought on a scoring parade of eight Giants. That wild, turbulent affair, in which three pitchers were almost annihilated, settled everything and eventually the first placers triumphed, 9 to 4. It was their first victory over the Cubs in seven games.

The victory didn't help the Giants to shake off the pursuing champion Cardinals. By their brilliant ninth inning revival at Brooklyn, the second place titleholders kept themselves one game behind the leaders. But the day's events worked badly both ways for the Cubs. The man-handling received from the Giants dropped them to three games from the top and two laps behind the stampeding St. Louis entry.

Leiber Equals Record.

The second inning frolic that sent 17,923 paid customers into hysterics was made up of the following:

Twelve Giants batted before a fourth Cub pitcher accomplished relief. Seven hit safely and two walked. Three of the seven hits were homers, two by Hank Leiber, who thus equalled the modern big league mark held jointly by Hack Wilson, Ken Williams and Bill Regan. The two prodigious wallops raised the Arizona youth's total to 20. The other homer of the crazy inning was Mel Ott's No. 28.

First of the Cub pitchers to go under the pressure put on by the Giants was Tex Carleton, who started and encountered his seventh defeat. A home run, a double and a triple finished him with one out in the second, making the eighth time this season he has been shelled to cover by first division gunners. Next came Roy Henshaw. He lasted long enough to walk two and retire one. Then Clyde Shoun, the rookie, was put up for inspection. The Giants liked him. Ott's homer, a single, Leiber's second homer and a single by Mancuso came in succession. Finally Fabian Kowalik put an end to the doings.

No. 19 for Hubbell.

Due to complications encountered by Leroy Parmelee, who started for the home troops, Carl Hubbell was able to get into the picture and southpaw his way to his 19th victory.

Parmelee, always wild, walked a flock of fellows and hit Chuck Klein on the wrist in the third inning, thus giving the Cubs two runs. Hubbell took over the job with the bases filled and from then to the finish the Chicagoans were quiet. They registered against him once on Billy Herman's seventh homer in the fifth and again in the eighth on a couple of singles. In the first seven innings the Cubs could show only three hits for all the swinging they did.

Cubs Pass Up Chances.

Before the Giants started operating on Carleton in a serious way the Cubs had a few chances to make headway. In the first inning, after Galan had opened with three strikes, Herman scratched a hit off Parmelee's glove, but Klein lined to Ott and Herman was doubled off first. In the second Parmelee dared the Cubs to start something. He walked O'Dea and Cavarretta with Demaree's sacrifice in between. Hack then flied to Moore and Jurges popped to Koenig.

There were two hits, not to men-

FRISCH PREDICTS BIG SHAKEUP FOR CARDS IN 1936

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Win or lose this year, the Cardinals are facing a shakeup next season, Manager Frankie Frisch admitted today. Some of the players who had been taking things too easily before the club's current "money drive" got under way, probably will be traded or sold to other teams, and newcomers from various St. Louis farm teams will be tested in the spring.

In the front rank of the recruits to face the scrutiny of the St. Louis board of strategy will be three members of the Houston team, which developed Joe Medwick and polished the rough edges off the pitching of Dizzy Dean. The three are Lynn King, an outfielder, and Bill McGee and Nelson Potter, right hand pitchers. Of the three King appears most likely to win a berth as he leads the Texas league in the number of hits, putouts and stolen bases.

Tony Cuccinello Breaks Hand; Out for Season

CARDINAL RALLY IN NINTH DEFEATS DODGERS, 10 TO 7

Collins Hits Double with Bases Loaded.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Cardinals again took the hard way in their pursuit of the New York Giants, but they came through in the ninth inning today after trailing most of the way, beat the Dodgers for the third straight time, 10 to 7, and held their place a single game behind the league leaders.

The Dodgers built up a big early lead, driving Paul Dean from the mound in three innings. Then the Cards pounded Ray Benge and tied the score at 6 to 6 going into the eighth, only to fall behind again.

Linus Frey's double and Joe Stripp's single gave Brooklyn another run in the eighth and a 7 to 6 lead, but Van Mungo, who had replaced Benge at the start of the seventh, failed to hold the lead. Pinch Hitter Bill Delancey singled, Pepper Martin bounced a double off the right field wall, and Jack Rothrock was purposely passed to load the bases.

Mungo managed to retire Manager Frankie Frisch for the second out, but Joe Medwick, who had already collected a homer, drove in the tying run when he beat out a single to short. Frey made a great diving stop of the drive to prevent further damage, but his heroic effort was wasted when Jim Collins doubled against the wall in right center to break up the ball game. Score:

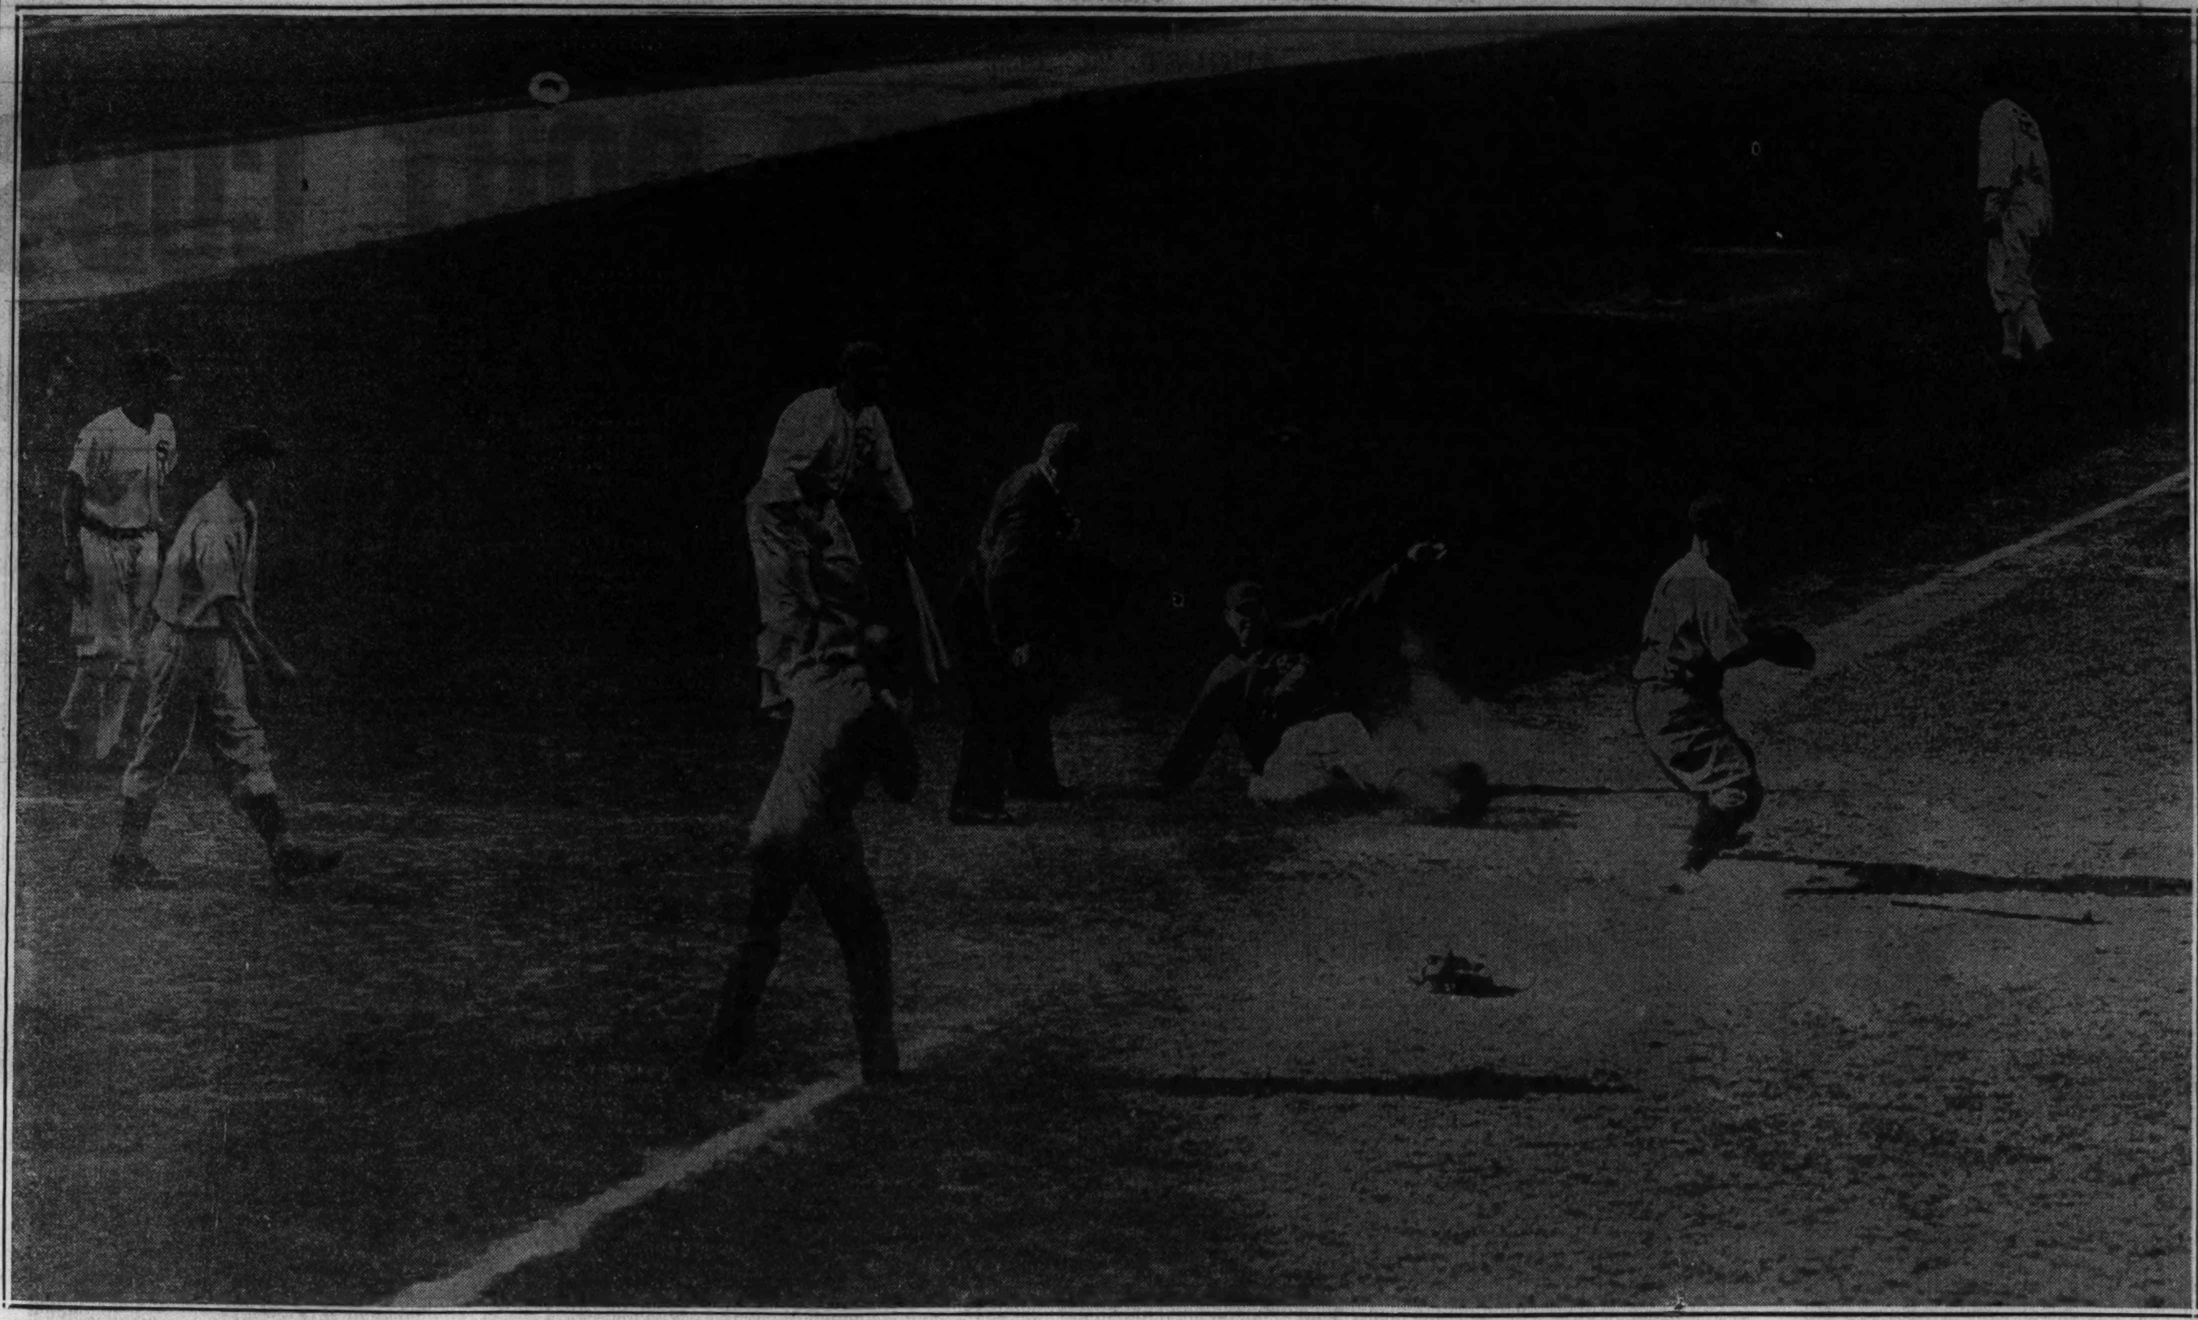
SURE ENOUGH, IT TAKES LYONS TO GET SOX BACK IN FIRST DIVISION



Ted Lyons slides in with the run that gives the White Sox a 2 to 1 ninth inning victory over the Washington Senators yesterday at Comiskey park. After holding the Senators to five hits, Lyons got on base on a fielder's choice in the ninth and raced around to the plate when Rip Radcliff hit a long double to right center. The umpire at the plate is Charles Donnelly and behind him is Al Simmons. Holbrook is the Washington catcher. The victory returned the White Sox to the first division, a position they will attempt to hold during the four consecutive double-headers starting with the New York Yankees today.

LAWSON PITCHES TIGERS TO 2 TO 0 VICTORY IN DEBUT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Roxie Lawson, Detroit rookie, chalked up a 2 to 0 victory over the Boston Red Sox today in his debut with the Tigers as the result of an error by Dahlgren which provided the break in a pitching duel with the veteran Lefty Grove.

With the bases filled in the sixth, the Red Sox first baseman let Goose Goslin's grounder roll through his legs, and White and Gehringer scored the only runs of the game.

Each pitcher yielded only five hits, but Lawson issued five walks to Grove's one. Score:

BROWNS BEAT YANKS, 7-6.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Browns came from behind twice today and finally beat the Yankees in the ninth inning, 7 to 6. The defeat, the 24th the Yanks have suffered by one run margins this season, put the New Yorkers eight games behind the league leading Tigers.

Pat Malone, who pitched good relief ball after the Browns jolted Johnny Broaca loose from an early lead in the fourth, weakened badly in the final inning.

INDIANS WIN IN 15TH.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Earl Averill's home run with one on base and two out broke a 0 to 0 tie in the fifteenth inning today to give the Cleveland Indians a 2 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

The inning started at 12 minutes past 6 p. m., eastern standard time, and an out by Averill would have brought the end of a no-decision game, since the rules forbid starting a new inning after 6:15 o'clock.

Giants Pound Cub Pitchers and Win, 9-4

tion a line drive that was caught, off Carleton in the first inning; so the sudden outbreak of fire in the hilarious second wasn't exactly a surprise.

Pitchers Come and Go.

The first of the series of jolts was Leiber's No. 19 homer which he spanked into the upper left field seats. Mancuso was set down only because of a snappy running catch by Klein. Bartell doubled to left. Parmelee tripled to right center and Bartell scored. That completed Carleton's portion of the grief.

Henshaw came dashing to the rescue. He walked Moore. Jackson's longfly to Galan let Parmelee register. Terry walked and there was no further use for Henshaw, but Manager Grimm figured another southpaw might have better luck. Along came Kid Shoun. He made one pitch to Ott and the ball sailed on a line into the second story of right field for homer No. 28. Moore and Terry scored ahead of him. Koenig singled and Leiber hit his second homer of the inning, No. 20, adding two more runs. After a single off Mancuso's bat, Shoun was stabled and Kowalik ended the suffering on Bartell's tap to Jurges.

Parmelee Too Generous.

Kowalik beat out a scratch hit to start the third and Parmelee promptly forgot about getting the ball over the plate. Galan lined to Bartell and Herman walked. Klein was hit on the left wrist, filling the bases. O'Dea and Demaree also walked, forcing Kowalik and Herman to score. Before Parmelee could make more presentations, Manager Terry had him out of there. Hubbell stepped in with the bases filled and fanned Cavarretta, after which Hack bounced out to Jackson.

The Giants forced Kowalik into difficulties in the fourth and extracted their ninth run of the game. Ott walked, stole second and went to third on Koenig's bunt, Leiber walked and Mancuso singled, Ott scoring. A double play cut the inning short.

Herman Soaks One.

The Cubs grabbed this run back in their half of the fifth when Herman took charge of a Hubbell offering and whacked it into right field seats for his seventh homer of the season and his third off the Giant southpaw. It also was Hubbell's 24th experience of the year with the home run ball.

The Cubs' last run in the eighth was coined on a scratch single by Stainback, a couple of infield outs and a single by Cavarretta.

Sox Win, 2-1; Return to Fourth Place

single had driven in the lone visitor run with one out in the fourth inning.

Ted wouldn't mind your knowing though, that the Senators would have made three more hits but for two fine plays by Tony Piet and one by Zeke Bonura. Zeke, incidentally, was making his first appearance in the starting lineup since his injury in the first game of the last Detroit series, on Aug. 8.

Senators Open with Double.

A double opened each of the first two Senator innings but in each instance the runner died on third. Kuhel opened the game with a two baser to the scoreboard in right center and moved to third while Piet was throwing out Miles. Myer fanned and Piet tossed out Manush. Travis got credit for a double at the outset of the second when Conlan was slow handling his hit. Stone fanned. Strange grounded out to Appling and Lyons tossed out Holbrook.

The first five Chicago batsmen supplied easy outs, but with two out in the second inning Dykes singled to center and stopped at second on Conlan's single to right. Sewell ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then fanned. In the home third Simmons walked with two down but was called out on an attempted delayed steal.

Travis got his second double with one out in the fourth inning and scored on Stone's bouncer over second. The ball should have been knocked down to hold Travis on third but Appling and Piet got crossed up and let it dribble through to center field. Strange hit into a double play launched by Piet.

Bonura Reaches Third.

The third Chicago hit, another single, was made by Bonura with two out in the fourth. Zeke went to third on Dykes' second hit, a single to right but Conlan grounded to Myer who stepped on second to force Dykes.

Sewell opened the Chicago fifth with a single to right and for some reason kept on running toward second. Miles threw the ball to Strange who waited patiently on second until Sewell came up, then tagged him. Lyons singled to center then Radcliff shot a drive to right center which seemed a certain triple. Stone, however, made a one-handed catch, and Lyons, who had rounded second, was an easy double play victim on Stone's throw to Kuhel at first.

Sox Tie Score.

Simmons singled to center to start the Chicago sixth and moved up on Piet's sacrifice. Simmons reached third and Appling reached first on a dribbler toward third which Newsom handled too late. Intelligent base running by Appling then enabled the Sox to tie the score on Bonura's potential double play ball. Zeke grounded to Myer and it looked like one of those tag-and-throw-to-first double plays until Appling went into reverse, and Myer had to be content with one out on a throw to Kuhel. In the meantime Simmons had scored the tying run. Dykes walked and Conlan popped to Myer.

Travis had another double in the making to start the Washington second until Bonura made a fine one-hand catch of his liner over first. Stone popped to Appling and Strange fouled to Sewell.

After Sewell had struck out for the second time, to start the seventh, Lyons beat out an infield bouncer for his second hit, but was forced by Radcliff. Radcliff stole second. Simmons walked. Piet forced Simmons. The next activity was in the ninth.

Yankees, Sox Open 8 Game Series Today

The big Yankee series—eight games in four days—opens this afternoon at Comiskey park. Vernon Kennedy and John Whitehead will pitch for the White Sox and it is expected that Charley Ruffing and Johnny Allen will work for the visitors.

Forty thousand tickets will be placed on sale at Comiskey park at 10 o'clock this morning.

The most sparkling fielding gem of several weeks was the work of Tony Piet for the third out in the eighth inning of yesterday's game. Tony raced deep into right field for a superb one-handed catch. He also ended the ninth inning on a swell stop of Travis' grounder.

Cubs Choose Lee to Stop Giants in Final Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—Manager Grimm's original plan for the pitching in the Cubs' final against the Giants tomorrow involved the services of Charley Root, but there has been a change. Grimm has decided to take a chance on Bill Lee, because Root has been slightly overworked recently. All that Lee will have to do is beat the speed balling Hal Schumacher.

Manager Bill Terry, in speaking of his Giants' pennant chances, admits his boys are tired. And Bill himself, who never is afraid to say what he thinks, admits he is among the tired ones.

No interviewers can make Grimm predict he is going to be the National league flag winner. Grimm's way of saying it is that the team that finishes ahead of the Cardinals will be in the World Series.

Babe Ruth, wearing an open neck shirt and a blue sport sweater, strolled into a front row box just after the Giants had completed their eight run blast. The crowd naturally gave him a big hand.

Billy Herman's two hits for the day gave him a season's total of 174. He's running neck and neck with Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals for first honors in this connection.

Vaughn Goes to Mound for Mills Today

Games Today

Duffy Florals at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick and Lake street, 1:30 p. m. [2 games].

Chicago Firemen at Niles Center.

Jim Vaughn, ex-Cub southpaw, will don a Mills uniform to take his place alongside Lefty Sullivan of the Mills pitching staf as the latter attempt to beat the Duffy Florals in a double-header at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street, this afternoon.

The appearance of the big southpaw in the Mills lineup marks the first time since 1924 that the two lefties have been members of the same club. At that time both were hurling for the Beloit Fairies of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, the Fairies being recognized as one of the greatest independent teams ever put together.

Florals Lose Only to Elgin.

The Duffy Florals beat the Mills in an earlier engagement on the Duffy field. Since then the Florals have met all Chicago league opposition, splitting even with Elgin for their only loss to a league team this season.

Figuring past performances of Tony Sims and Dutch Kohlenberg, the two Duffy star righthanders, Mills batters have a difficult task ahead of them in trying to solve their offerings.

At Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue, the House of David baseball nine will be the opponents in two games. Most of the members of the House of David club are former minor and major leaguers. Five pitchers are carried by the team, and all are capable of giving any club a tough afternoon.

Rube Lindquist, one of the stars of the Chicago league, will be in the Spencer outfield. Rube has been hitting and fielding well all season. Jake Sommerfield and Marvin Carlson or Irv Cohen will be the Spencers' selections against the House of David.

Firemen Meet Niles Center.

The Chicago Firemen will travel to Niles Center to meet the home club. The latter team is managed by Scotty Krier and Jack Campion. It'll be Firemen's day" at the northwest suburb, and Manager Chester Sullivan of the Firemen, aware of the fact that the major part of the crowd will be firemen, wants to win. Emmett Dorsey, star catcher, who has been out because of injuries, has returned. Roy Gutcher or Mack Burrows will be on the mound for the Firemen.

SPRAINED ANKLE TO KEEP FERRELL OUT TWO WEEKS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell, Boston Red Sox pitcher who suffered a sprained ankle Thursday during the Boston-Detroit game, probably will be out of the lineup for two weeks, his doctor said today.

Ferrell expected to leave the hospital today, however, and go to Cleveland where the Red Sox are playing.

Bruce Campbell, Cleveland outfielder who has been in the same hospital here three weeks recovering from an attack of cerebro-spinal fever, will leave the hospital tomorrow, but his physician said he doubted that Campbell would be able to play again this season.

AND THE FINISH OF LINCOLN HANDICAP—Four horses are closely bunched at the end of the mile and a sixteenth race. In the group are Sweeping Light (on the rail), the winner by a neck over the great filly Myrtlewood (next to rail); Prince Torch, and Top Dog. A head and a neck separated the second, third, and fourth horses. Myrtlewood, after taking the lead at the quarter mile mark, could not withstand the stretch rush of Sweeping Light, a 6 year old.

SECOND CHOICE TAKES OPENING RACE—Dusky Prince, ridden by Jocky Hanka, scores by two and a half lengths in first race yesterday at Lincoln Fields, with Sir Jim James, a field horse, second, and Hose, the favorite, third. After leading up to the quarter mile post, Sir Jim James surrendered to Dusky Prince, which held first place the remainder of the five and one-half furlong dash.

BONURA'S BACK AND SOX WIN—Joe Kuhel of Washington beats out a hit to Luke Appling in third inning of yesterday's game at Comiskey park. The Senator first baseman had the throw to Zeke Bonura beaten and although it was wild Big Zeke knocked it down and pounced on the ball to prevent the runner from taking an extra base. Note the ball.

SLIDE THAT BEATS YANKEES—Ed Coleman of the St. Louis Browns stirs up the dust as he brings in the second run of a ninth inning rally that enables Rogers Hornsby's team to beat New York, 7 to 6, and take the series, three games to two. West's double to left gave Coleman the chance to score.

ONE HOMER AGAINST THREE—Billy Herman is greeted by Chuck Klein (No. 5) after scoring on a four base drive off Carl Hubbell in the fifth inning of yesterday's game in which the Giants whipped the Cubs, 9 to 4. This was the only Cub homer. Hank Leiber got two and Mel Ott one for New York.

SHAMROCK WINS IN JACKSON PARK YACHT CLUB RACE

Edith III. Finishes First Among Cruisers.

Shamrock, John P. O'Rourke's new 8 meter class sloop, scored its first victory yesterday in the Jackson Park Yacht club's 12½ nautical mile triangular race. The 48 foot sloop, with its owner at the helm covered the course in the best time of any boat in the fleet, 2 hours 2 minutes and 26 seconds.

Twenty-one windjammers in five classes competed in the event. A moderate, variable northwest wind drove the yachts over rolling waves.

The commodore's flagship, Edith III., sailed by Commodore Robert Williamson, won in the cruising class. The schooner's elapsed time was 2:26:40. Gypsy, Don Jackson's entry, won the Seawanhaka class contest. Starlight, A. C. Rasmussen's sloop, placed first in the Star class race, and Willis Miller's Cracker Jack won the Jack class event. The cutter Valkyrie was out on the course for the last time under command of Robert Benedict, who sold the boat yesterday to Art Horton.

Skipper O'Rourke lengthened his lead in the Shamrock on the last leg of the course. At times his yacht was traveling nearly 9 miles an hour on the spinnaker run home, but averaged a trifle less than 6 m. p. h. for the race. The Jedzry-Kowski-Kallgren champion Q class sloop, Princess followed Shamrock to the finish, but could not catch the high sided white sloop. Summaries:

Ariel Finishes First.

E. E. [Ned] Sheridan sailed his R class sloop Ariel to first place in the opening race of the Chicago Yacht club's C series yesterday. After fighting Ardelle and Alert IV. around the 11 nautical mile course off Belmont harbor, Ariel finally passed the two at the finish line and won from Ardelle by 14 seconds. Elapsed time for the winner was 2:02:56.

The Eagle division raced over the 11 miles and the winner, Leeds Mitchell Jr.'s Quienna, covered the distance in 2 hours, 10 minutes, and 50 seconds. Bert Williams' chartered Bee won the Star class race from five other entries, and RiRi, H. W. Bordner, owner, won the Pup class contest. Summaries:

CRAMER TAKES PLACE IN BIG 6 WITH 3 HITS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Doc Cramer of the Athletics batted his way back into the Big Six yesterday and added an extra name to its rolls as Hank Greenberg and Buddy Myer continued their tie, although they were shoved down a peg on the American league list. Cramer hit three times in six tries and added two points to his average. Greenberg and Myer both went hitless, and in addition the former lost one hit and one run that had previously been credited to him when the records were rechecked. Arky Vaughan, Big Six leader, had another good day with two hits in three times up and hoisted his mark three points to .402.

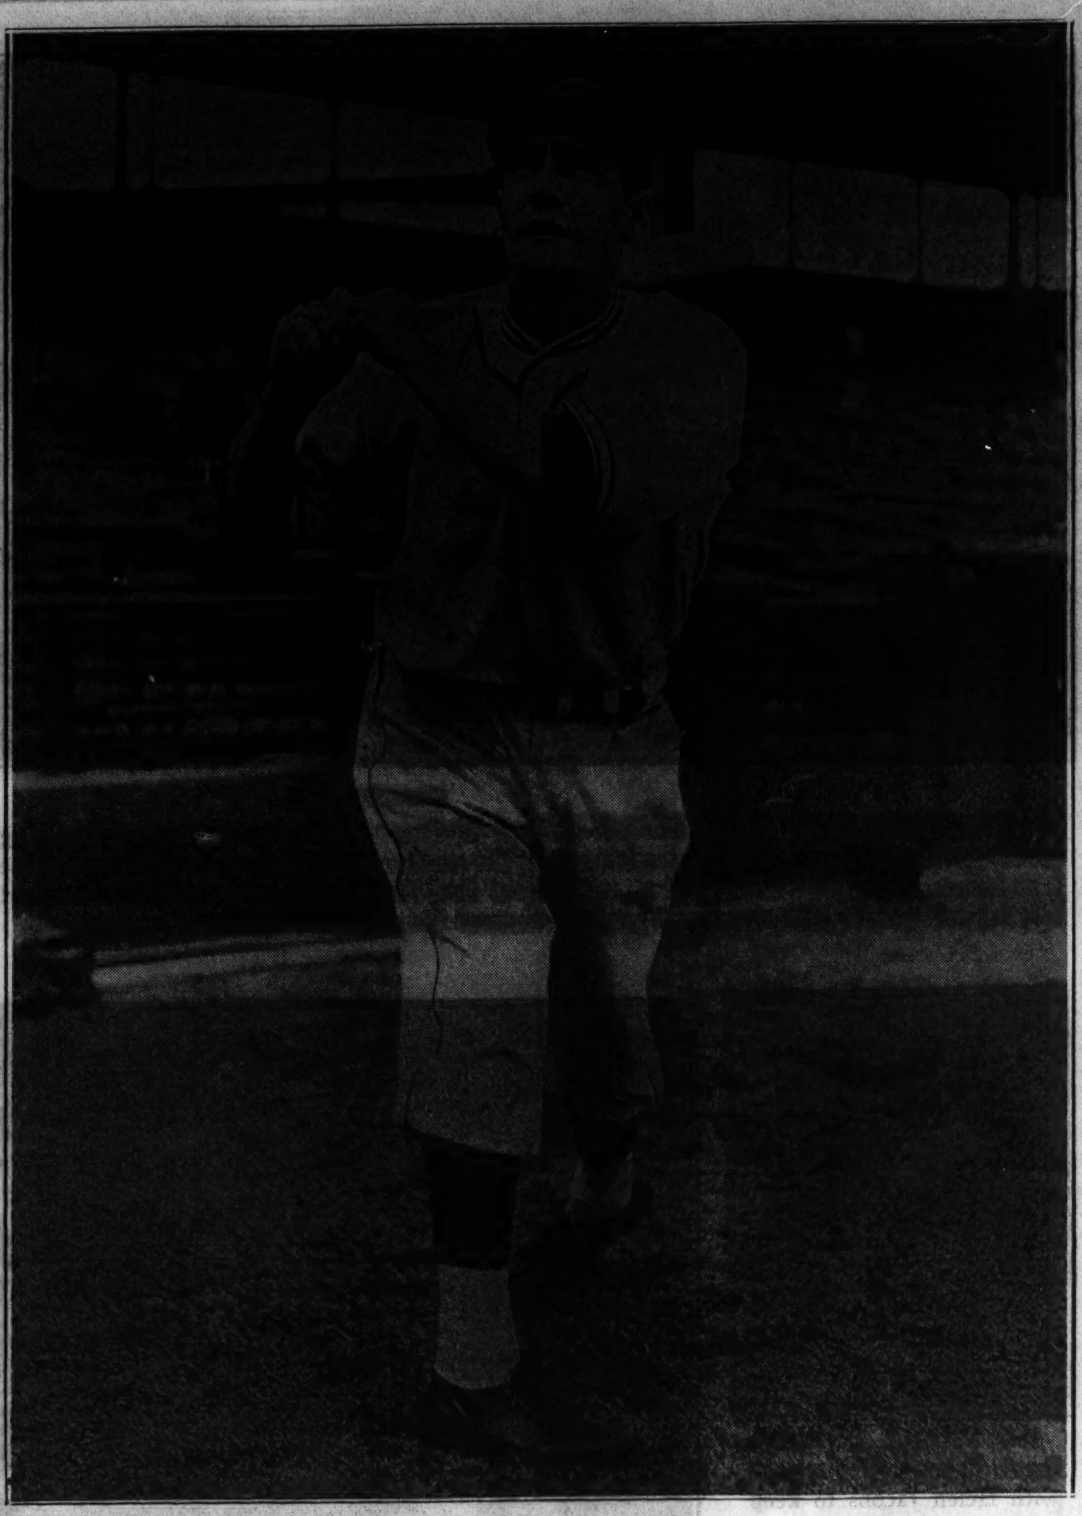
FANS HONOR CAVARRETTA ON SEPT. 7



Young Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs, who made good at first base with the Chicagoans and still is only 19 years old, will be honored by baseball fans Saturday, Sept. 7, at Wrigley field. Cavarretta, a former Lane Tech star, will be presented an automobile by Mayor Kelly in behalf of Cub fans. The Rev. S. J. Breen is chairman of the Cavarretta day committee. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Cavarretta Day Sept. 7 Honors Young Cub Star

Phil Cavarretta, youngest major league regular who became Manager Charley Grimm's successor as first baseman for the Cubs before his 19th birthday, will be honored Saturday, Sept. 7, with a special celebration at Wrigley field.

The former Lane Tech star, who was born on the northwest side of Chicago, will be the center of a Cavarretta day testimonial arranged by a committee of well known Chicagoans of Italian-American descent. The Rev. Frances X. Breen of St. Ignatius college, heads the committee as chairman, among the other members being Sanitary District Trustee Paul V. Coliani, former Judge John A. Sbarbaro, Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli, Ald. William Pacelli, and the Italian consul general, Giuseppe Castruccio.

An automobile will be presented to the Cubs' young star by Mayor Edward J. Kelly on behalf of the Cavarretta day committee and many of the alumni of Lane Technical High school who preceded Phil as students and who since have become successful business and professional men in Chicago. The day selected for the testimonial to Cavarretta will be the last of a four day series with the Philadelphia National league club.

Philip K. Wrigley, owner-president of the Cubs, who is said to have placed an appraisal of Cavarretta's present value to the team at $100,000 in terms of trade or purchase, has indicated his intention to participate in the Cavarretta day tribute to the youthful Chicagoan. The latter left school after three and a half years at Lane Tech to support his mother, sister, and brother.

New Waterfowl Code Stirs Up Controversies

BY BOB BECKER.

Ever since the Department of Agriculture in Washington issued the stringent waterfowl regulations for 1935-'36, American hunters have had opportunities to argue and many chances to get excited. The combination of a 30 day season, no more baiting, and no more live decoys in addition to a reduction in the bag limit has caused minor upheavals in some states, including Illinois.

The mail bag contains letters from those duck hunters who are delighted with the regulations because they force hunters to go back to the old-fashioned methods of hunting with block decoys, and at the same time keep Illinois and other states which fed ducks from getting a large concentration of birds. Then there are letters that are bitter about the "high handed" tactics of the government authorities. After reading both it is evident that 1935 shooting laws haven't pleased all groups of hunters and conservationists. The closed season group is sending up a cry about the situation and the hunters in the "left wing" are just as antagonistic because they can't see any reason for such regulations.

And so the battle of the "pros" and the "antis" continues. And right in the middle of the gunfire is the biological survey hearing the shells dropping all around.

If the duck hunter will put his ear to the ground he likely will hear something about these points in connection with the current situation:

1. Several of the states, including Illinois, may go to the courts regarding this year's regulations, very likely questioning the authority of the department of agriculture to establish such regulations.

2. The More Game Birds in America foundation is now making a survey of this year's duck crop with a staf of men and airplanes. This survey should give us an accurate answer to the question: Have the ducks fared well this season?

3. There is a strong feeling among many shooters that a straight 30 day season, one for each zone in the country, plus a few other restrictions, would accomplish the objectives of saving enough birds for seed stock without the new bag limit of 10 ducks a day in possession.

4. Hunters in states that feed or bait ducks [including California] are inclined to scoff at the claims of the anti-baiting element, due to the fact that the government's survey shows that only 660,000 of the ducks killed last year were taken over baited ground. This is a small proportion, they point out, when compared to the millions of birds killed by hunters not putting out food for the birds. Roughly, the 660,000 is about 12 per cent of the total kill, according to our figures.

Thus the ranks of the sportsmen are sharply divided this season over the necessity of such strict regulations for the coming shooting season.

Evans to Discuss All-Star, Bears Condition on WJJD

In his final broadcast before the game between the College All-Americans and Chicago Bears at Wrigley field Thursday night Jimmy Evans, WJJD sports reviewer, tonight will discuss the condition of players on each team, with comments on possibilities of the game. Evans' broadcast opens at 7 o'clock.

All-Star Game Promises Duel of Full Backs

men also will be invaluable in leading the interference.

Great All-Star Plungers.

The All-Americans will counter with Stan Kostka, Buzz Wetzel, and Inky Wotkyns. Now there are three youngsters who can carry that ball through the line. The Western conference long will remember Kostka's battering runs. And so will Pittsburgh which couldn't halt Stan in his line smashing which brought the ball into position for Lund's forward pass which scored the winning touchdown.

Yesterday morning the All-Americans held a short defensive scrimmage. They also spent considerable time brushing up their attack. One of the most important items in any attack is the pass from center. This requires particular accuracy in the Notre Dame system where the runner needs a short lead and the ball is thrown 5 or 6 yards. None of the All-American centers has had previous experience with this type of pass. Gerald Ford of Michigan; Larry Siemering of San Francisco; George Shotwell of Pittsburgh, and Elwood Kalbaugh of Princeton, comprising the list of centers, have mastered the technique and the coaches now feel certain that there will be a minimum of mistakes.

Seven Scrappy Guards.

The All-Star guards, a vital point in attack since they are spear heads in the interference, are fast and shifty. The coaches haven't indicated who will start the battle. Here is the list of seven men: George Barclay, North Carolina; Regis Monahan, Ohio State; Rocco Schiralli, Notre Dame, who played more minutes of Notre Dame's schedule than any other of his mates; Bill Bevan, Minnesota's scrappy lineman; Al Kawal, Northwestern; Herman Gundlach, Harvard's 1934 captain, and Charles Mucha, Washington.

The All-American guards will face two of the greatest of professionals, Joe Kopcha and Jules Carlson. The fight in the center of the line will be something to watch.

The All-Americans will not work out today. The boys were given yesterday afternoon and today to rest before resuming practice tomorrow. Three more drills are scheduled, one of which will be held at Soldiers' field under the lights. Then comes the fight, the nation's greatest sports event.

VANCE ASKS FOR HIS OLD JOB ON CARDINALS' STAF

New York, Aug. 24.—Dazzy Vance, casting about for a new job and hoping to find one that will keep him in the National league, after his unconditional release by the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, communicated today with Branch Rickey, who hires and fires Cardinals. Manager Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis club is reported willing to add Vance to his staf once more for relief work. Vance was with the Cardinals last year and was carried into his first world series. St. Louis gave him his unconditional release last spring, and a few days later he returned to the Dodgers.

BEARS RUSH TO IMPROVE TEAM PLAY FOR STARS

Plan Work on Defense for This Week.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 24.—The Chicago Bears had time today to ponder the mistakes made in last night's practice game at Waukesha. With a recital of missed blocks and garbled assignments came realization that unless greater improvement is shown in the next four days, Thursday's meeting with the College All-Stars at Soldiers' field is apt to prove much more embarrassing than last year's scoreless tie.

The greatest need is for unity. Perfection of a smooth offense has been delayed by the slowness of some men to learn signals, even though almost two weeks of double practice daily has been spent on dummy scrimmage and the running of plays. No work has been done on the defense, which complicates Coach George Halas' task the next four days.

Will They Reach Peak?

There had been little apprehension in the Bears' camp up until today, but now the players are beginning to show concern over whether they will reach the peak they had anticipated for the All-Star game. The makings are there for a much better team than that which faced the All-Stars last year. Whether it proves itself an improvement over the 1934 eleven depends on how much teamwork can be developed in the next four days.

The cripples have responded to treatment, and excepting Ben Franklin, who suffered a severe ankle injury in last night's game, all are able now to participate in practice. With Bill Karr, Bronko Nagurski, and Gene Ronzani taking their places in the lineup again, coaches expect teamwork to be only a matter of a little more drill.

Halas spent the day in Chicago today and the squad held its only practice in the afternoon under the direction of Assistant Coaches Red Grange and Luke Johnsos. A long lecture was followed by a dummy scrimmage and a kicking drill. Halas returned to camp tonight and two practices are planned for tomorrow.

Johnson Looks 'Em Over.

Among the visitors today was Leo Johnson, coach at James Millikin university, who coached George Corbett, half back, and George Musso, tackle, two veterans on the Bears' squad. Johnson was impressed by the squad's condition, but noted the absence of timing and coördination.

"The mental attitude of the squad is greatly improved over that of a year ago," Johnson said. "St. Johns' is the perfect training camp. It is evident that the men have been working hard, but they need more polish on the offense, I believe, before they can expect to gain consistently against the stubborn resistance the collegians are certain to put up.

"I am told by college coaches who watched last night's game at Waukesha that the running attack was very ragged and ineffective, but that the passing was very good. If this is true, an aerial attack probably will be the Bears' forte Thursday night."

CARD 3 GAMES TOMORROW IN GIRLS' SOFTBALL

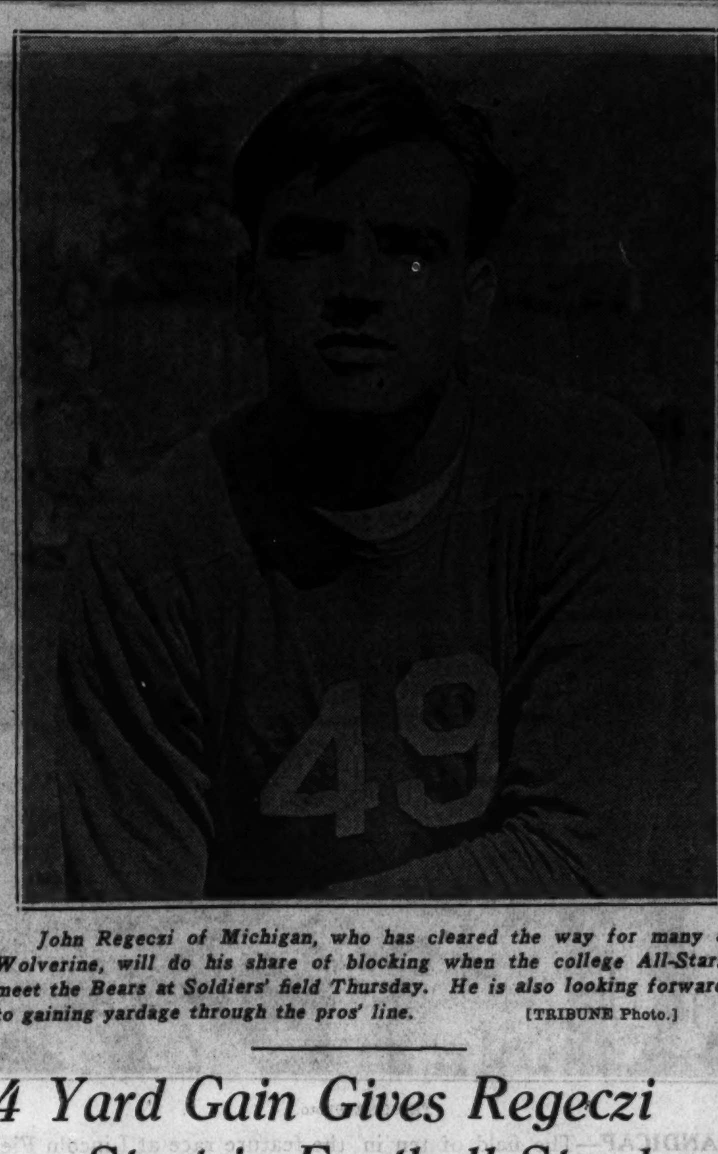
The Chicago Major Girls' Softball league will present three games, starting at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night, at the Mills stadium, which will have an important bearing in deciding the eventual champion in the fast and slow pitching divisions of the circuit.

In the first game the Narragan-Nor-Claire Drug Co-Eds will oppose the Commercial Tire Supply Co-Eds. The second game will pit the Felz Motors against the Dennis A. Horan Boosters, and the third will match the Hart Motors and Fellmeth Decorators in fast pitching.

The Hart Motors are setting the pace in both divisions, having yet to lose a game, but are being closely pursued by the Commercials and Horans in slow pitching and the Felz Motors and Commercials in fast pitching.

First round play is scheduled to close Sept. 3, at which time the four surviving clubs in both divisions will play each other once to decide the champions.

BLOCKER AND BALL CARRIER



John Regeczi of Michigan, who has cleared the way for many a Wolverine, will do his share of blocking when the college All-Stars meet the Bears at Soldiers' field Thursday. He is also looking forward to gaining yardage through the pros' line. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

4 Yard Gain Gives Regeczi Start in Football Stardom

BY HOWARD BARRY.

John Regeczi, who has cleared the way for some of the University of Michigan's greatest ground gainers in the capacity of a blocking half back, will get a chance to do some ball carrying himself in the game between the college All-Stars and the Chicago Bears Thursday night at Soldiers' field.

Regeczi, a tall, dark-haired bronzed young fellow, gave a few of his ideas on the big game yesterday in the college squad's headquarters on the Northwestern university campus.

"I had a little trouble at first getting used to the timing in the Notre Dame system, but I'm getting accustomed to it now and I'm confident that I'll have it right by the time of the game."

Gains Confidence Quickly.

Regeczi is a young fellow who gains confidence quickly and who derives from that confidence a spark that puts him up among the greatest players in the country. A little anecdote he told illustrates how an apparently minor incident encouraged him at the time he needed all the confidence he could get.

"In my first game as a sophomore," he said, "we went up against Michigan State. Coach Kipke had drilled it into us that these felows were mighty tough and I was pretty worried. On the first play a Michigan State man went for a touchdown, but the play was called back because one of their linemen was offside. That run made me believe we had a harder job than ever on our hands.

"On our first play I was given the ball. It was the first time I had ever carried it in a college game, so you can guess how I felt as it was snapped back. I hit the line, found an opening, and plowed through for four yards. You may laugh at the story because four yards seems a trivial gain, but that was as much as I needed to get my confidence. I said to myself these fellows aren't so tough after all. Then we went on and beat them easily.

Throws Rentner for Loss.

"In the next game, we were playing against Northwestern. They had the ball inside our ten yard line, expecting to put over a touchdown. Somehow or other I happened to break through and threw Pug Rentner for a five yard loss. That stopped their march and it gave me the confidence on defense that that four yard gain did on offense.

"At Michigan most of our plays were run off from a short punt formation and I was called upon to block most of the time. I got tired of that eventually. I like the Notre Dame system better because I get a chance to do more ball carrying now."

In addition to being one of the best blockers in Michigan's football history, Regeczi also is a specialist at kicking. During his three years of varsity competition, he did most of the Wolverines' punting, his long, high spirals giving his teammates a vital advantage in many of their games.

Expects Bears to Prove Troublesome.

Regeczi anticipates plenty of trouble from the Bears, pointing out that all the members of the team were great players to begin with and that in addition they have had several years of experience together.

"A smart bunch of college players can be whipped into shape quickly, however," he went on. "The fundamentals are the same in any system. We have fine coaching and the fellows are willing to work, so there's no reason why we shouldn't be ready to put up a tough game next Thursday."

Iowa Teachers Name Bevan on Coaching Staf

Waterloo, Ia., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Dave McCusky, member of the Iowa State Teachers college athletic staf for five years, and William [Bill] Bevan, University of Minnesota star, today were named head coach and assistant, respectively at Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls.

McCusky, who has served as assistant football coach, succeeds John Baker, former star at University of Southern California, who resigned in July to become an assistant at Omaha Municipal university. Bevan accepted the position late today in a telephone conversation with President O. R. Latham. Bevan is now with the college all-stars at Evanston, Ill., preparing for the game with the Chicago Bears Thursday.

Bevan, President Latham said, would serve only during the football season and then return to Minnesota to complete his work for graduation in the spring. The former Minnesota star previously had agreed to coach the freshman line at Minnesota this fall, but he was released to accept the Teachers college offer.

CRAWFORDS WIN FROM GIANTS IN 19TH, 11 TO 8

Chicago's American Giants and the Pittsburgh Crawfords battled 19 innings before the latter won, 11 to 8, in the first of a four game Negro National league series at Cole's park yesterday. The series resumes with a double-header today.

Three times Pittsburgh, winners of the first half of the league's title race, came from behind in regulation time to tie up the score, the third time getting three runs in the ninth to even the score at 7 to 7. Two errors by Radcliffe, Giants' third baseman, figured in this rally by the Crawfords.

In the eleventh both teams scored once, then followed seven scoreless innings before the easterners won out in the nineteenth with another three run attack, built on a double and four singles. Score:

Chicago .130 021 000 010 000 000 0— 8 13 5

PRO LEAGUE HEAD RATES TEAMS IN BIG GAME EQUAL

Joseph Carr Asks Place as No. 1 Fan.

BY JOSEPH F. CARR.
[President, National Professional Football League.]

Eight million fans have shown their interest in the second annual Bears-All Stars football game by voting in the nation-wide polls to determine the members of the College All-Star team and the coaching staf, but I would like to be named the No. 1 fan, for when the Chicago Bears line up against the All-Americans under the floodlights at Soldiers' field next Thursday night there will be no one in the huge stadium on the lake front more interested in the contest than myself.

In my long association with football and baseball, no game stands out in my memory more clearly than the scoreless tie between the All-Stars and the Bears last summer, when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE inaugurated the contest, probably the greatest stimulus the sport could receive. I watched every play as I sat in the stands and I believe this year's game, with more versatile players in the All-Star lineup, will afford the thousands who see the battle more thrills than the 1934 contest.

Pros Have Most to Lose.

Viewing the game from the professionals' side, there is more to lose than to gain. It has been presumed for many years that the professionals play a greater game of football than the collegians. Last year's contest indicated that a group of young men, fresh out of college, can be welded into a team within a few weeks and give any great professional club a hard battle for 60 minutes.

Both sides are eager to win the game. The spirit of the All-Star team last year was shown when Mike Mikulak, hard driving full back from the University of Oregon, after stopping several plunges by Bronko Nagurski, turned and yelled to the former Minnesota full back, "When yuh gonna start gaining some ground, big boy?"

Fair Play Rules Contest.

Sportsmanship and fair play prevailed through the entire contest. The teams fought hard to win, but after it was all over members of both elevens were seen walking off the field and congratulating each other on their fine play. Several members of the All-Star team joined professional clubs the following day. For instance, Beattie Feathers, Tennessee's triple threat star, after helping hold the Bears to an embarrassing 0 to 0 tie, joined the league champions the next day and there was no one on the Bears' team who was not ready to give the speedy half back a few helpful hints.

Who will win this year's contest? In my opinion the teams are equal. Both squads are undergoing hard training to show whether college or professional football is superior. The Bears, under the direction of Coach George Halas, should be ready for the game after three weeks' training at Delafield, Wis., while the All-Stars, under coaching by Frank Thomas, Slip Madigan, Charles Bachman and Dr. C. W. Spears on Northwestern's campus in Evanston, should have their plays mastered and a defense for the Bears.

No matter what the result, however, the game brings about a fine relationship between the college and professional game, both of which have a distinct place in the sports entertainment program of the United States. The contest is worth going across the country to see.

PACKERS OPEN TRAINING CAMP; AL ROSE SIGNS

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Al Rose, veteran end, signed a contract and joined the squad of 24 Green Bay Packer football players who left here today with Coach E. L. [Curly] Lambeau for a 10 day stay at Lake Thompson near Rhinelander in preparation for the National Professional Football league campaign. Rose is starting his fourth season here after playing one year with Providence, where he broke into the pro ranks after a collegiate career at Texas.

This afternoon the squad held a brief workout at Rhinelander High school stadium before moving on to Lake Thompson, four miles east of Rhinelander. The team will commute daily to Rhinelander for morning workouts.

Reds to Protest Phillies' Use of Infielder Gomez

"They say Gomez belongs to the Monessen club of the Pennsylvania State league," Nugent said. "Monessen is one of their farms and they believe, therefore, that Jose belongs to them."

"So far as we are concerned, Gomez is the property of the Phils," Nugent added. "We investigated thoroughly before offering him a contract."

Life became unpleasant for the Phils when the Reds blew into town Thursday. They slammed out a 9 to 1 victory in the first game of the series, then entered a protest [later withdrawn] on the cancellation of Friday's game to make a double-header today.

SWEEPING LIGHT TAKES HANDICAP; MYRTLEWOOD 2D

Fleet Myrtlewood from Kentucky came to the end of her victory trail in the eighth running of the Lincoln handicap at Lincoln Fields yesterday afternoon.

She showed her tremendous burst of speed and demonstrated great gameness when she marched proudly down the stretch with her head in front. Her admirers, who had made her a 7 to 5 favorite, yelled and yelled some more.

Then came the stoutest challenge ever hurled at her. Older horses—steeds that have reached greatness on many occasions—charged up alongside her.

The daughter of Blue Larkspur-Frizeur faltered. And when she faltered Sweeping Light, battle scarred veteran of many turf battles, a horse that has one decision over the great champion Equipoise, moved up and snatched victory away from her by the length of his neck.

Saves Second Money.

Myrtlewood was surrounded by hard smashing horses as the line of finish neared. Prince Torch, Top Dog, Clang and Tearout were all charging at her. One more short stride would have put her completely out of the picture.

She was startled when Sweeping Light collared her, but she soon recovered. She didn't take that last fatal short stride. Instead she started running again and saved second money, although she was but a head in front of Prince Torch when the battle finally ended. Top Dog was fourth and Clang, which had run on even terms with Myrtlewood all through the early stages, was fifth.

Sweeping Light and Myrtlewood each carried 114 pounds, actual weights. Yet Myrtlewood is a 3 year old filly and Sweeping Light is a 6 year old gelding. So according to scale weights Myrtlewood was giving Sweeping Light 13 pounds. Her defeat was far from disgraceful and it hardly gave a definite proof that when equally weighted according to the scale Myrtlewood cannot run a distance and win.

Every Once in a While.

Sweeping Light, owned by R. O. Higdon of Tulsa, Okla., is a son of Manna-Sweeping Glance and often during his four year campaign he has arisen to the heights and beaten the best horses in training. He beat Equipoise in California last winter while both were getting ready for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

Sweeping Light ran the mile and a sixteenth of the Lincoln in 1:44 1-5 after Myrtlewood and Clang, running head and head, had reeled off the first quarter in :23, the half in :46 4-5, the three-quarters in 1:11, and the mile in 1:37 1-5. The gross value of the Lincoln was $6,125, and Sweeping Light's share of the purse was $4,375.

Most of those in the crowd of 17,000, the largest of the year at Lincoln Fields, sort of suspected that Myrtlewood would be beaten. Still they couldn't pick the one that would wind up in front of her, so most of the betting support at post time went to Myrtlewood.

Sweeping Light Pays $27.20.

The result was that all of Myrtlewood's rivals were longshots. Sweeping Light paid $27.20 to win, $8.60 to place, and $5.60 to show. Myrtlewood's place price was $4.40 and her show price $3.40. Prince Torch was at $14.00 to show.

Sweeping Light raced under snug restraint during the early stages, but never was far back of Myrtlewood, Clang, Gay Monarch, and Top Dog, which were fighting for the lead. He was put under some pressure by Jocky Charley Parvin rounding the lower bend and had moved into fourth place when the run down the stretch started.

Jocky Parvin started driving him at that stage and he soon moved past Top Dog and Clang and then took out after Myrtlewood. He caught her in the last dozen strides. Clang and Top Dog were quitting badly, and Prince Torch moved past both of them to finish third only a neck and a head back of the winner.

Favorites Have Bad Day.

Sweeping Light's victory was just one of many scored by outsiders during the afternoon. Favorites were bowled over in the first four races. Finally a choice did win. Banish Fear, backed down to 7 to 5, captured the Woodland purse at seven furlongs by the comfortable margin of two lengths. Pundit closed a lot of ground in the stretch to be up in time to take down second money. Be Shy, which raced Isaiah into submission in the early stages, hung on long enough to be third. Banish Fear reeled off the seven furlongs in 1:24. She is a castoff from the Bradley stable and raced for L. Beyda.

ALL BUT THREE OF GIANTS SIGN 1935 CONTRACTS

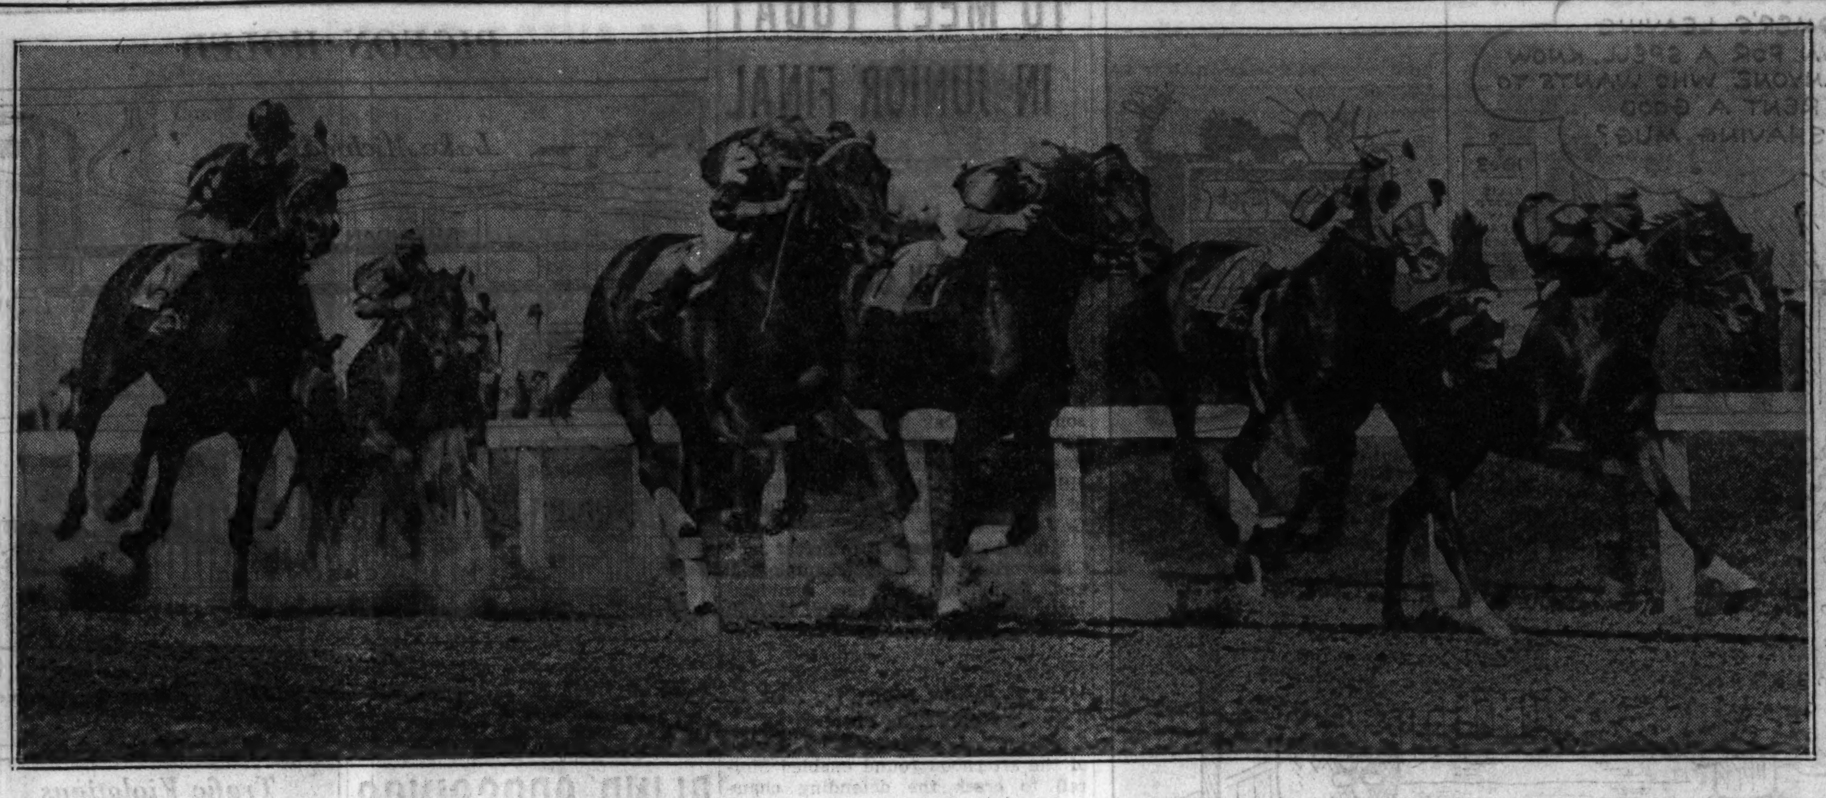
Toledo, O., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Russ Keier, Riverby Hills, defeated Carl Hoff, Chicago, 3 and 2, in the final for the junior invitational golf title of the Toledo Country club this afternoon. The winner was awarded the Edison Baumgardner trophy.

HORSES IN LINCOLN FIELDS RACE FINISH INCHES APART



Lady Roma (No. 6), which led almost from the start, but never by more than a head, gets a close decision in third race at Lincoln Fields yesterday. A nose behind and in second place is My Auntie (No. 2), which had a margin of a head over Zuni (No. 11). Another nose back and in fourth place came Dilwin (No. 1). Because of the perspective it appears easy to decide the winner, but from the judges' stand it was a task to name the places in which the first four horses finished. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Discovery, at 1-10, Takes Whitney Stake

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP)—With only 126 pounds in the saddle, a feather in comparison with the weight he had been carrying, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery came back to the races with only two days rest today and won the eighth running of the Whitney stakes.

Apparently unwearied by a campaign that has carried him to almost every major track in the east and middle west, the big chestnut son of Display, which fell before the lightly burdened Top Row at Narragansett Park on Wednesday, toyed with his three rivals today in chalking up his ninth victory of the year.

Carrying 11 pounds less than he packed at Narragansett, Discovery ran the one and one-quarter miles in 2:04 3-5. At the finish Jean Bejshak had him under restraint, but he still was two lengths in front of Mrs. William Ziegler Jr.'s lightly weighted 3 year old, Esposa. Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Good Goods was another length in the rear, while Hindu Queen, Discovery's stablemate, brought up the rear. Somebody and Firethorn were scratched.

Rated 1-10 at Start.

Despite his defeat, Discovery went to the post the prohibitive choice of 1 to 10 to win the purse of $3,125 and stretch his earnings for the year to $79,115. He was not long in justifying his odds. Bejshak allowed Esposa to take a long lead in the first quarter of a mile, but the filly's lead gradually diminished on the back stretch. Rounding the far turn, Discovery passed Esposa and then drew away in the stretch to win as he pleased.

The weekly parade of the turf's ranking 2 year olds in one of the juvenile events saw The Fighter from Mrs. Ethel V. Mar's Milky Way farm of Chicago show the way home to 13 other youngsters in the 33d running of the Grand Union hotel stakes.

This Was a Romp, Too.

Invading the east with a record of three straight victories at Arlington Park and four triumphs in five starts, the son of Bulldog ran much the same type of race as did Discovery. With Sonny Workman handling the reins, he trailed in second place to the head of the stretch and then shot to the front to beat Ogden Phipps' White Cockade by one and one-half lengths in 1:12 3-5. Snark, from the Wheatley stable and coupled with White Cockade in the betting, was third, another half-length to the rear.

The Fighter was well played at 4 to 1 to take the purse of $8,700. Back among the also rans were such highly regarded 2 year olds as E. R. Bradley's Bow to Me, Dewitt Page's Maeriel, Vanderbilt's Postage Due, and Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Delphinium.

WHOPPER WINS

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Two oversized horses, Hal Price Headley's Whopper and George D. Widener's Sation, ran one-two in the first renewal of the Blackstone Valley handicap at Narragansett park today, the Headley colt leading the other home by a length.

It was the second successive victory for the sizable son of Pharamond II. on this track and netted his owner $4,830, nearly doubling the earnings of the horse this season. Whopper's total now is $10,405.

Too Much Weight?

This marked Sation's first start of the year and under the punishing import of 130 pounds he performed in much the same fashion that brought him victory in four out of his five stake engagements last season.

Right after the start, Mrs. Walter E. O'Hara's New Deal stumbled and threw Ira Hanford. Whopper came up fast on the rail after the Northway Stable's Toro Nancy showed on top for a time.

At the half-mile pole, Whopper enjoyed a slight lead and by clinging close to the rail through the turn and into the head of the stretch he increased his advantage. The others went slightly wide and Sation lost what chance he had of overtaking Whopper. The Widener horse did run down Joe E. Brown's Captain Argo, however, and gained the place position by half a length. Captain Argo was a length and a half in front of Vicar.

Nears Track Record.

The time was 1:10 3-5, within one-fifth of a second of the track record. Whopper enjoyed a 25 pound weight pull on Sation and Captain Argo was in 20 pounds lighter. Sation was favored in the betting so Whopper pair $23.10, $8.60 and $5.90, with Sation returning $5.90 and $4.00, and Captain Argo, $3.80.

DUSKY PRINCE, never far back, raced around the leaders with a rush on the turn and inclined to loaf after drawing out into a long lead, was under energetic riding the final eighth. SIR JIM JAMES, quickest to begin and on inside throughout, held on well. HOSE, probably best, and forced back before going a quarter, lost much ground the last three-eighths and came with a remarkable rush in final quarter.

ZORANA going in her best form and showing the most speed from the start, weakened slightly in final sixteenth but withstood POLYPHOTE'S bid. LADY ROMA, away slowly and brought over sharply as she raced to the lead with a rush in opening quarter stubbornly resisted determined contention from ZUNI, but just lasted. MY AUNTIE, probably much the best and forced back as ZUNI and the winner came over soon after reaching the turn, suffered additional interference in stretch and closing fast when clear on outside in final eighth, barely failed to get up. ZUNI, also brought over sharply in early stages, was under severe pressure the final quarter and held on stubbornly.

TRINCHERA displayed fine speed from the start, was forced to race a trifle wide until reaching final three-sixteenths and continuing gamely after being headed by CHIEF PILOT in final sixteenth got up in final stride. Latter, taken back slightly to reach the inside entering stretch, came through the opening with a rush and after coming to outside of winner worked his way to front but weakened right at the end. LADY FEDERAL, well rated and under strong restraint for three-quarters, increased her advantage easily after reaching stretch but was lightly shaken up in final eighth. BURNING UP, rushed to a contending position on inside, was steadied around the turn and stood a mild drive gamely. VOLTA MAID lost considerable ground and closed well in a good effort.

OLD LADY, slow to get going raced very wide when rapidly improving her position, and continuing well after taking command held BRASS BUTTONS safe. KOZAK dropped back slightly on second turn, was jostled about soon after reaching stretch and finished well when clear.

FIGHT STARTED TO BALK WRIT ISSUED TO MIKEL

A motion to dissolve the injunction under which John D. Mikel, race horse owner of Carlock, Ill., is racing his horses at Lincoln Fields, was made before Superior Judge Peter H. Schwaba yesterday by Assistant Attorney General William C. Clausen on behalf of the Illinois racing commission. The injunction was issued on Aug. 15 restraining the commission from putting into effect its order suspending Mikel from the turf for life.

After listening to the contention that the proper action for Mikel to institute was mandamus proceedings and not an injunction, Judge Schwaba continued the hearing until tomorrow.

Norwegian Soccer Team to Meet Vikings Today

The Norwegian-American soccer eleven of the International league will meet last year's league champions, the Swedish Viking team, at Winnemac park, at Damen and Winnemac avenues, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The Norwegians will depend on their fleetfooted center forward, Ivar Eid, to turn back the champions.

Aurora Polo Team Wins in Test Games

Westbury, L. I., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Two round robins, with twenty-four players competing and more than a hundred horses on hand, filled the two Phipps fields to capacity this afternoon as several of the open tournament players engaged in limbering up play before tomorrow's test games to be played at Meadow Brook, Bostwick field, and Sands Point. Only one of the open teams played intact, Aurora going into one game as the Blues and riding in the regular lineup. This marked the return of Seymour Knox to the No. 1 position and was the reason for their playing as a team, Knox having been on the ground for a week with a cold.

Auroras Win Twice.

The Aurora team played well, to turn back their two opponents, the Reds, 3 to 2, in three periods, and the Whites in the next three, 4 to 2. Charley Wrightsman, Billy Reynolds, Bob Bullock, and Billy Nichols formed the Reds, while Ben Phipps, Dr. John Richards, Winston Guest, and Carl Crawford played for the Whites.

The Aurora team moved much more smoothly today, though it was only an easy workout, than they had at Piping Rock on Wednesday, and were much more of a team. They play another formal practice match tomorrow at Sands Point, meeting Long Island there.

Blue Team Wins Twice.

In the other round robin a Blue team on which Carl Crawford, playing in his second match of the day, shared No. 1 with Seward Carey, Mike Phipps, H. K. Coulter, and H. S. Cram played defeated the Reds, 4 to 1, and the Whites, 5 to 4. The Reds consisting of Bradley Martin, Alan Corey, W. G. Holloway, and Ray Guest, defeated the White side, on which Bob Hassler, Lieut. H. Geoffrey, Stewart Iglehart, and Barney Balding played, 5 to 4.

Six of the British ponies arrived today in advance of the main party, which is shipping over Tuesday and were installed at Mitchell field.

Bowling Alley Proprietors Hold Meeting Tomorrow

Officials of the Bowling Alley Proprietors Association of America, with which the Greater Bowling association is affiliated, will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Sherman hotel. A program of education, promotion, operations, and exchange of ideas on the bowling game has been arranged. Officials of the national association who will give talks are Harry Feuser of St. Louis, president, John Bauer of Detroit, and Louis Petersen of Chicago.

Olympia Fields Cardinals Meet in Polo Today

Meeting in the rubber game of their series, Olympia Fields will battle the Cardinals polo quartet from the 124th field artillery this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Bell Ranch polo grounds of the Olympia Fields Country club, 203d street and Governor's highway.

The Cardinals won the first engagement early in the season, 6 to 2. Olympia Fields evened matters by defeating the Cards, 7 to 1, two weeks ago.

Capt. Romeo Mura, who led his mates to a national indoor title last spring at New York, will lead the Cardinals, playing the No. 3 key post. He was out of the lineup in the last game against Olympia Fields.

Riding in front of Capt. Mura will be Capt. Leo B. Callahan at No. 1 and Lieut. Don Rice at No. 2, while the defense berth will be held by Capt. Leslie Ireland. Lieuts. Lou Levine and Russ Whitney will have first call as replacements.

Four victories in a row have given Olympia Fields confidence. The team plans to start the winning combination of John Brenza, Charlie Roovaart, Eddie Hirsch, and Ken Carter, lining up in the order named.

With Carl Johnson back in the lineup after suffering a broken wrist some weeks ago, the 122d Field Artillery Polo team will meet Forest Hills tomorrow. Play will start at 3:30 o'clock at Northshore Polo and Hunt club, on Glenview-rd. The lineup:

FOREST HILLS.	122D F. A.
T. Pophon, No. 1.	Lieut. A. Pio.
J. Winkler, No. 2.	Lieut. A. Zimmerman.
A. Witthaus, No. 3.	Lieut. C. Harrison.
W. Bauers, back.	Lieut. C. Johnson.

Christy Meets Lou Feldman on Mills Card

BY FRANK MASTRO.

James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis, veteran Chicago promoters, who have combined and thus formed one of the strongest promotional units in the country, will present their next boxing show at Mills stadium Wednesday night.

Two bouts at ten rounds, which top the card, will bring together Lew Feldman, New York, and Jimmy Christy of the Catholic Youth organization, and Holman Williams, Detroit, and Lew Massey, Philadelphia. All are lightweights.

Christy, 20 years old, will be making his second start as a lightweight. He whipped Jackie Sharkey of Minneapolis, Minn., at Marigold Gardens, last July 7 in his first. Jimmy defeated only once in 19 professional encounters, first attracted attention when he whipped Dave Barry of Springfield, Ill., at White City, Oct. 15 of last year. He then strengthened his position by holding Everett Rightmire to a ten round draw at Midway arena Oct. 29.

Christy Beats Belloise.

Last Feb. 8 Christy was victorious in ten rounds over Tony Morgano of Philadelphia at Hollywood, Cal., but in a return scrap March 8 they fought a ten round draw. Two months later the C. Y. O. star achieved his most notable accomplishment when he triumphed in ten rounds over Mike Belloise of New York at Chicago Stadium.

Feldman, whose style has given him the nickname, Jumping Jack, has an edge over Christy in experience. Boxing since 1928 the New York boxer has met such leaders as Petey Hayes, Mike Belloise, Petey Sarron, Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, and Kid Chocolate, Tommy Paul and Bat Battalino, all three of whom are former holders of the crown, and Kid Francis. He holds decisions over all except Miller and Chocolate.

Williams Unbeaten This Year.

Holman Williams is undefeated this year. This 5 foot 9 inch boxer, born in Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 30, 1915, knocked out Eddie Carroll of Toronto, Ont., at Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1, and Lee Shepard, Jan. 7, Billy Mack, Feb. 18, Harry Booker, Feb. 11, and Baby Tiger Flowers, July 2, in Chicago. He won decisions over Harry Booker, in Chicago, Jan. 14; Billy Vaughn at Milwaukee, Feb. 26; Tommy Paul at Detroit, March 22; Wesley Farrell, May 17, and K. O. White, May 31, both in New Orleans, La. Williams won the colored lightweight championship by beating Farrell.

Massey will be making his first Chicago appearance against Williams. He won in eight rounds over Bobby Pacho, Los Angeles, Cal., at New York Jan. 25. He beat Leonard Del Genio at Philadelphia Feb. 18, and in a subsequent battle there April 29 he lost to Cleto Locatelli of Milan, Italy. In his latest Lew handed a lacing to Willie Davies of Dallas, Tex., at Dallas, Aug. 2.

Bouts on this week's boxing and wrestling schedule include:

BAER WORKS ON NEW PLANS FOR BOUT WITH LOUIS

Experiments with Crouch in First Sparring Drill.

Speculator, N. Y., Aug. 24.—[U. P.]—Ring tactics designed to halt Joe Louis' triumphal march were revealed today in the first boxing session of Maxie Baer's training campaign for next month's big fight.

Maxie and his board of strategy have resurrected the "Jeffries crouch," the stance with which Jim Jeffries outmaneuvered and stowed away Bob Fitzsimmons back in 1900.

In this first session of sparring since losing his title to Jimmy Braddock in June, Maxie fought from his new crouch during most of the three rounds with two spar mates. Crouching forward with chin well protected by left shoulder and with right glove held high to block punches from his starboard side, Maxie covered better than heretofore, and at the same time was in position to use his own left hook damagingly.

Plans to Take Aggressive.

The former champ and his handlers realized that if Maxie, with his previous open style of fighting, was unable to evade the blows of aging Jimmy Braddock he would have little chance against Louis—a smart, deadly two handed crusher. Accordingly blueprints for the battle at Yankee stadium Sept. 24 call for Maxie to keep "walking in" on Joe. Always in position to wallop the Detroit Negro, but taking no chances on being nailed.

Cancella Lands Punches.

Cancella landed more punches than Maxie in their two rounds and brought blood from Baer's nose in the second session with straight lefts. Max staggered Tony once in the second round with a left hook to the chin. The ex-champion appeared somewhat tuckered when the going got rough, but that was to be expected in his first day of boxing.

Scozza, fast and shifty, followed orders and made Maxie chase him, to accustom Baer to advancing rapidly from the Jeffries crouch. Scozza did little punching.

Maxie weighs 218 pounds. During the month of training he expects to pare off about 10 pounds.

LOUIS TO START WORK.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Joe Louis, who will fight Max Baer in New York Sept. 24, probably will go into training Wednesday either in Saratoga, N. Y., or Pompton Lakes, N. J.

Louis and his staf will leave Sunday afternoon for Washington, D. C., where Louis is to appear Monday and Tuesday at the convention of colored Elks. He will go to New York Tuesday night and then to his training camp.

MISS TURNBULL TO RETIRE FROM RACING; MARRY

Monrovia, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Miss Loretta Turnbull, the greatest women's outboard motorboat pilot in the world, is going to swap her grease-stained coveralls for a housewife's apron.

Simultaneous with the announcement by Judge Rupert B. Turnbull of the engagement of his daughter to Tom Rickert, San Diego, the speedboat queen issued the statement that she would retire from competition after the southern California regatta at Long Beach tomorrow.

A quiet home wedding will take place Aug. 30.

JACOBS, FABYAN KEEP NATIONAL DOUBLES CROWN

Helen Contributes Only 2 Earned Points.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Helen Jacobs, America's top-ranking woman tennis player, registered only two earned points today as she and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline retained their national doubles title by turning back their United States Wightman Cup teammates, Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn., and Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-2.

Those two points were not needed, for Mrs. Fabyan managed to make a dozen placements against the charging Miss Babcock in addition to forcing most of the twenty-six errors marked against her.

The men's field also reduced its championship play into a duel between United States Davis Cup teammates. Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, who held the doubles titles in 1931 and were runners-up last year, gained the title round for the third time in six years by defeating Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S C., and Henry Culley of Santa Barbara, Cal., 2-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Youngsters Are Brilliant.

As far as strokes were concerned, the veterans were outplayed by a wide margin by the brilliant youngsters, who won the Longwood bowl titles and were runners-up at the Newport casino. Just when Allison and Van Ryn appeared doomed to defeat they called upon their wealth of experience and put on the pressure to finish on top.

Don Budge and Gene Mako, the Californians selected for Davis Cup service this year, were still mindful of last week's Casino setback when they took the courts against Frank Shields and Frank Parker. The latter pair, with the exceptions of Parker's miscues on a few drop shots, played brilliant tennis, but their combined efforts were not enough and they lost, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Veterans Reach Finals.

Today's play reduced the veterans' doubles field to the final round, with the defending champions, Fred C. Baggs and Dr. William Rosenbaum, both of New York, and R. B. Bidwell and Richard Bishop of Boston, surviving. William J. Clothier of Philadelphia, a national singles champion about thirty years ago, and William J. Jr., both of Philadelphia, moved into the father-son title round against Samuel Hayes Sr. and Jr. of South Hadley, Mass.

Both of these minor title matches will be played tomorrow, together with the mixed doubles semi-finals.

Perry Defeats Alonso; West Leads East, 2-1

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Fred Perry today gave Manuel Alonso a slight sample of what he has in store for the American stars in the forthcoming national tournament. The world's No. 1 amateur tennis player stole the show from the regular competitors in the annual East-West match at the Orange Lawn Tennis club.

In his first appearance in the United States this year, Perry gave another of his magnificent performances in turning back the Spanish Davis cup ace of former years, 7-5, 6-4, in an exhibition match.

It's Just a Romp.

The score was close, but the match was not. Perry put on the pressure only when it was necessary. He miscalculated just once, when Alonso sent the first set into extra games. But he spotted his opponent a 4-1 advantage in the second set and then reeled off five games in a row to take both the set and the match.

As for the East-West match itself, this developed into a tennis marathon. Jesse Millman of Los Angeles had defeated J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange in the first singles engagement, 4-6, 11-9, 6-3, but Bryan Grant of Atlanta evened the count by turning back Leonard Patterson of Los Angeles, 6-4, 10-8.

West Wins Doubles.

That victory left the issue for the leadership in the day's play up to the doubles pairs of Henry Prusoff and Patterson for the West and Lefty Bryan and Hall for the East. The easterners took the first set, 10-8, and the westerners annexed the second one by the same score. The West won the third, 6 to 4. That left the West out ahead, 2 to 1, with two singles and two doubles listed for tomorrow.

TENNIS MATCHES ARE SCHEDULED TODAY AT SKOKIE

Mrs. Stanley Hack, formerly No. 3 nationally, will pair with Loring Fiske, Skokie professional, to play Mrs. Eugenie Sampson Kamrath, Chicago city tennis champion, and her husband, Karl, this afternoon at the Skokie Country club.

Kitty Lawrence, 15 year old Barrington Hills club champion, will meet Marion Hammond, Indian Hill club, in the opening match at 3 o'clock.

Al Winston, Amherst captain, and Joe Russell will play Napier Parlotta and Loring Fiske in the final match. No admission will be charged.

Hoagland of Purdue Gets Place on Clemson Staf

Clemson, S. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Addition of Earl Hoagland, former Purdue halfback, to the Clemson college coaching staf was announced today by Head Coach Jess Neely. Hoagland, who finished his football career at Purdue last season, will report here when practice starts next month.

500 ENTER BIKE RACES TODAY AT DOUGLAS PARK

One of the largest bicycle racing fields to start in Illinois—500 and with post entries accepted—is scheduled to vie for the Chicago stock bike championship and seven special events at Douglas park this afternoon at 1 o'clock. All events will be at two miles except the 22 mile and 10 mile open, the latter for novices only.

Among the more prominent clubs represented are the C. Y. O., Belgium-American, Danish-American, Norwegian-American, South Chicago Wheelmen, Henry A. A., Midwestern A. C., and Kenosha, Wis.

Because of the city-wide representation of riders, a crowd of more than 10,000 is expected. Judges will include George T. Donough, Julian T. Fitzgerald, Harry Berz, Carl Stockholm, Frank Harmon, Walter Kronwald, Pete Miller, and Harvey Johnson.

Sid Novak, athletic instructor at Douglas park, has arranged the program as follows: Two milers for classes A, B, C, novice, junior boys, and the stock bicycle championship for boys under 18. Novices will compete in a special 10 mile grind, while the better stars compete in the 22 mile contest.

EVA MORRISON FAILS IN CHANNEL SWIM ATTEMPT

DOVER, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Eva Morrison, 25 year old Boston hospital librarian who was attempting to swim the English channel from England to France, abandoned her attempt four miles from Cap Gris Nez, France, today because of rough sea.

She gave up at 12:30 p. m. Greenwich time [7:30 a. m., E. S.T.] after having been in the water 14 hours and 52 minutes, and returned to Dover.

The plucky swimmer climbed into the accompanying motorboat only on the insistence of members of her party who were perturbed at the stiff west-northwest gale and heavy rain which roughened the channel waters.

Miss Morrison swam nearly 50 miles due to the cris-cross currents of the channel. She said she would not attempt the swim again in 1935, but might return next year.

Elden Will Try Again at New Roby Speedway

Narrowly escaping death last Sunday while tuning up his car for what was to have been the inaugural program at the New Roby speedway, Elden crashed into the upper fence as he went into the first turn, suffering severe cuts and abrasions on his face and arms. He is rapidly recovering and will be ready when the postponed program is held Sunday, Sept. 8.

Chester Gardner's car, also wrecked when he tangled with a fence on the last turn, has also been repaired and will start. Gardner was uninjured when he skidded into the upper rail.

The postponement will enable promoters of the track to complete improvements before Sept. 8. More than forty drivers who were entered for the original card of races will be on hand two weeks from today, with every indication that another dozen will be present to test the speed possibilities of the mile oval. With this assortment of talent, it will bring to Chicago the finest field of driving talent assembled on any track in America with the exception of the Memorial day race at Indianapolis.

Interest among drivers and car owners was proved last Sunday when among the visitors at the track were Peter de Paola, Lou Schneider, Fred Frame, and Lou Meyers. All are former winners of the Indianapolis race, Meyers sharing with Tommy Milton the distinction of having two of the 500 mile races to his credit.

The meet is sanctioned by the contest board of the A. A. A. Electrical timing devices have been installed and officials have been appointed by representatives of the contest board.

Rain checks issued for the race last Sunday will be honored Sept. 8. Promoters expect 20,000 fans to see the program.

25 SEEK PLACES IN MIDGET CAR TRIALS TODAY

With only ten places open and 25 pilots seeking the spots, competition will be keen this afternoon in the time trials for the Chicago Midget Speedway's 50 lap feature race, which will be the windup of a ten event program at the track, located at Lincoln and Devon at McCormick boulevard. Time trials start at 3 o'clock and the races at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Wally Zale, Ernie Carlson, and Ev. Rice, who beat Ronnie Householder in last Wednesday's feature race are determined to win places, along with Wally Mitchell, Ray Richards, Johnny Baldwin, Paul Russo, Tony William, Lou Schnieder, and Shorty Sorenson and many more.

Chuck Niesel, who drove through a retaining wall Wednesday night without serious injury, has rebuilt his machine and will compete.

INDIAN IS FIRST IN MARATHON FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Ellison [Tarzan] Brown, 22 year old Narragansett Indian from Charlestown, R. I., won the national championship 25 kilometer marathon around Beverly today. A field of 63 started, of whom 47 finished.

Brown completed the run of about sixteen miles in 1 hour 26 minutes 42 4-5 seconds, leading Johnny Kelly, of Medford, winner of this year's Boston marathon, by 35 yards. Kelly was clocked in 1:27:02.

Paul Mundy of the Millrose A. A., New York, was third in 1:28:57 and his teammate, Eino Penti, who won the race last year, fourth in 1:29:46.

Ramey Is Matched with Vaughn for Ten Rounds

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 24.—[U. P.]—Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids and Jimmy Vaughn, Cleveland, O., have been matched for a ten round boxing bout here Sept. 5, it was announced tonight. Ramey, leading contender for the lightweight championship has not boxed here for seven years. Vaughn was selected as his opponent because the two boys staged a bang up bout in Detroit in February. Ramey won the decision.

Winn Wins in 100 Mile Race at State Fair

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Billy Winn of Detroit, driving the distance without a stop, today won the Illinois state fair 100 mile dirt track automobile race for the second consecutive year. Winn's time was 1:14:39.09, for an average of 80.38 miles an hour. His average a year ago was 77.78 miles an hour.

George Barringer of Houston, Tex., finished second, four minutes behind Winn. Third place went to Emil Andres of Chicago, with Chet Gardner of Long Beach, Cal., fourth; Overton Snell, Afton, Mo., fifth; Kelly Petillo, Los Angeles, Cal., sixth; and Gene Haustein, Detroit, seventh.

Sets Track Record.

Petillo, winner of the 1935 Indianapolis 500 mile race, set a new track record of 39.56 seconds for a mile in qualifying, but lost a wheel early in the final race and never was a contender. He did, however, give the 39,000 spectators a lot of thrills. After losing 28 laps to Winn while his car was being repaired, Petillo got back and sped from 13th place to sixth at the finish.

Johnny Sawyer of Milwaukee, who led for 99 laps last year, only to lose when his car broke down, went out early today.

Marion Crashes Fence.

Milt Marion of Jamaica, N. Y., crashed into an inside fence, but made a brilliant recovery and escaped without injury and with little damage to his car.

The victory was worth $2,000 to Winn, with $1,000 going to Barringer, and $650 to Andres.

MISS DICKINSON SETS FREE STYLE 500 YARD MARK

New York, Aug. 24.—[U.P.]—One American record was broken and two more were created at Manhattan beach today when Dorothea Dickinson of the Women's Swimming association captured the 500 yard free style handicap invitational race.

In breaking the mark of four years standing, Miss Dickinson established long course standards for the 200 and 400 yard distances. Heretofore these latter marks were not listed in the record books.

Starting at scratch on a second gun Miss Dickinson set to work on overcoming the handicap given her rivals and passed the 200 yard mark in 2:31, but still 10 yards behind the leader, Mavis Freeman, also of the W. S. A. On the next lap Miss Dickinson passed Miss Freeman and then went on to establish the time of 5:17 for the 400 yard distance.

When she finished eight yards ahead of Miss Freeman, Miss Dickinson had lowered the record for the distance by almost four seconds with a time of 6:39.6. The old record was 6:43.2 set by Helene Madison.

Erna Kompa, also of the W. S. A., shattered Eleanor Holm Jarrett's American record for the 300 yard backstroke distance in another handicap invitational race with a time of 4:33.1. Mrs. Jarrett's mark was 4:35.2.

ARREST DOCTOR FOR POSSESSION IN DOPING CASE

Dr. Materson, arrested here, and Ernest J. Sietas, a trainer, taken into custody in Albany Friday on a charge of unlawful possession of narcotics, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Lester T. Hubbard. Each pleaded not guilty, and bail was fixed at $1,000. Hearings were set for Sept. 4.

Sietas was the trainer of the mare Fluffy Lee, in whose saliva morphine was found by the state racing commission's laboratory after her winning race on the 13th. Search of the Sietas stable disclosed six bottles of a patent colic mixture containing morphine, the federal investigators reported. Sietas and his horses were suspended.

CARLSON, THOMAS TO MEET TODAY IN JUNIOR FINAL

John Morrell of Glen Oak will meet John Dixon of Evergreen for the junior division title, and Ralph Carlson of Glen Oak will oppose Parker Thomas, unattached, in the 36 hole final in the senior division at Cog Hill today to decide the 1935 winners of the second Illinois State Junior Golf tournament.

Morrell shot par golf to defeat Jack Chamberlin, defending champion, 9 and 8 in one of the semi-final matches. In the morning Morrell registered four birdies on the out nine to turn in a 32 and lead 7 up. He finished the home nine with a 40 for a 72 to lead 8 up.

Sinks Long Putts.

Sinking long putts on the first nine of the afternoon round enabled Morrell to crack the defending champion's game and at the end of 27 holes, Morrell maintained an 8 up lead. The match ended on the 28th green when Morrell holed out a 15 foot putt for a birdie.

Another decisive victory was scored by Thomas in the senior division when he defeated Bob Hall, 8 and 7.

Both Hall and Thomas turned in a 37 on the first nine. Thomas rallied to win six holes on the home stretch, while Hall was only able to win one. Thomas finished the morning round with a 75 to lead 5 up. The boys played the second nine holes first in the afternoon, and at the end of 27, Thomas led 8 up. They halved two holes in a row on the final nine to end the match.

Dixon Beats Jacobs.

Dixon was given a battle before he downed Bernard Jacobs, 2 and 1. Playing an even brand of golf they turned in a pair of 77s on the morning round to finish all even. Jacobs became erratic in the afternoon and pulled his fairway iron shots, giving Dixon a 3 up margin at 27. The match was dormie 2 on the 34th green and a pair of 5s on the 35th gave Dixon the decision.

In the final afternoon match, Carlson, one of the leaders on qualifying day, triumphed 4 and 3 over George Johnson. Carlson carded a 79 in the morning to lead 1 up. The margin increased on the first afternoon nine, and Carlson led 4 up. They each won two holes and halved two on the final nine with Carlson scoring a par 5 on the 33d hole to win the match.

MIDGET RACERS COMPETE TODAY AT DE PAUL OVAL

Midget auto racing will be inaugurated at De Paul field, Sheffield and Webster avenues, this afternoon after being washed out last Sunday afternoon. Among the highlights will be the return of Curley Young, former dirt track star, to the racing game, the novel three heat match race between Louis Schneider and Shorty Sorenson, and the appearance of Tom Darrus in his new midget racer. Eight events are listed, starting at 3 p. m.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

CLERK WAS OFFENDER.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Upon investigation I learn that the automobile bearing placard with Mayor Kelly's name and minus both state and city license had been used by a Mr. Arthur Plotke, clerk in our uptown office.

Mr. Plotke had no authorization to use the placard or the mayor's name, and further, absolutely no right to drive about Chicago streets without the proper licenses. The automobile in question has been placed in storage and these placards removed.

GAEL SULLIVAN,
FHA Administrative Officer.

UNLICENSED "OFFICIAL" CAR.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—For the last few days a car has been noticed traveling the city streets bearing the following sign: "Official Car—Secretary to Mayor Ed J. Kelly's Uptown Better Housing Committee."

I am wondering by what authority this automobile is allowed to use the streets without either city or state license tags. Maybe some one will be so kind as to inform me.

D. D. S.

YELLOW DOG.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 16.—About 2 p. m. Friday on a corner of North Clark street near Sunnyside avenue a tan Ford V-8 sedan rammed the rear of our car when I slowed down for a danger sign. Both cars were badly damaged. The driver of the Ford suggested that I drive around the corner away from trafic where he would adjust the broken bumper for me.

In good faith I turned the car into a side street only to see him drive away at full speed before his license could be seen or before he could be followed. He was about 30, had a long, thin face, and a bushy mop of light hair. All this because we want his friends to recognize him for the yellow dog he is.

The police, who were notified immediately, without even hearing the full details of the incident said there was nothing they could do about it. A squad car given a description of the smashed-in Ford and its driver should have been able to spot him at once had they gone right out for him. At any rate they could inquire at a few repair shops in the locality.

There was no license on the front of the Ford, so small boys who saw the accident say. Possibly it fell off after the crash. If so, and it has been picked up by one of them, we would appreciate help in tracing this man.

HORNS SILENT IN LONDON.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Two weeks in London driving one's own car shows no slowing up of trafic, which the bobbies handle quickly without one harsh word. But what impresses one is the great care and consideration of every motorist, whether private, truck, or bus. Signals are given for turning and great care is exercised.

And another thing: Not a horn is heard, thank God. Why can't our great city of Chicago do just as well.

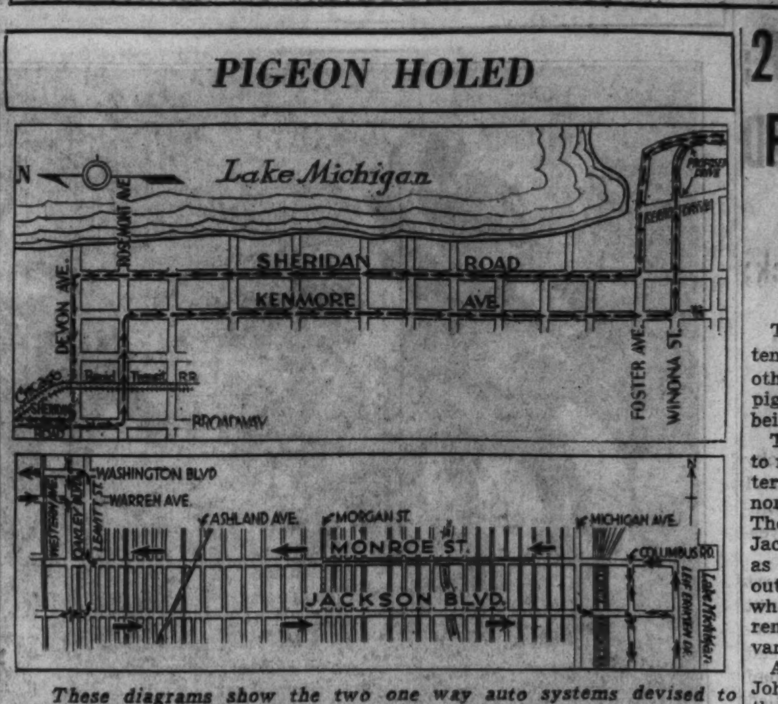
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

PIGEON HOLED



These diagrams show the two one way auto systems devised to expedite trafic on the north and west sides which have been pigeon holed in the city council.

2 TRAFIC PLANS PIGEON HOLED IN CITY COUNCIL

BY HAL FOUST.

Two proposed one-way trafic systems, one for the west side and the other for the north side, have been pigeonholed, at least for the time being, in the city council.

The north side proposal is designed to relieve rush hour blockades at Foster avenue and Sheridan road, the northern terminus of the outer drive. The west side proposal would operate Jackson boulevard and Monroe street as one-way pavements between the outer drive and Oakley boulevard, where it would connect with the Warren avenue and Washington boulevard one-way system.

At a recent council meeting Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the trafic committee, introduced an ordinance which would have put the north side scheme into effect. Without any discussion on the floor the ordinance was included in the day's omnibus for passage. But before the session ended the alderman withdrew his measure for the announced reason that there were those who wished to give further study to the problem.

Property Owners Object.

"There are some abutting property owners who are objecting," Massen confided to a reporter. "I don't blame them. Through trafic on surface level streets admittedly damages residential and business property. But until elevated highways are constructed we have to route trafic somewhere, and we have to proceed for the benefit of many even when hurting a few."

Sheridan road, under the scheme designed by Otto K. Jelinek, Chicago park district engineer, would be reserved for north bound automobiles from Foster to Devon avenue. South bound would use Kenmore avenue, which would be for the exclusive use of this movement. Devon avenue would be west bound only from Sheridan road to Broadway. Rosemont avenue, one block south of Devon, would be east bound only between Broadway and Kenmore.

On the south end of this system Foster avenue would be west bound only from the outer drive to Sheridan road. East bound from Sheridan road would be carried by Winona avenue, which is one block south of Foster. The park board has appropriated for the extension of the Winona pavement to the outer drive.

As obvious as are the benefits that would accrue to trafic from this north side plan, Engineer Jelinek sees even greater possibilities from the west side scheme. However, difficulties facing its realization are proportionately greater.

West Side Difficulties.

Street cars would have to be rerouted, either removed from Monroe street or confined to the west bound track. Retailers in Jackson and Monroe have protested that it would interfere with their trade. Regardless of whether these protests are founded —since purchases are made by pedestrians and not by through trafic—the Chicago Association of Commerce has successfully appealed to the council to delay action.

"In west side trafic to the loop," said Jelinek, "motorists would enjoy a continuation eastward of the facility of movement that is now halted at Ashland avenue where Warren and Washington boulevards converge onto one overcrowded pavement.

"Leavitt street, one block east of Oakley, would operate north bound only to connect Monroe with Washington. Oakley would operate southbound only to connect Warren with Jackson.

"Loop trafic would benefit by giving readier access to the outer drives on the east as well as readier access to the west. Michigan avenue would benefit by relieving the present congestion of south bound trafic north of Monroe.

"The main argument in favor of these one-way systems is that simply by regulation they would bring about improvements in motor transportation comparable to improvements from street widening for which we would pay hundreds of thousands of dollars."

BLIND CROSSINGS ADD TO HAZARDS ON ROOSEVELT RD.

BY HAL FOUST.

Blind intersections with side roads and with minor cross roads add to the hazard of Roosevelt road travel through DuPage county. At some of these danger points, the state has failed to post any warning signs.

Drivers unfamiliar with the local geography whiz by these side roads unaware of the menace lurking behind tall weeds or shrubs. Some drivers familiar with the local geography swing toward the center of the wide highway in passing the danger points, creating a disorder in express trafic that is a hazard in itself.

There are three such places within five and a half miles east of Wheaton. Main street, Glen Ellyn, a macadam road, has an entrance from Roosevelt road that is hidden by an earth bank, a fence, tall weeds, and tree branches when approached on the highway from the east. There is the same obstruction to the view in leaving the side road; trafic from the east can't be seen from a southbound car until its front bumper is on the highway pavement.

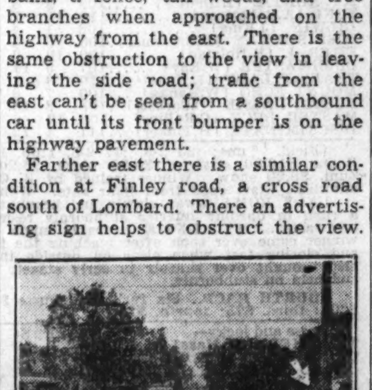
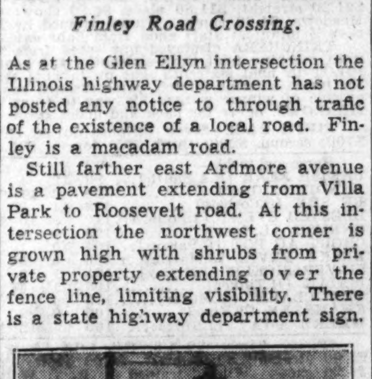
Farther east there is a similar condition at Finley road, a cross road south of Lombard. There an advertising sign helps to obstruct the view.



Finley Road Crossing.

As at the Glen Ellyn intersection the Illinois highway department has not posted any notice to through trafic of the existence of a local road. Finley is a macadam road.

Still farther east Ardmore avenue is a pavement extending from Villa Park to Roosevelt road. At this intersection the northwest corner is grown high with shrubs from private property extending over the fence line, limiting visibility. There is a state highway department sign.



Ardmore Avenue Crossing.

undersized and awry, reading, "Side Road" to west bound trafic, and there is an overhead warning light installed by the DuPage county highway department, but Sergt. George Knorr of the Villa Park police said the blind corner has caused many accidents.

Indispensable to carefree driving, the 1935 Chicagoland Road Map is now on sale at the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower. Price, 25 cents; by mail, 30 cents.

Water Carnival Will Be Held at Dunes Park Today

Races in the Dunes park of Illinois water carnival, which will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon, have drawn amateur swimmers from throughout Chicagoland, Stephen Hotham, park manager, announced yesterday. A 30 yard dash for boys between 14 and 17 years of age, a women's free style 50 yard dash, a 100 yard relay with four on a team, and a 50 yard dash for men are among the events scheduled. A canoe jousting tournament and several land games have been arranged.

REFEREE SELECTED.

Trafic Violations Observed

A right turn after stopping for a red light was executed on Wednesday morning at West 22d street and Archer avenue by a car with license 319-118 issued to W. F. Eddington, 3934 Frontier avenue. This maneuver, while a convenience without hazard as practiced in Detroit and Los Angeles, is not legal in Illinois. The new Illinois trafic code authorizes municipalities and park districts to permit such a maneuver, but no local government has taken advantage of this opportunity as yet.

Driving 45 miles an hour in Warren boulevard on Wednesday afternoon was a motorcycle and sidecar without license plates. It was also without a muffler, its engine banging like a machine gun as it jumped away from the parade of automobiles at the stop lights. The driver, when asked by a reporter, said the machine belonged to the Catholic Youth organization and that an application for a license had been mailed to Springfield.

At Ohio street and Wabash avenue a north bound delivery truck sailed across the through street, ignoring the stop sign. The license, A-7-520, was issued to Ephreim Harow, 831 North State street. About the same time on Wednesday morning a south bound passenger car failed to obey the stop sign. Its license, 174-167, was issued to R. W. Nichols, 1235 Wesley avenue, Evanston.

In Pearson street between Tower court and Rush street last week, a dozen cars were parked on the sidewalk, narrowing the path for pedestrians near the Catholic seminary there.

A sedan with license 534-879, issued to Lillian A. Rabishaw, 3535 Palmer street, was driven west in Augusta boulevard between Hoyne avenue and Leavitt street at 7:45 o'clock on Tuesday night astride a lane marker. This is a misdemeanor under section 60 of the new trafic code.

Weaving through heavy trafic Wednesday morning in Michigan avenue, crowding its neighbors, was a sedan with license 759-697, issued to Carl D. Gilkey, 40 East Oak street. In his hurry the driver scraped the fender of one automobile. The machine offended bore license 345-343, issued to Adolph Paquet, 2745 Avers avenue. Damage was slight and neither car stopped.

State Amateur Softball Finals Set for Peoria

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Peoria will be the scene of the 1935 state finals of the Amateur Softball Association of America, Sunday, Sept. 1 and Monday, Sept. 2. Teams outside of Cook county which won district tournaments held in East St. Louis, Springfield, Peoria, Streator, Macomb, Danville, and other sites are eligible to compete.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chicago's annual automobile show will be held Nov. 16 to 23, it is announced by the committee in charge. Originally set a week later, the dates have been changed to avoid conflict with Thanksgiving week. The show, like the last one, will be held under auspices of the Chicago Automobile Trade association. A. C. Faeh will again serve as show manager.

Recent tests of Studebaker's planar independent front wheel suspension by research engineers developed what is believed to be an unofficial "broad jump" record. The Studebaker Dictator cleared 37 feet on one jump. The tests were made at the company's proving ground in South Bend, and the front wheel suspension passed the brutal tests without the slightest damage.

An amber lamp and vibrating bell mounted on the instrument board of a motor vehicle constitutes a signal device designed to warn motorists of approaching danger zones, according to word reaching the Chicago Motor club.

The bulletin issued by the club says that a detector unit, attached to the right front fender, is connected with the instrument board. In the roadbed pieces of magnetized steel are buried at proper distances from highway intersections, sharp curves, railroad crossings, or other places where accidents are frequent. When a car passes over one of these magnets the detector unit on the fender is energized and the lamp on the instrument board is illuminated and the bell rings.

Full production in the old Durant plant at Lansing, Mich., which is being taken over by Fisher Body as a part of its $3,500,000 expansion program, will be commenced in September.

Equipment that will permit the production of 1,200 finished bodies daily, an increase of 33½ per cent over the capacity of the present plant, is now being installed in the structure, which contains more than 610,000 square feet of floor space, according to E. F. Fisher, general manager of the body building division of General Motors.

Manufacturing operations will begin Tuesday, Sept. 3. The following Monday the plant is scheduled to go into full production, with 3,000 men employed. This total may be increased to 4,000 in the spring, Mr. Fisher said.

The new plant will replace the present facilities of Fisher Body in Lansing, which are being taken over by Oldsmobile.

Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., this season has captured both the trans-Mississippi and closed women's western titles.

Mrs. June Beebe Atwood, Chicago's top ranking woman golfer, is strong contender for the national women's amateur golf title. The tournament opens tomorrow morning at the Interlachen club, Minneapolis, and continues six days.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The thirty-ninth annual competition for the women's amateur championship of the United States Golf association will open at the Interlachen Country club near Minneapolis tomorrow morning, and at the end of the six days' play come sundown Saturday, a new queen will reign over the feminine golfers of the nation.

The vacancy on the throne this year was created by the announcement of Virginia Van Wie of the Beverly Country club of Chicago that she will not compete in the tournament this year. Winner of the championship for the last three years, Miss Van Wie had intimated earlier that she would abdicate for this year at least, but made no definite decision until Aug. 7, when she stated that she would be among the missing when the field tees off tomorrow morning.

Event Wide Open This Year.

The poised Chicago girl whose game has made her the acknowledged No. 1 feminine golfer of the republic these last three seasons would undoubtedly have been a stout favorite to score her fourth consecutive victory, but her absence from the field, which will take up clubs at Interlachen this week makes the event one of the most wide open it has witnessed in a number of years.

Since Miss Van Wie's announcement, the experts have been casting about seeking to find one standout choice for the title, but with little success, for a glance at those already sure to play makes it impossible to settle on one individual.

At least two golfers, however, have made themselves heard during the current season by their performances within the last two months, and each is certain to attract a sizable gallery when the eighteen hole qualifying round gets under way tomorrow morning. One is Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, a perennial threat in the national for a number of years, who marched to the western open title through a great field at Sunset Ridge in June. The other is 21 year old Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky.

No Easy Task Faces Favorites.

Neither Mrs. Hill nor Miss Miley can expect an easy journey to the championship, for there will be more than one expert competitor to block their paths en route. Among these may be numbered Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, five times winner of the title; Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews of Miami, Fla.; Dorothy Traung, the young Californian, who was the surprise sensation of last year's meet, losing to Miss Van Wie in the final by only 2 to 1; Charlotte Glutting of Orange, N. J.; Ada Mackenzie of Canada; Mary K. Browne of Cleveland; Bernice Wall of Chicago, and a number of other stars who have been seeking the crown through the years that it was held by Mrs. Vare, Helen Hicks, and Miss Van Wie.

Chicago is expected to send a delegation which will be one of the most formidable single units in the field. Heading these will be Mrs. Philip T. Atwood, the former June Beebe, winner of the 1935 city title and runner up to Miss Miley for the closed western championship. Another threat will be young Ellamae Williams, runner up in three consecutive tournaments—the western junior, the Illinois state, and the Chicago city, and comedalist in the closed western. WHEAT RECEDES AFTER WEEK OF VARIED SCARES

Crop News, War Moves, Congress Watched.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

After a week of crop scares, war scares and legislative scares trading in the Chicago grain market ended yesterday with a moderate downturn in prices that carried wheat off a cent a bushel for the day. The pace of trading slackened considerably and speculators displayed that hesitation toward fresh commitments which is characteristic of the week-end.

The day brought no new developments either to bolster or depress the market decisively. Trading in the principal foreign markets was quiet and no price changes of significance were reported. The crop news out of the spring wheat belt was an old story and further reports on the threshing returns in that region failed to stimulate any market response.

Foreign Crops Watched.

Of more interest at present are the crop developments in other countries, chiefly Canada, Argentina and Australia, and the war potentialities of the strained political situation in Europe. As this year's deficient wheat harvest makes imports necessary, the trend of prices in other countries has an immediate bearing on the domestic market, although it is theoretically insulated from foreign influences by high import duties.

An immediate factor in bringing about yesterday's recession in prices of wheat futures was the weakness of prices in the cash market. A temporary ebb in the commercial demand resulted in moderate declines in spot prices. The cash market in Minneapolis, to which the bulk of the spring wheat is shipped, was unsettled.

Prices on December Futures.

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$0.90⅞	$0.91¾	$0.88¼
Corn	.56½	.56⅜	.56¼
Oats	.27⅝	.28⅜	.26¾
Rye	.44½	.45¼	.43½

Hanging over the market for several days has been the possibility that congress would jam through at the last minute the commodity exchange bill, thus clamping stricter federal regulations on grain futures trading. Reports yesterday that advocates of the measure were prepared to filibuster the administration's "must" program in order to assure passage of the bill caused a tremor in the grain pits. Up to the time of the market close, however, the fate of the bill was uncertain.

MEAT BOYCOTTS SMASH CATTLE AND HOG PRICES

Sweeping declines in pork and beef and widespread boycotting of these meats by consumers knocked the props from under the cattle and hog markets last week. Only a small portion of the better grades of beef escaped the price slashing, others declining 50 cents to $1 at the principal distributing points, while pork loins came down unevenly $3 to $6.

Prices of cattle swung upward early last week, but reacted sharply in midweek and closed unevenly 25 to 75 cents under the high spot of Tuesday. Compared with the preceding week's close steers and yearlings declined 25 to 35 cents, and butcher stock 25 to 35 cents.

Quotations for hogs last week underwent the sharpest revision in many months. Light and underweights shipped in from cholera sections got a severe drubbing, falling $1 to $2, with thin kinds off $2.50 in six days. Better grades of matured hogs over 225 pounds in weight were knocked down 65 to 80 cents.

The average price of all hogs for the week declined 50 cents to $13, including the processing tax, but the price still is $4.05 higher than a year ago and $9.10 higher than two years ago, when there was no tax.

Sheep raisers, thanks to the AAA pig killing program and the drouth last year, which reduced competitive pork and beef supplies, are finding a far better outlet for their lambs. They were paid an average of $9.20 last week, within 10 cents of the highest weekly price since May, 1934.

WEEK'S OUTPUT OF AUTOS SAGS TO 50,585 UNITS

Under 1934 Total Second Time This Year.

Automobile production in the United States and Canada last week dropped below the corresponding period of 1934 for the second time this year. Output aggregated 50,585 passenger cars and trucks, according to Cram's Reports, Inc. This compares with 56,386 for the preceding week and 52,351 units in the corresponding period of last year.

Seven plants were closed during the week, while one reopened after a shutdown of several weeks. Five of the factories showed declines in production, and twelve remained at the same levels of the previous week. Two plants registered a gain.

Expect to Realize Estimates.

The 1935 production is expected to reach the 3,000,000 mark about Oct. 1, apparently insuring realization of the industry's official estimate of 3,525,000 units for the calendar year. In 1930, the last year in which the 3,500,000 mark was touched, the final quarter saw 462,000 units come off assembly lines despite a definite downward production trend.

"The general description of new models is a bit vague in many instances," Cram's commented, "because even the manufacturers themselves have not yet made final decisions on designs and mechanical specifications.

"The main trend in 1936 designing is toward more marked application of streamlining along aerodynamic lines. Sharp angles in some models will give way to rounded corners. Sharp projections will be reduced to a minimum, braking power may be increased, and other safety factors will be given special attention.

Many Changes Planned.

"Lines of some of the 1936 models may suggest those of the best sellers of 1935. Among high priced models there is a tendency to retain certain characteristics which have been embodied in cars for years. Among them the changes of lines may not be so pronounced as in the low priced brackets. Practically all manufacturers will change radiators and grills slightly, but some plan to stop there."

Gossip in other quarters holds that manufacturers who made few changes for their 1935 models are planning some radical departures, while the makers which shifted materially this year will make only minor alterations.

Activity in die and tool making shops is greater than at this time for several years, and has led to the belief in some quarters that the new models will reflect far greater changes than have been anticipated.

LARD PRODUCERS DISTURBED BY DROP IN SALES

High Price Brings Rapid Decline in Demand.

Corn and hog farmers and packers are becoming anxious over the rapid decline in the demand for lard and other hog products as a result of widespread consumer resistance to high retail prices.

Use of lard substitutes is increasing rapidly. Makers of compound lard, manufactured from various oils and other products, are said to be enjoying the best trade since the war.

While the consumer pays a processing tax of 2.42 cents a pound on lard, corn and hog farmers are not protected against trade encroachments of lard substitutes in the way of a compensating processing tax on cotton seed oil, although it is the chief competitor of pure lard.

Discrimination Reported.

Similar discrimination against the central west is reported in the way of a compensating tax on paper bags which are used for packing flour, the tax derived being used to pay farmers who signed AAA contracts to reduce the acreage of cotton. Producers of corn oils are forced to pay a processing tax of 5 cents a bushel on on the corn used in its manufacture.

There has been a rapid disappearance of the American foreign market for lard since the AAA started its pig and sow killing program, and its curtailment of hog production. According to the Chicago Board of Trade exports of lard so far this season have aggregated 75,000,000 pounds, compared with 320,000,000 pounds during the corresponding period the previous season.

Lard Futures Decline.

Speculative interest in hog products yesterday was limited and lard futures declined 5 to 20 cents on selling which the trade attributed to packing interests. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed 35 cents lower. Cash lard closed at $16.15; loose, $16.22; leaf, $16.25; and bellies at $19.37 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

"I KNOW HOW TO BUY MILEAGE AT LOWEST COST!"

says JOSEPH E. JOHNSON, 8138 CALUMET AVE.

" . . . the car was a honey."

"It is bad judgment to drive a worn out car."

"I am a salesman for a wholesale drug house. My territory consists of a half a dozen states surrounding Illinois. I get around in a car and drive about 40,000 miles a year.

"I have been doing this for fifteen years and I think my experience has shown me how to buy automobiles at lowest possible cost. My method is simply to buy a good, late-model used car, not later than the previous year's, which has no more than 10,000 miles on it.

Exactly What I Wanted

"When my last car started losing its pep, I decided that it had gone far enough and that it was time to get another good used car. I was out of town at the time. But I got a copy of the Chicago Tribune and turned to the want ad section. I did this for a few mornings and presently I saw advertised a 1934 Oldsmobile 8 Sedan. The advertiser said that the car had been driven only a few thousand miles and was clean and good in every respect. It seemed to be exactly what I wanted.

"I called Chicago on the long distance phone and got the Cadillac Motor Car Company, 2258 S. Michigan Ave. I talked to W. S. Robinson, manager of their used car department. He said the car was a honey and that it would pay me to come back to Chicago to look at it.

"I came back to Chicago and saw the car. It was just what I wanted. We agreed on a price and an allowance, and I turned in my old car.

Well Satisfied with the Deal

"I have been driving the Oldsmobile three months, have put 8,000 miles on it and am still well satisfied with the deal I made. I think that it is bad judgment to drive a worn out car when you can get a late-model at present low prices. The Tribune certainly is the place to find them."

STEEL OUTPUT BOUNDS AGAIN TO 52½% RATE

Cleveland, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Operations in the steel industry soared to 52½ per cent this week as steadily mounting gains shattered the tradition of a summer slump. The upward trend has been in progress since about July 8 when operations were at 31 per cent.

Observers of the industry say steel producers agree production will gain without fluctuation until Nov. 1. Some have expressed the belief the rise will prevail until Jan. 1. Others expect a leveling off in November. The year's peak is expected in October in anticipation of introduction of 1936 automobile models at the New York show in November. The steel industry customarily is from 30 to 45 days ahead of the automobile assembly lines.

Year's Peak Reached in February.

The year's high record in operations to date was 54½ per cent in February. The peak in 1934 was 62 per cent, attained both in May and June. The top in 1933 was 57 per cent and in 1932 it was 28.5 per cent.

The steel market, paradoxically, displayed strength in July and August in the face of a decline in demands of the automobile industry.

E. C. Barringer, managing editor of the magazine Steel, said today that miscellaneous requirements broadened the base of the market in recent weeks.

"Tin plate production gained in anticipation of the fall packs of fruit and vegetables," he said. "Makers of machine tools and farm implements placed substantial orders. The pipe line business is a little ahead of last year, with good prospects."

Some Mills Booked to Capacity.

Producers of rolling mill equipment, he said, are "booked up to capacity" for practically a year in advance in some instances.

In support of the expectations of a vigorous fall market, producers point out that mills are now beginning to ship automobile steel for early new models.

Producers have maintained base prices that prevailed under the code, but recently have increased prices on extras and differentials, indicating a strong market situation.

The magazine says the extraordinary demand for iron and steel may create the best shipping season on the great lakes since 1930, a season estimated to be about 23 per cent above last year. The magazine estimates the present season will total 27,000,000 tons of ore or 1,000,000 tons over early season estimates.

Chicago Bank Clearings Lower, but Top Year Ago

Bank clearings in Chicago last week amounted to $229,200,000, compared with $253,300,000 in the preceding week and $197,000,000 in the corresponding week of last year, the Chicago Clearing House association announced yesterday.

COMMODITY PRICES MOVE IRREGULARLY DURING LAST WEEK

Prices followed an irregular course in the principal commodity markets last week. Lard, which had been making sensational gains for several weeks, encountered a reaction which was attributed to cut in consumption brought about by high prices.

Cotton lost ground after the government announced that the loan value on the new crop would be only 9 cents a pound although a 12 cent price was guaranteed to growers participating in the AAA program. In the grain option market corn, oats, rye, and the May future in wheat sold at new lows for the season early in the week, then rallied to close at net gains over a week ago.

The following table shows closing quotations yesterday on a representative list of commodities as compared with final prices of the preceding week and the high and low figures for the season:

Find Profits of Companies Best Since '31

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The sustained advance in trade and industrial conditions first clearly apparent early in 1934 has brought the quarterly earnings index of 161 leading industrials, rails, and utilities to 33.8 per cent of the 1929 level, and 302.9 per cent of the 1932 total.

This was disclosed today in an analysis of data compiled by the Standard Statistics company, which revealed that earnings of the 161 corporations for the first six months of 1935 stood at 46.1 per cent of 1926 levels, on which the index is based.

The total for the first half of the current year was the highest since 1931, when the index for the corresponding period was 58.2. A year ago the earnings index was at 44.1, compared with 15.2 in 1933 and 18.8 in the preceding year.

Earnings Fall After 1929.

In 1929 the index for the first six months stood at 136.6, while in the next year, following the spectacular outset of the depression late in 1929, it eased to 102.2. Since that time, with the exception of 1931, the index has held well below the 50 per cent level.

A breakdown of the earnings for 120 leading industrials discloses that the first six months of this year lifted the index to the highest point since 1930. This index stood at 54.4, the first time since 1930 that it has crossed the 50 per cent level. The nadir of the depression was felt in the fourth quarter of 1932, when the index sank to a deficit representing 14.4 per cent of the 1926 earning figures.

The lowest first half year earnings were shown by the 161 concerns in 1932, when an index of 6.8 was registered. In the following year the index showed a modest gain to 7.8.

Revival Shown in 1934.

In 1934, however, the first half of the year witnessed a broad revival in industry, and the index reflected these gains with a sharp spurt to 45.4 per cent. The like period this year also saw increased activity.

The index placed the total for the first six months of 1929 at 146.3. In 1930 operations of the industrial companies reporting reflected the growing uncertainty over trade conditions and the earnings index sagged to 103.6.

With many of the leading industrial units—especially the auto and steel manufacturers—reporting contra-seasonal gains in operations during the summer, current indications are that earnings of the 161 companies for the full year of 1935 will be well above recent years.

BUSINESS DONE BY CHECKS RISES FOR WEEK, YEAR

Business activity in the middle west in the week ended Aug. 21, as indicated by volume of checks, was materially ahead of the preceding week and of the corresponding period of last year. Bank deposits are at a high since 1929 and are being used more by depositors.

Debits to individual account reported to the Chicago Federal Reserve bank by 161 banks in 41 clearing house cities aggregated $943,178,000, an increase of 10.9 per cent from the previous week's $850,133,000. In 40 cities for which comparison is given, debits were $941,937,000, a rise of 17.1 per cent from the $804,375,000 in the same week of 1934.

In every city except Cedar Rapids, Ia., debits were greater than a year ago. The Chicago total was $569,439,000 against $481,898,000 last year, a 17 per cent gain. Detroit's rise was from $135,908,000 to $150,483,000. Indianapolis debits rose from $28,257,000 to $32,456,000 and Milwaukee's from $43,610,000 to $49,166,000. In Des Moines, Ia., the pickup was $16,182,000 to $18,251,000.

TWO EASTERN ROADS AGREE TO INTERCHANGE OF RETURN TICKETS

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio railroads announced today that, for the first time, return tickets to and from New York sold by either company would be honored by either company.

The announcement, which was made by L. W. Landman and W. B. Calloway, general passenger trafic managers of the New York Central and B. & O., said all return tickets reading via either railroad between New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, and all points west thereof would be honored on the lines of either company.

This makes it possible for passengers to stop over at points such as Pittsburgh, Washington, Baltimore, or Philadelphia, in one direction, and to visit Albany, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit, and other points in the other direction.

FARMERS SELL FEWER ANIMALS BUT PROFIT MORE

Although farmers are selling fewer animals than a year ago, their returns from live stock this year are running substantially higher than in 1934. Producers of cattle and sheep, which have not been included in the AAA reduction program, made greater gains than producers of hogs, which are included.

Estimated returns from the sale of cattle at the twenty leading markets last week amounted to $21,200,000 for a total of 265,000 animals, compared with $15,950,000 for 290,000 cattle the same week last year, exclusive of the animals bought in 1934 by the government for relief purposes.

Hog receipts at the twenty markets at 227,000 were valued at $7,718,000, including the processing tax, compared with a value of $6,248,000 on 284,000 hogs the same week last year. Sheep receipts at 318,000 brought $2,226,000, against $1,985,000 for 397,000 head the same week in 1934.

The average price of cattle advanced to $80, compared with $55 a year ago. Hogs rose to $34 this year, against $22 in 1934, both prices including the tax. Lambs sold at $7 in 1935 and $5 last year.

INDUSTRY MORE ACTIVE IN WEEK, INDEX REVEALS

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity advanced further today. Better than seasonal gains in steel, cotton, electric power production, residential building, and freight movement boosted the index to 73.7, compared with 73.1 the previous week, and 65.0 a year ago. These gains more than offset a slackening in automobile output.

The Index, based on 1929-'30 as 100, and adjusted for seasonal variation, follows with corresponding index figures for its six component factors:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	73.7	73.1	65.0
Automobile production	57.4	63.4	59.4
Steel mill activity	65.5	64.6	29.9
Cotton mfg. activity	80.5	87.6	83.3
Electric power prod.	102.2	101.4	96.5
Residential bldg.	41.8	41.4	18.9

Stock Market Seat Is Not to Be Sneezed At

Hay fever was whispered about last week as a possible further means of stimulating interest in Chicago Stock exchange memberships. An enterprising attaché of the exchange remarked that a pollen sufferer might find it well worth while to own a seat, if for no other reason than to plant himself in the air conditioned trading room. If such a movement were to get started, efforts might even be made to have the trading floor rechristened the "hay fever room," it was added.

Of more cynical nature was the trader who suggested the prospective "hay fever members" might well have some brokerage business, too, as the price of memberships recently has risen from the $2,000 low to $4,200 recently. Forsight, he said would have been at a premium—as the pollen victim could have obtained the bargain price a few months ago.

Prosperity appears to have touched La Salle street with its magic wand. Witness the letter of F. C. A. to THE TRIBUNE Investors' Guide: "Please favor by sending a list of Chicago investment houses who will take an interest in the sale of small amounts of securities to private individuals. I find that so many of the big houses refuse to answer letters in reply to inquiries about small purchases. I am interested in the purchase of bonds and good preferred stocks in $100 amounts."

This is the first inquiry of this type Investors' Guide has received since the far off boom days.

No sooner had the city of Chicago commanded a "record" price of 103.699 on the $9,647,000 issue of 3½ per cent refunding bonds than a killjoy statistician began searching dusty tomes for record of a better quotation. His efforts were rewarded in turning up a sale of $618,000 3½ per cent bonds to the old Merchants Loan and Trust company on June 20, 1899. The price was 106.076, and eight bids were received, the lowest being 103.80, or just above the best bid on the recent issue.

Tut, Tut! You mustn't use the word "modernistic" when speaking of the new streamline, shiny, chromium, tubular steel, etc., etc., furniture. "Modern" is the correct word, insists George B. Atkinson, manager of the Merchandise mart's furniture division. "Modernistic," he explains, has a connotation of the extreme or bizarre, whereas the industry is attempting to create a permanent mode representative of the present utilitarian age.

Illinois Coal Mine Will Reopen with 800 Workers

Benton, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The Bell and Zoller mine No. 2 at Zeigler, which has been closed since April 1 while a million dollar coal washing plant was being installed, will resume work on Monday, giving employment to 800 men most of whom reside in Franklin county. The No. 1 mine will continue to be operated, having averaged four days a week since April 1.

HEAVY SELLING SWEEPS UTILITY SHARES LOWER

'Death Sentence' Bill Responsible.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—Heavy selling broke out in the utility shares again today, carrying the whole list sharply downward. The slaughter of the power and light issues reflected the reaction of holders to overnight news indicating that the holding company bill would be jammed through congress late today with its compromise "death sentence" provision intact.

Executives of affected companies profess to see little real difference between the amended measure and the original one despite the camouflage of words arranged at house and senate committee conferences.

Losses in the group ran to more than five points. Even such usually well supported issues as American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, and Public Service of New Jersey came in for rough treatment in spite of the fact that some of them will not be directly affected by the law.

Telephone Down 3 Points.

Telephone dropped nearly 3 points at the close, Gas was a couple of points lower, and Public Service, which offered about the best resistance to yesterday's selling, emerged more than a point lower.

Declines in the preferred stocks of American & Foreign Power, American Power & Light, and Electric Power & Light ranged from 4 to 6 points. United Corporation preferred dropped 4½ and the common nearly a point. North American finished the session $2.50 below its previous quotation. Some of the preferreds of Standard Gas came in for a severe drubbing, and Peoples Gas sacrificed nearly $2 a share. United Gas Improvement fell back to 15 and then recovered a small fraction.

The selling spread gradually to the whole list and the downward movement gained momentum as the close drew near. Steel shares, which have been advancing so spectacularly along with other issues, turned tail on the passage of the neutrality bill.

Steel Stocks Lower.

The finish found the common and senior stocks of United States Steel, Bethlehem, Byers, and others down major fractions to 3 points.

Railroad issues gave ground with the rest, although the setback was not so pronounced on the group as a whole as in some other sections of the market. The unexpected change in the rate of tax payable by railroads and their employés to provide for retirement pensions was a slight comfort to the carriers.

Some of the mining shares put up a fight. American Smelting countered the trend for a fractional gain and U. S. Smelting closed only slightly lower. The strength in American Smelting was credited mainly to the announcement of the company's financing plans.

In the automobile sector, Auburn was conspicuously weak after its recent rise. On optimistic reports of expanding business aviation issues were strong for a while but turned downward with the rest.

GOLD AND SILVER PRICES DECLINE; DOLLAR LOWER

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Foreign currencies were generally higher against the dollar today in quiet trading, while silver and gold prices again receded after showing some improvement yesterday. Bar silver declined ⅛ cent to 65⅝ cents an ounce in New York after falling 5-16 penny to 29⅛ pence, equivalent to 65.27 cents in London. Gold in London fell 2 pence to 139 shillings, 11½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.81, equal to the 1935 low reached last Wednesday.

The pound gained ⅛ cent to close at $4.97⅝ and Canadian dollars were up 3⅛ points to 99.81¼ cents. French francs advanced ¼ point to 6.62⅜ cents, reducing the value of the dollar against francs to $1.0015, compared with $1.0018 yesterday. Other gold bloc currencies showed similar improvement.

Shipments of 10,150,000 ounces of silver are on the way here from London on the President Roosevelt, scheduled to arrive Aug. 30.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Roosevelt Bills Jolt Market—Business Record Better Than That of Stocks—Government Bonds Disturbed—Cotton Steals the Big Show.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Frenzied enactment of a series of bills which President Roosevelt had labeled "must" was a little too much for the stock market last week and, despite continued evidence of broad improvement in industry, prices on the leading exchanges suffered the most severe slump in several weeks, most losses occurring yesterday.

ROOSEVELT.

Early in the week the stock market had been strong, but yesterday's substantial declines, particularly in the public utility and railroad shares were sufficient not only to wipe out the earlier gains, but to force the averages below the levels at which they stood at the end of the preceding week. THE TRIBUNE's average for 50 stocks stood at 102.51 at the close of the market yesterday, compared with 103.44 a week earlier.

Business Makes Better Record.

Business in general made a better record for the week than did stock prices. Steel production continued to mount, with every indication pointing to a further ascent after Labor day. Electric power consumption set another high record for a summer week. And even railroad freight loadings showed a gain over a year ago figures for the first time in ten weeks.

With this favorable trade background, most observers were of the opinion that the break in stock prices was not a serious development. Quotations have been rising almost steadily all summer, with the result that leading stocks have been selling at prices which not only reflect current improvement but discount further betterment a long way down the road.

What Jolted the Market.

Final capitulation of the house to President Roosevelt's demand for the "death sentence" in the Wheeler-Rayburn utility bill, the raising of the estate tax and corporation and individual income tax rates, the extension of the powers of the Tennessee Valley authority, the new rail pension act calling for a 3½ per cent pay roll tax on financially hard pressed railroads, and other measures all coming in a bunch were sufficient to give the stock market a setback.

Meanwhile developments in Washington also were disturbing the market for United States government bonds. The sudden realization that even the new drastic "soak the rich" taxes would yield only 250 million dollars in increased treasury revenues—or only one-sixteenth of the estimated federal deficit of 4,000 million dollars for this fiscal year precipitated some selling by small banks, worried about government's credit.

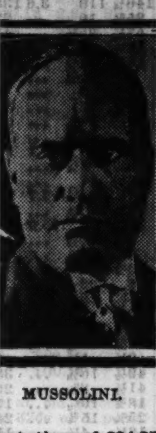
Position of Federal Bonds.

The larger banks and insurance companies, realizing that the treasury would have to bolster up the market for "governments" again before the end of September in order to market a billion and a quarter of refunding bonds to redeem the remaining Liberty bonds called for payment on Oct. 15, did not sell, despite the fact that three issues fell below par.

Most bond experts figure that although the ever increasing federal deficit will ultimately affect government credit, that development is a long way off as the treasury has the two billion dollar stabilization fund for use in manipulating the market.

The banking act of 1935, signed by the President on Friday, also throws the vast resources of the twelve federal reserve banks into the direct control of the treasury. If the market for government bonds weakens seriously the reserve banks, under the provisions of this law, can be directed to go into the market and buy bonds.

The United States was not the only government whose bonds were slipping last week. While American government issues were declining thirty-seconds of a point, Italian bonds were dropping three and four whole points at a time, due to fears of a total collapse of Italian credit in the event of war. Italian external 7 per cent bonds, due in 1951, during the week fell to a new low of $59 per $100 of par value, compared with a high quotation of $94.25 earlier this week. Italy's unit of currency, the lira, was weak in foreign exchange transactions, but, because trading in the lira is restricted by the Fascist government, the full significance of the collapse of Italian credit abroad was more clearly reflected in the market for Italian bonds than in the quotations on the lira.



MUSSOLINI.

Even in peace time Italy, because she is poor in many natural resources, must buy large quantities of raw materials abroad. The prospect of war has increased her need for foreign goods, particularly coal, iron, oil, and cotton. Having virtually no credit and being unable to export enough of his own products to pay for the things he needs, Dictator Mussolini has done the only thing that remained to be done. He has seized the five billion lire gold reserve that formerly backed the Italian currency and is spending it for goods bought abroad.

Cotton Steals the Show.

In American commodity markets last week cotton stole the show with a price drop that reverberated all over the world. The reason was an announcement by the government that this year it would lend 9 cents per pound to cotton planters on their 1935 crop, instead of the 12 cents lent on last year's crop. Although the farm administration announced that the cotton producers would lose no part of their 12 cent subsidy because direct grants of 3 cents per pound additional would be made by the government, the action stirred up a tempest in congress. Prices broke as much as 1.32 cents per pound, or $6.60 per bale, in New Orleans.

The chief reason for the reduction in cotton loans was an attempt to regain American foreign markets for cotton, which are rapidly being taken away by producers of cheaper cotton in Brazil and other nations. Nine cent American still would not compete effectively with foreign cotton selling for little over half that much, but it was regarded by exporting interests as a step in the right direction and also as an acknowledgment of error by the New Dealers.

Export Situation Is Serious.

How serious this country's cotton export situation has become is seen in the fact that in the crop year just ended the world consumed less American-grown cotton than foreign-grown cotton for the first time since the civil war and the demand is still declining. This catastrophe is being concealed temporarily as far as the cotton planter is concerned by government handouts, but the supply of unsold bales is rapidly mounting. Another evil effect is the handicap which artificially high priced cotton throws upon American textile manufacturers in competing with foreigners.

Hogs, sugar, and molybdenum were other commodities that figured in the news in an important way last week. At Chicago and other packing centers a sudden increase in hog receipts due to attempts by farmers to sell their hogs before the cholera epidemic swept their way proved to be just enough to disturb the delicate price situation that had been built up.

Negotiate 21 FHA Loans in Northern Illinois

For the week ending Aug. 20 twenty-one Federal Housing administration insured loans totaling $154,800 were placed with lending institutions in the northern Illinois district, according to Carroll H. Sudler, district director. Of these, ten loans for $57,800 covered refinancing of existing mortgages and eleven for $97,000 were for new home construction. The total of FHA title two loans placed in the northern Illinois district to date is 279, amounting to $1,499,000.

Berwyn Trust and Savings Repays 10% to Depositors

Checks were mailed yesterday to depositors of the Berwyn Trust and Savings bank for the first return since the bank closed Oct. 26, 1933. The current payment amounts to $12,226, or 10 per cent. Preferred claims of $1,011 and $33,894 in old bills have been paid in addition to this disbursement, Receiver William L. O'Connell reported.

COTTON PRICES DROP AGAIN IN WORLD MARKETS

Trade Is Still Upset by Loan Rate Cut.

Cotton prices throughout the world continued to fall yesterday as traders souht further to adjust themselves to the government announcement that loans to growers will be on a 9 cent basis instead of the 12 cents previously in effect.

New low levels were struck as prices broke through Friday's low points and canceled practically all late gains made in that day's trading. Prices generally were off $1.05 to $1.35 a bale. In Chicago, the declines ranged from 21 to 25 points, while other markets were down from 21 to 27 points. Spot cotton closed 25 points lower in New Orleans at 10.70 cents a pound and in New York at 10.85 cents.

Three Contracts Under Pressure.

Pressure was heaviest on the October, December, and March positions, which returned to or sold below the bottoms established in the first hour of trading Friday, when the loan reductions first became a factor in the market.

Contracts were offered rather freely for foreign and southern account, but the market was under better control than on Friday despite the fact that prices never got up to the recovery mark at Friday's close.

A heavy movement of the new cotton crop is expected to develop in the immediate future, as a result of the AAA announcement that it will make up any deficiency which may occur between the 9 cent loan basis and a return of 12 cents a pound on the crop. This payment would apply, however, only to the 10,500,000 bales produced under the Bankhead allotment scheme.

Puts Premium on Selling.

As the cotton trade interprets the new policy of the government it puts a premium on the early selling by farmers of the current crop. As the government agrees to "make" up the difference between the market price and 12 cents a pound and the market price will be based on the average of the leading spot markets in the south from Sept. 12 to Jan. 1, there is no advantage in holding the staple off the market.

In fact, if the price should decline further and the average for the period should be less than current quotations of around 10⅛ cents, the farmers would benefit by selling now.

May Get More Than 12 Cents.

In this connection, also, it was pointed out that a farmer might receive more than 12 cents a pound for his cotton, depending on the level at which he sold it.

For instance, if the average price at the leading spot markets in the south should be 9½ cents for the period, cotton farmers will receive a bounty of 2½ cents a pound from the government. As a result, all who sell at 10½ cents or better will receive 13 cents for their staple. On the other hand, if some farmer sell at 9½ cents on a drop in the market and the average for the period is 10½ cents, these will receive only 1½ cents additional, or 11 cents for their crop.

WAR WARNING CAUSES DIP IN BRITISH STOCKS

All Commodities Record Gains, However.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council and former prime minister, darkened the stock market this week with the dramatic remark that the present crisis is the "gravest since 1914." The decline that followed was distinctly helterskelter and included hasty profit taking.

Although MacDonald has been criticized for his "quite unnecessary" remark, the fact that leaders of the opposition visited Prime Minister Baldwin suggesting that the situation demanded a united "national front" was even more disconcerting. One way of looking at the crisis is to realize that about 6 billion dollars of the national debt has been invested in a whole series of covenants beginning with the Versailles treaty and the league of nations, and it now looks as though the entire investment is a washout.

Fear for National Security.

If the national security aimed at in those pious documents is about to vanish then all the long dated British government stocks are much too high.

The commodity markets, on the other hand, boiled merrily upward, from wheat—despite the fact that plenty of Russian wheat was offered—down to shellac, which despite the vast collection of packages left in London warehouses by the defunct pool, actually improved. Men tell each other that shellac is used for varnishing shells.

Italy has not been a conspicuous purchaser of wools, at any rate crossbred wools, which for reasons of price alone are used for making uniforms, and England is wondering whether the Italo-Ethiopian conflict is going to be waged in cotton uniforms.

Italian Credit Deteriorates.

Italian credit continues to deteriorate in London, partly because there is no sign of Italian gold arriving. One of the "big five" banks refused to "accept" any more Italian bills of exchange and this example will be followed by others. There is much newspaper talk of Italian bank notes being smuggled out of Italy and selling on unofficial "black bourses" in Paris, London and elsewhere at a discount.

The smuggling may, however, be taken with a grain of salt; if the people, in exchange for goods, are willing to accept Mussolini's promise to pay in the form of bank notes he will probably not try strenuously to prevent them. Germany showed in 1923 what can be done by this device and it would be strange if Mussolini were not aware of its possibilities. But, quite apart from their unpopular tendency to rattle the saber, financial comment suggests the two chief totalitarian states have nothing like the prestige they enjoyed 12 months ago.

Imports Exceed Exports by $4,327,000.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Exports, including re-exports, amounted to $173,371,000 in July, compared with $170,184,000 in June and $161,672,000 in July, 1934, the department of commerce monthly analysis showed today. This is a gain of 2 per cent over June. Imports increased 13 per cent, contrary to the usual seasonal decline.

General imports, which includes goods entering consumption channels immediately upon arrival, plus goods entered for storage in bonded warehouses, were valued in July at $177,698,000, against $156,756,000 in June and $127,229,000 in July, 1934. Excess of imports was $4,327,000.

Yearly Change Small.

Total exports for the first seven months of this year amounted to $1,197,475,000, compared with $1,197,725,000 for the corresponding period last year. Imports were valued at $1,172,261,000, against $991,072,000 for the same period in 1934.

Gold exports for July totaled $59,000, while imports amounted to $16,287,000, an excess of $16,228,000. Silver exports were $1,547,000, and imports $30,230,000, leaving a surplus of $28,683,000.

"Although total exports increased over June," the survey said, "exports of certain classes of commodities declined. The greatest absolute decline occurred in textile fibers and textile manufactures, which dropped in terms of value from $28,373,000 to $24,421,000.

Cotton Exports Decline.

"Exports of cotton declined from 193,402,000 pounds, valued at $223,380,000, to 157,885,000 pounds, valued at $19,232,000." Smaller declines were reported in edible animal products and nonmetallic minerals, as well as vegetable food products and beverages.

The largest increase in exports was made by machinery and vehicles, which increased upwards of $2,000,000. These included industrial machinery, motor trucks and electrical machinery. Exports of automobile passenger cars declined.

MISSOURI PACIFIC BOND GROUP IN A FAVORED POSITION

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Because of an unusual provision in a bond indenture, the holders of $12,140,000 of 5¼ per cent secured serial bonds defaulted by the Missouri Pacific railroad are in a favored position to seize control of 1,600 miles of the company's line, it was disclosed today.

Realization of the strategic position of the bondholders in any plan of reorganization has led to a demand for the formation of a protective committee.

The $12,140,000 of bonds are secured by 121,404 shares, or 81 per cent of the capital stock of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico railway. As interpreted by investment councilors, the terms of the bonds' indenture provides that the holders have the right to deny even the issuance of a proxy to the Missouri Pacific management in the voting of this stock whenever the bonds are in default as to principal or interest. When $502,000 of the bonds matured on Dec. 1, 1933, the obligation was defaulted.

BIG STEEL FIRMS FAIL TO REPORT PRICE SCHEDULES

Delay Viewed as Passing of Open System.

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Failure of leading steel companies to file prices for the fourth quarter with the American Iron and Steel institute during the last few days has led to belief that the open price system established by the steel code has been definitly discarded.

In accordance with practice followed during the period that the steel code was in operation, prices for the fourth quarter would normally have been filed with the steel institute last Wednesday. Thus far no such action has been taken. It is expected that announcements on prices will now be made by the individual companies, rather than through the institute.

No Schedules Asked.

The institute has not asked the companies to continue to file their prices and since the steel code has been scapped, such a request would probably be necessary to insure a satisfactory response.

Under the open price system, each company made known its quotations for all customers. Under the steel code, the producers were barred from granting secret rebates or discounts to individual purchasers, so that in effect, each company quoted the same prices to all its customers. The companies were permitted to make changes in the prices of steel, but were compelled to announce all such changes through the institute.

While some producers feel that the open price system helps to eliminate unsound and unfair competition others are doubtful concerning the legality of filing prices with the institute.

Fear Federal Attack.

Some attorneys believe the federal trade commission might attack the open price system as a price-fixing arrangement which violated the antitrust laws. For this reason, steel men declare, it is likely that the large companies will refrain from filing their quotations with the institute, although some of the producers have not yet determined their policy.

Regardless of the manner in which prices are announced, it is believed present quotations will be maintained and that no price cutting will result. Some producers say that an increase in certain prices should become effective Oct. 1.

REPORT PROFITS OF CONTINENTAL STEEL EXPANDING

The Continental Steel corporation's earnings for the first six months of 1935 amounted to $3.58 a share on the common stock, bringing earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 to $1.63 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends, according to the annual statement just released.

In the preceding fiscal year the corporation earned $1.66 a share on the common stock. The decline in earnings for the year despite the showing of the first six months of 1935 was due to the writing off of a loss amounting to $240,922, incurred last summer and fall, when operations in the steel industry fell to a low of 16 per cent and for the company to about 35 per cent.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A concerted move by all railroads to reduce rates on coal from southern Illinois fields to St. Louis appeared a possibility today. The way was paved when the Illinois Terminal Railway system yesterday publishing new rates.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—Pressure was lifted from United States government bonds during the brief trading period today. Recoveries of 2-32 to 12-32 point ruled throughout the list on a turnover of $2,210,000. Federal farm mortgage 3¼s proved an exception to the trend and dropped 14-32 to 101 26-32 on one sale.

Public utility bonds, which held fairly steady Friday in the face of the disturbing news from Washington on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, were subjected to heavy selling.

Average Price Declines.

Declines of one to three points were numerous in that group and carried one utility price average down .46 point on the day. American Water Works and Electric 5s, Federal Light and Traction 6s, and Utilities Power and Light 5s were weak spots and showed losses of 2 or more points.

Mild week-end profit taking exerted its influence on several groups which had been in favor during most of the week. The market for railroad liens was quiet, with even the more speculative issues fluctuating within a narrow trading range.

Ignore Federals' Weakness.

A noteworthy feature of recent bond trading is the manner in which high grade corporation bonds have virtually ignored the weakness in U. S. government securities. Declines of a full point or more in five government loans last week, four of which were guaranteed issues, and losses of ¾ point or better in nine other treasury bonds, failed to disturb to any noticeable degree the price structure of the better grade corporate issues, despite the strong belief that higher money rates are probable in the fall.

Restricted Management Trusts.

The American public was introduced to the investment trust with the general management type of trust. In general the sponsors would sell stock of the company and use the proceeds to conduct market operations.

They did fairly well on a rising market, but when the market broke in 1929 it disclosed that many managers of such trusts had been far from conservative.

Sponsors thereupon devised the fixed investment trust. These purchased a stipulated number of shares of stock of specified corporations and deposited them with a trustee. They then sold interests in the deposited stocks to investors. The trustees could not buy new stock and they were empowered to sell only under certain stipulated conditions. The high degree of rigidity proved too inflexible to be profitable.

Now the limited management trust has come into vogue. A corporation sells its stock to the public at liquidating cost plus a premium. The proceeds are used to purchase listed stocks. The managers of the trust may purchase shares only from a stipulated group that might list anywhere from 50 to 150 eligible stocks.

The shares purchased are deposited with the trustee. Management is vested in the hands of an investment counselor, whose fees are usually based on a percentage of the net income or on a percentage of the net asset value. The stockholder, in other word, pays an original premium for the stock and also pays a continuing fee for management.

Results depend entirely on the skill of the trust managers in making profitable investments. This is something that cannot be forecast. It is impossible to state with any degree of accuracy whether X, Y, or Z will be able to make investments that will prove profitable.

Trust managers are not permitted, in general, to sell short or to invest more than a stipulated percentage of total assets in any one stock.

Most of these trusts have made fairly good showings in the last two years. They should have because the market has been steadily going up. It would be rather a sad commentary on a management that has to buy stocks to report a poor showing in a rising market. One comparison that can be made, however, is to check the improvement in individual trusts with that of others, and also with standard stock market averages.

It is well to bear in mind, however, that trusts of this type have operated on a large scale only for a short period, and on a rising market. The quality of the management will be apparent only over a period of years.

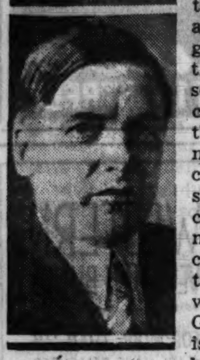
HOMECOMING TO OPEN THIS WEEK

CHURCH UNION WILL APPRAISE WORK IN ILLINOIS

Michigan Meeting to Open Next Week.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Congregational and Christian ministers will convene next week at Tower Hill, Mich., to make an evaluation of the organization, distribution and service of their churches throughout Illinois. This annual convocation is sponsored by the conference of Illinois and the Chicago Congregational union, of which Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie is the executive head.



THE REV. E. G. GUTHRIE.

Four major lines of thought, under the general title "Rethinking the Church in Illinois," will be followed at the sessions, each presented by leading speakers, and the program includes a number of seminars and discussion periods with the Rev. Robert W. Gammon, associate secretary of the Congregational Education society, as general chairman.

Revitalizing Spiritual Service.

Prof. Gaius Glenn Atkins of Auburn Theological seminary, New York, will make four addresses on "Preaching the Scriptures," and O. E. Baker, senior agricultural economist in the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will conduct three seminars on the following subjects: "The Population Prospect—National," "The Population Prospect—Regional," and "The Outlook for Youth—Rural and Urban," as they affect the program and distribution of rural churches in the state of Illinois.

A special feature of this year's convocation will be a series of presentations dealing with practical techniques that the minister may adopt to revitalize the spiritual service of his church and other fields, as music, art and literature will also be considered.

Dr. Guthrie's opening address, "The World's Need of the Church," will be delivered on Tuesday evening, Sept. 3, and before the informal fellowship hour at 9 o'clock a communion service will be conducted by the Rev. E. Paul Sylvester of La Grange Congregational church.

REFUSE PROBLEM IN 17TH WARD IS MATTER OF FUNDS

Ald. Murphy Tells Why Collections Are Slow.

Recent complaints by property owners and improvement associations about the infrequent removal of refuse in the 17th ward "are, unfortunately, founded in fact," Ald. William T. Murphy admitted last week, "but everything possible is being done to improve the situation."

ALD. WILLIAM T. MURPHY.

"The ward superintendent's removal crew is vastly understafed," Ald. Murphy said, "and that is neither his fault nor mine. In the nine months prior to the time I took office last February, when the city budget was compiled and passed, the ward had no representation in the council, and as a consequence the appropriation for the ward was considerably smaller than it should have been."

At present there are only three garbage removal units, made up of eighteen men, nine teams of horses, and eighteen trailers, assigned to the ward, Mr. Murphy said. Collections are made strictly on schedule and on an average of once every two weeks. Twice the amount of equipment and number of men are needed to operate the removal service on a schedule of once a week, he said.

Work Only Four Days a Week.

The ward employés, partly civil service and partly temporary appointees, work only four days a week, the curtailed working period being the result of the city administration's economy program.

"The money just isn't available to employ them for a longer period. The council passed an ordinance creating a five day working week for the ward workers, anticipating additional revenue from the gambling bill, but the governor's veto killed that prospect," he said.

For schedule operation purposes the ward, which is about one mile wide and three miles long, is divided at 72d street, he said. South of that street the crews remove about seventy-five cubic yards of refuse daily, and north of 72d street about sixty cubic yards. The difference in the removals is caused by the greater distance that the trailers must be hauled to the dumping grounds at East 103d street and Lake Calumet, he said.

Additional crews of men and equipment have been borrowed from time to time through the coöperation of Joseph Butler, superintendent of streets, from other wards, but mounting work in other territories has stopped that practice, Ald. Murphy said. Relief workers, who for a short time were assigned to removal work, have been taken off the job.

Free Cans Are Available.

"Adding to the burden the task of removing the refuse is made difficult by the fact that at least 40 per cent of the property owners have no receptacles for their refuse or money to buy them," Ald. Murphy said. "The city is trying to correct that defect through free distribution of cans which were donated by a south side industrial firm.

"About 500 of the cans, which must have the tops removed with acetylene torches and be painted before they are ready for use, are now being distributed."

The alderman added that the whole problem of garbage removal will be solved next December if the council will include additional funds for the ward in its new budget.

GRAND CROSSING C. OF C. TO UNITE WITH CHATHAM'S

Former Business Group Will Be Revived.

An amalgamation of two south side business men's groups, the Grand Crossing Chamber of Commerce and the Chatham Chamber of Commerce, reuniting two groups which once were one, is in prospect within the next few weeks, according to William B. "Bud" Singman, president of the Grand Crossing group. The new organization probably will be known as the Grand Crossing-Chatham Chamber of Commerce, he said.

ANDREW METZGER.

Both Chatham and Grand Crossing, the former centering around 79th street and Cottage Grove avenue, and the latter around 75th street and Cottage Grove avenue, have much in common, said Mr. Singman. "The commercial life of each community is tied up with the other and the social and religious lives of the communities also are related," he said.

"What affects one community, affects the other. We believe that we can better serve our own ends and those of the communities if we operate as one unit."

A resolution calling for the merger was introduced at the recent meeting of the Grand Crossing chamber by Andrew Metzger, a director of the group and president of the Chatham Lions club. The resolution was given an almost unanimous ratification by the members, but rules of the organization call for further ratification at two subsequent meetings, which will be held in September.

CITY-WIDE PARK IMPROVEMENTS PLANS DRAFTED

Thirty-one south side parks and 94 miles of boulevard parkways are included in the rehabilitation project of the Chicago park district involving a total cost of $1,525,060 which was submitted to the works progress administration in Washington last week by Robert J. Dunham, WPA administrator for Illinois. The work is to be started as soon as final approval is given, Mr. Dunham said.

This project, along with two for the west and north sides which involve 77 parks and 110 miles of boulevard parkways, embraces virtually the entire Chicago park system.

A grant of $1,434,260 has been asked from the government, with the park district contributing $90,600 to make up the total cost of the project. The program is expected to give work to approximately 2,256 men for ten months.

1,905 Acres in Parks.

The 31 parks included have a total acreage of 1,905, and the 94 miles of parkways comprise 190 acres.

The work to be done consists of the rehabilitation of the parks and parkways, including changes in contour, rough and fine grading, top soil turnover, preparation of flower beds and gardens, preparation of grounds for miscellaneous sports, installation of drainage facilities, sodding, seeding, fertilizing ground, and planting trees and shrubs in the parks and parkways.

The south side parks included in the project are Washington, Burnham, Jackson, Harding square, Mark White square, Armour square, Fuller park, Cornell square, Russell square, Sherman, Hamilton, Calument, Bessemer, Palmer, Davis square, Grand Crossing, Lyman Trumbull, James R. Mann, Tuley, Midway Plaisance, Sage, McKinley, East End, Foster, Fernwood, Bohn, Cresent, Kennedy, Fernpect, and West Pullman.

Boulevards Are Listed.

The boulevard parkways that are to be rehabilitated are Drexel, Garfield, Michigan, Oakwood, Western avenue, Hyde Park, South Shore drive, Loomis, Normal, Marquette road, and South parkway.

In addition to this project and two others involving rehabilitation of parks and parkways the park district has applied for a federal grant of $970,538, to which it would add $479,924, making a total of $1,450,462 to be used for repairing and resurfacing boulevards under the jurisdiction of the park district. This project is expected to provide work for 974 men for 11 months.

Plan Tag Day.

SOUTH SIDE WILL HAVE THREE NEW BRANCH SEWERS

Two Millions of PWA Funds to Be Used.

Two million dollars of the $16,000,000 which the Sanitary District of Chicago is to receive shortly from the Public Works administration will be spent in constructing three new south side interception sewers, William H. Trinkhaus, acting chief engineer of the district, said last week.

The three projects will relieve the burden on the Stony Island avenue interceptor, which now carries the largest part of the south side sewage, he said.

The new projects are: A 13 foot sewer beneath South Park avenue, from 89th to 104th streets, approximately 10,000 feet long; a five by six foot sewer beneath Stony Island avenue from 73d street to 90th street, approximately 11,000 feet, and an 8½ foot sewer beneath Colfax avenue from 79th to 91st streets, approximately 7,500 feet.

All three sewers will connect with existing city and sanitary district sewers which lead to the new Calumet sewage treatment works at 125th street and Michigan avenue, Mr. Trinkhaus said. Construction will be conducted almost entirely underground and interfere little with trafic.

HARVEY WOMAN'S CLUB PROVIDES STUDENT AWARD

Offer Year's Scholarship in Junior College.

One of Harvey's talented boys or girls will have his or her dream of a college education come true this autumn. The Harvey Woman's club within the next few weeks will announce the winner of a full year's scholarship to Thornton Township Junior college in Harvey.

"For three or four years the club has held tax warants which were purchased to help the grade schools over a difficult period. Now the proceeds have been placed at the disposal of our education department," explained Mrs. H. L. Mills, who is beginning her first year as president.

"We expect this to develop into an annual award. Each year the education department plans to raise enough money to add another scholarship. Thus each student receiving the award may keep it as many years as his record entitles him to it and go to another college after finishing the junior college course."

W. E. McVey, superintendent of the junior college, with the assistance of three members of the club, will select the student to receive the award. The student must be a Harvey resident, graduate of Thornton Township High school, must have proved his scholastic ability and qualities of citizenship, and must need the scholarship, Mrs. Mills said.

Card Parties Planned.

Mrs. W. C. Knaub, education chairman is planning a card party in October to raise further sums for the scholarship fund. This is to be a loan fund, with each year's scholarship to be repaid within three years.

A bridge party will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the ways and means committee at the Cottage tearoom, Lexington avenue, Harvey. Mrs. Walter Parrish is chairman.

The club year will open with a luncheon Sept. 25 in the tearoom of Carson, Pirie, Scott and company, Mrs. Mills announced. Heads of various federations of women's clubs will be guests.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

The Japanese gardens of Jackson park will be visited by members of the garden circle of the Hamilton Park Woman's club following luncheon tomorrow noon at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Stewart, president of the club, 7235 Princeton avenue. Mrs. C. O. Wriplit, chairman of the circle, will hold a brief business meeting.

South Side Catholic Woman's Club.

Mrs. William M. Lusson, president of the South Side Catholic Woman's club, last week announced the final appointments of committee heads to complete the personnel of the club staf for the coming year.

Mrs. Robert J. Sterling is first vice president and finance chairman; Mrs. William Crot, second vice president and program chairman; Mrs. John J. Calnan, third vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. George C. Weathered, recording secretary; Mrs. M. J. Devaney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. M. Schneider, financial secretary, and Mrs. Peter J. Needman, treasurer.

Chairmen include: Social, Mrs. Frank M. McGurk; American citizenship, Mrs. Charles H. Kent; education, Mrs. George E. Myers; social service, Mrs. James P. O'Keefe; legislation, Mrs. Harry A. Laub; child welfare, Mrs. George J. Gibson; house, Mrs. Anna Gaule; courtesy, Mrs. John Cummings; Legion of Mercy, Mrs. E. J. Mitchell; press and printing, Mrs. Charles E. Murphy; international relations, Mrs. Frank Schoenfeld; law enforcement, Mrs. H. E. McCullough.

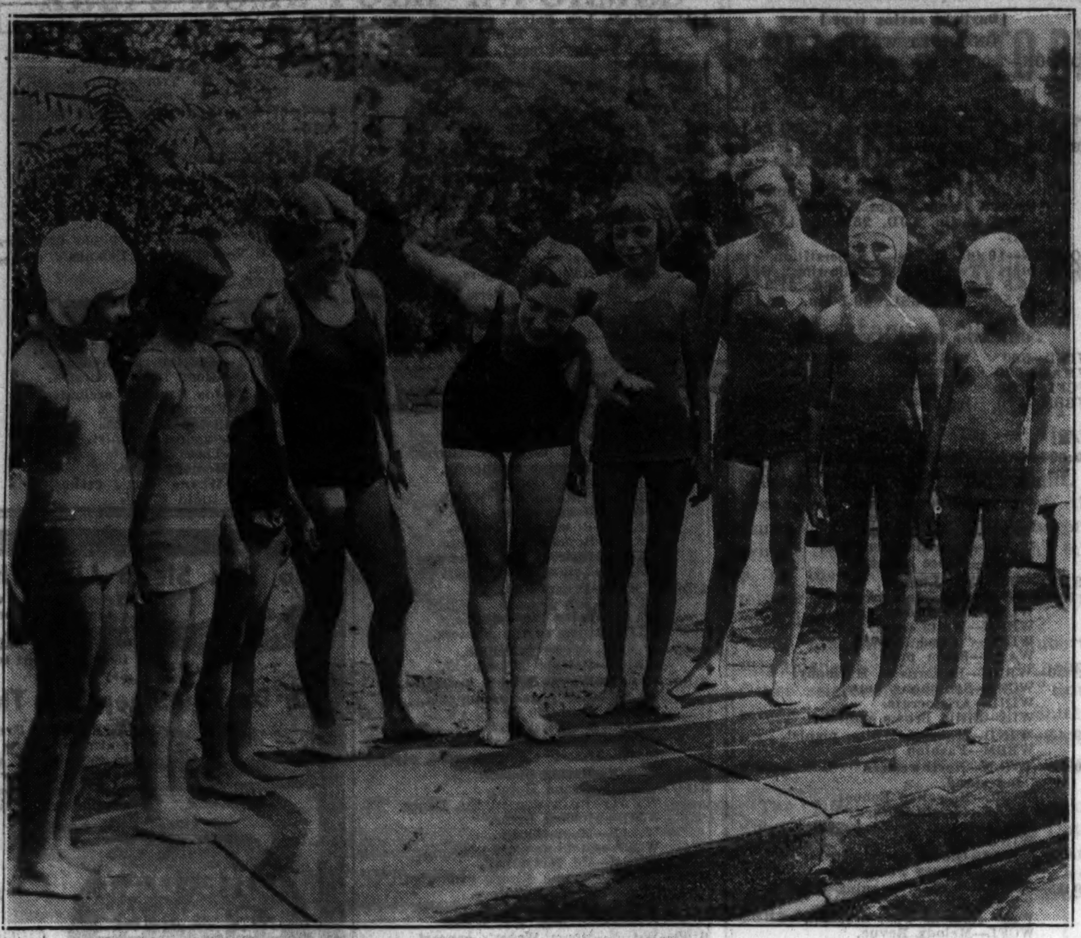
SWIMMERS IN THE MAKING



If all the young girls and boys in South Chicago don't turn out to be swimming champions it won't be the fault of Park Director Richard Russell of Bessemer park, 89th street and Manistee avenue, who is doing his best, through the summer vacation school he started recently, to see that all receive instruction. Pictured above on the edge of the pool are a group of youngsters and Miss Ellen Hawes, girls' instructor. COLFAX I. O. O. F. WILL CELEBRATE 50TH BIRTHDAY

State Officers to Aid Program Thursday.

Fifty years of existence, during which the organization has grown to a size far beyond what its founders had hoped for, will be celebrated Thursday evening by members of Colfax lodge, No. 450, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in their temple at 76th street and Ellis avenue. Leading members of the state organization and several past grand masters of the lodge will take part in the program.

Only one of the charter members, George J. Norrish of Cleveland, a former noble grand, and only one of the first class of candiadtes, Hiram S. Wenner of Chicago, are still active. The latter probably will take part in the program.

Brochure Tells History.

A short history of the organization was published last week in a small gold paper brochure, announcing the "golden anniversary observance." It relates briefly how the 10 charter members started the chapter on the evening of Aug. 29, 1885; the opening of the temple on March 29, 1911, and the merging with Kenwood lodge on May 15, 1824. The merger made the combined lodge one of the largest in the state.

Leaders in Program.

Conducting the observance day program are Thomas H. McMaster, a former officer of the lodge as chairman; the Rev. John H. Delacey, pastor of Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church; Thomas J. Fitzgerald, a former officer; Edward B. Hunt, grand master of the state organization, and J. Paul Kulms, past state grand master.

Members of three Rebekah lodges, Integrity No. 562, Drexel No. 246, and Kenwood No. 174, the drum and bugle corps of Boy Scout troop No. 576, member of John Erickson lodge, and Fred A. James, member of Colfax lodge, will take part in a program of entertainment.

BRYN MAWR WILL MAKE PLAYFIELD ON VACANT LOTS

Owner Offers Free Use of Empty Block.

Temporary use of a block of private property for playground purposes, to take the place of school board property at 76th street and Bennett avenue which is to be the site of the new Rembrandt High school, was promised to the South Bryn Mawr Improvement association last week, according to Elmer Walsh, chairman of the association's playground committee.

ELMER WALSH.

The property, owned by John C. Norris, 7709 Oglesby avenue, lies between Jeffery and Euclid avenues and 76th and 77th street, across from the school board property, and is vacant except for two structures. Use of the property, without cost, was offered to the association by Mr. Norris, until such time as it is sold.

The Chicago Recreational commission agreed through Edwin L. Burchard, executive secretary, to supply labor to level off the property and prepare it for use as a playground. Work is expected to start late this week. One other site, at 74th street and Evans avenue, has been cleared off and a crew is working on another at 83d street and St. Lawrence avenue. When that is completed work will start on the South Shore playground.

FENGER P.-T. WILL STRESS CONTACT WITH STUDENTS

Youth to Attend Group Sessions This Fall.

"New Frontiers of Youth" will be the theme of the Fenger High school Parent-Teacher association during the forthcoming season. This was announced at a board meeting Wednesday at the summer home of Mrs. A. C. Lund, first vice president, at Momence. Final appointments of committee chairmen also were confirmed.

Students are to be drawn into closer contact with the association this year. Mrs. J. H. Woodward, president, said that a student representing the City of Fenger, student governing body, will attend association board meetings and act as liaison officer between the students and the parent-teacher association. He will be chosen by the students and faculty.

The first program of the year will be symposiums on the obligation of the home, the school, and the community to youth, with a student in each case participating. Mrs. Clark L. Reed, district 25 director; Mrs. Holland Flagler, W. E. Scott, boys' director at the 111th street Y. M. C. A., and the Rev. Bryan Blalock of the Stewart Ridge Community church will be guest speakers.

Appointments include: Program, Mrs. Lund; Child Welfare magazine, Mrs. Ernest Plageman; juvenile protection, Mrs. Westal Hawkin; membership, Mrs. Peter Neuswanger; hospitality, Mrs. Eugene Helland; publicity, Mrs. Vernon Haag; publications, Mrs. Edgar Diehl; ways and means, Mrs. Paul Peterson; student aid, Mrs. Carroll Macfarlane; library, Mrs. Lois Wright; school education, Mrs. Lund; homemaking, Mrs. Roy Main.

Music, Mrs. Fred Dawson; delegate, Mrs. H. E. Borchardt; school representative, Mrs. Lena Crum; health, Mrs. Hans Sett; motion pictures, Mrs. E. A. Koch; leisure time, Mrs. Jessie Stewart; finance and budget, Mrs. Norman Fraser; parliamentarian, Mrs. Palmer Magliocco; exhibits and posters, Mrs. William Evans.

Officers include: Mrs. William Wetzel, second vice president; F. W. Schacht, principal, third vice president; Miss Marie McCutcheon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Laurence Buckley, recording secretary, and Mrs. George Carleton, treasurer.

Mrs. William E. Yahnker resigned as president of the Calumet High school association at a board meeting Monday afternoon at Fern Community hall, 79th street and Emerald avenue. Mrs. E. H. Smith, first vice president, will serve in her stead until Sept. 9, when a special board meeting will be held to appoint Mrs. Yahnker's successor. Mrs. Smith herself has declined the post because of the demands of her Girl Scout work.

"Today's Vision, Tomorrow's Achievement" will be the association's theme for the year. One evening and two afternoon meetings will be held at the Westcott branch. Students will have a larger share in the programs, and the policy of holding related tours following the programs will be continued. The Tribune Tower, the Art Institute, and the Harding galleries are to be visited.

The Libby association is sponsoring a mixed chorus for men, women, and children more than 14 years old. Rehersals will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock Tuesday evenings at the Sherman park fieldhouse, 53d street and Racine avenue. Beecher Burton, formerly associated with the Chicago Civic Opera company, will be the director.

AUGUST BRIDE

Mrs. Robert Stevenson Coy, the former Miss Mary Virginia Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Murphy, 2101 East 72d place, who was married Aug. 17 at St. Philip Neri church. A reception followed at the home of her parents. Mr. Coy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry I. Coy, 6805 Merrill avenue. The young couple will be at home at 7337 Ridgeland avenue after Sept. 5.

COLORED AREA RESIDENTS SEND APPEAL TO ICKES

Urge Building of Low Cost Housing Project.

South side colored residents living in the area bounded by 26th and 69th streets, Cottage Grove and Wentworth avenues, through their community organizations, have appealed to Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes to go forward with the plans for the South Park gardens, the proposed low-cost housing project for the area bounded by 37th and 39th streets, South Parkway and Cottage Grove avenue.

Opposition to the project has been strong in the Hyde Park-Kenwood-Oakland region and recently Louis T. Orr, chairman of the PWA committee of the Chicago Real Estate board, headed a group which sought to block the project in the courts.

The action of the board and other opponents of the project has been attacked by the Chicago Urban league, which functions as the voice of the city's Negro population.

Several mass meetings have been held recently at which the social and economic values of the project have been discussed. The creation of employment and the clearing up of what has been called a slum region is felt by proponents of the project as reasons why it should be carried out, regardless of opposition.

Representaives of the following organizations, who attended the mass meetings, have directed appeals to Secretary Ickes:

The 47th Street Business Men's association, South Central Community council, the American Consolidated Trades council, the Chicago Urban league, South Parkway Improvement association, North Hyde Park Civic Improvement association, Federation of Neighborhood Improvement clubs, Citizens' Social and Economic league, Chicago and Northern Association of Colored Women's Clubs, Illinois Housewives' league, Wabash avenue Y. M. C. A., National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the South Side Boys' foundation.

NAMES P.-T. AIDS

Mrs. J. H. Woodward, new president of the Fenger High School Parent-Teacher association, last week made public the organization's appointments of committee heads for the approaching season.

'SISSIES,' CLUB LEADERS SAY OF RADIO'S 'G MEN'

But Women's Attack May Prove Boomerang.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A new radio publication, apparently bent on cudgeling the broadcasting industry into better behavior, made its appearance the other day. Published by the ladies of the Woman's National Radio committee, which claims to represent 17,000,000 club women of America, some of the remarks in the phamplet, Radio Review, are apt to swing back like a boomerang.

The club women's verdict, according to the publication, is that Phil Lord's new "G Men" series is a "sissy" broadcast that "may safely be heard by old ladies with very weak hearts."

Now "G Men" purports to be the official version of the exploits of our national department of investigation headed by J. Edgar Hoover. So far the cases of Dillinger, Baby Face Nelson, Martin Durkin and several other killers have been dramatized. It seems a bit odd that club women, who do a lot of complaining because there is so much blood and gore and thunder on the air [it's bad for the children] should find the exploits of our supersleuths too tame.

Perhaps Mr. Hoover will investigate and see just how many women's opinions the committee represents before he gets sore about the ladies' remarks.

Reiterate Old Charge.

However, while they like their drama raw, the committee members apparently do not care for anything hotcha in music. Their prime lament is that there is too little symphonic music on the air. This is an old charge and one that sounds valid only in August when fiddlers are fishing and baton wielders are taking in the music festival at Salzburg. They'll be back in the fall with plenty of highbrow music.

The club women say they have no quarrel with the lighter forms of entertainment. In an editorial, Luella S. Laudin, editor of the Review and executive secretary of the committee, pleads for a "fifty-fifty" break for the intelligentsia in planning radio entertainment.

Pleads for Fifty-Fifty Break.

"The present preponderance of light programs is conditioning an entire nation," she says, "and particularly the proportion thereof which has never been exposed to culture, to an appreciation of inferior entertainment. It would be just as easy to develop a liking for better things by giving the people a greater number of worthwhile programs.

"This does not mean that there would be no lighter features, but merely that the world's finest music, literature and drama would be available in the same proportion. Then for the first time in the history of radio, the more discriminating portion of the national audience would get a fifty-fifty break. At present only ten per cent of all programs heard is planned for this audience.'"

Among the lighter programs to receive the blessings of the organization are Jack Benny, Lanny Ross' State Fair, Cornelia Otis Skinner and Gracie Allen.

But the heaviest blast is reserved for N. T. Granlund and his tap dancing girls: "Radio at its worst," the editor writes. "The suggestiveness and cheapness of this program is almost unbelievable. Summer is supposed to be the silly season for radio programs but poor taste remains poor taste regardless of season."

Programs Win Commendation.

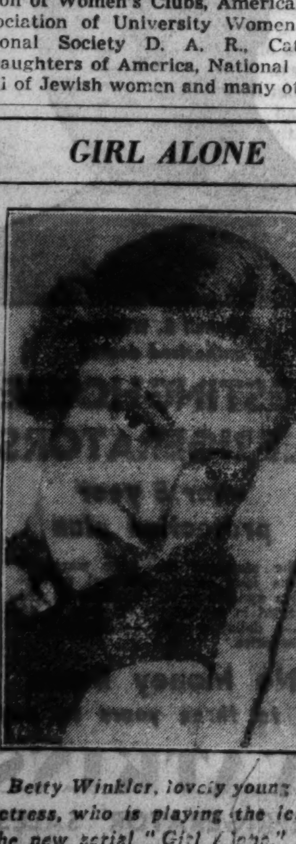
There are cheers, particularly for the Lewisohn stadium concerts and Alfred Wallenstein's Sinfonietta which are heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Reports from listening groups indicate that Jessica Dragonette, the Beauty Box opperetta series, Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson and Harold Sanford's light opera programs are among the favorites.

Kind words, too, for One Man's Family, NBC Drama Guild and Amos 'n' Andy.

The Review will be sent free to those writing the Women's National Radio committee, 113 West 57th street, New York. Letters, expressing opinions, are invited. Organizations affiliated with the radio committee include the General Federation of Women's Clubs, American Association of University Women, National Society D. A. R., Catholic Daughters of America, National council of Jewish women and many others.

GIRL ALONE



Betty Winkler, lovely young NBC actress, who is playing the lead in the new serial "Girl Alone," aired at 9:15 a. m. weekday mornings over WMAQ. Don Briggs plays opposite her as the hero of the opus.

BECKER'S GUESTS

MINSTREL SHOWS FIVE MORNINGS ON W-G-N, MBS

Tiny Stowe to Direct Troupe Tomorrow.

Tiny Stowe and his Minstrels will make their bow to W-G-N and Mutual Broadcasting System audiences tomorrow. A complete minstrel show will originate in W-G-N studios and be presented over the Mutual net five mornings each week from 10:45 to 11 a. m.

Eleven veteran entertainers make up the minstrel troupe. Arthur W. [Tiny] Stowe, director and interlocutor, tips the scales at 245 pounds. He has won fame on the air with the Morning Minstrels program and the National Barn Dance show.

Billy [Snowball] Chandler, Lee [Sugarfoot] Harrison, and Danny [Sunshine] Duncan, all veterans of minstrel shows, are the principals and end men. Chandler, a natural comedian, also plays a trumpet in the instrumental ensemble.

Harrison was a member of the famous team of Harrison and Elmo. Duncan is a master of many types of comedy. "Sunshine" is a hair-trigger "ad libber" and also specializes in comedy songs.

The Dean Brothers, Jimmie and Eddie, are from East Texas. They are great singers and also play guitar and banjo.

The Rangers' quartet, which is led by a fifth member, Merton Minnich, who plays violin, are all instrumentalists as well as a great vocal outfit. Clyde Moffett is first tenor, Osgood Westley second tenor, Lew Storey baritone, and Walter Tuite basso.

WAYNE KING TO BROADCAST TEN ADDED MINUTES

While the Trianon dance hour is discontinued, due to the closing of the Trianon for complete redecoration and restyling, the Aragon portion featuring the music of Wayne King and his orchestra over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system is to be featured in half hour periods nightly instead of for the customary twenty minutes. The new schedule finds King on W-G-N every night, except Monday, from 10:30 until 11 o'clock, and on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, with an additional show from 8:30 to 8:45. His schedule on the Sunday afternoon program will remain the same, with his orchestra broadcasting from 5 to 5:20 and from 5:40 to 6 o'clock.

..LAIN'S Services Outnumber the Average 20 TO 1

● Chicago has given Lain the preference — and Lain has given Chicago lower prices than secured in seven other large cities. ● Lain has more services in one month than the average undertaker secures in twelve. ● Lain's volume is actually 20 to 1—twenty times the average. ● Thus an improved service, with many costly features, such as a complete musical program included with all Chapel services, and Conditioned Air throughout the entire building, is offered by Lain's. ● And yet prices are always lower at Lain's. ● Over 63% of Lain services cost less than $300—more than 35% under $200. ● Complete funerals as low as $110, including IMPERIAL MALE QUARTET, ORGANIST AND ORGAN.

Holland Has The Money-Saving Features

● Better carburetion . . . Better combustion . . . Easier fire control . . . Perfected "burning zone" that extracts maximum heating units from your fuel . . . Super-Radiator, twice as long as usual type, saves heat for home instead of chasing it up chimney . . . Heavy, reinforced one piece castings for all heavy-duty parts . . . And automatic humidity control that makes 70 degrees always comfortable. Just a few of the Holland money-saving features standard for all Holland Furnaces—

BEST ENGINEERED FURNACE!

Cuts Fuel Costs . . . Lasts Much Longer Gives Greatest Home Comfort

ENGINEERING is as important in Furnace economy and performance as it is in an automobile or airplane. And Holland has the engineering!

Originated 28 years ago by revolutionizing the old warm-air method of home heating . . . by adding ventilation . . . by introducing controlled humidity the Holland was the first true winter air conditioner. After pioneering for 28 years it is still America's most modern furnace.

Nearly A Million Now In Service

Holland owners, many of them neighbors of yours, will gladly tell you what Holland engineering means to their complete winter comfort . . . tell you how Holland Furnaces heat, ventilate, humidify . . . how they take used air out of the home and return fresh zestful air that's like a tonic. They'll tell you too, about Holland economies, long life, and the advantages of buying the only nationally-known furnace manufactured, installed and serviced by one company. Have a Holland Engineer explain the features of Holland Furnaces. (No obligation, of course.) It's easy to own one.

MOON MULLINS
by Frank Willard
IF UNCLE WILLIE WANTED TO SLEEP HE SHOULDA COME SEEN THIS PUNK PICTURE INSTEAD OF TAKIN' THEM PILLS FOR HIS INSOMNIA.
YEH- I WANTED HIM TO SAVE ME SOME, BUT HE WENT AND TOOK TH' WHOLE BOTTLE.
GOOD GOSH! ONE OF THEM PILLS PUTS A PERSON TO SLEEP FOR EIGHT HOURS.
AND JUST WHEN I THOUGHT I WAS GONNA GET TO SPEND A QUIET EVENING AT HOME BY MYSELF. OH WELL, LET 'EM RING.
POOR UNCLE WILLIE-HE SHOULDA KNOWN A WHOLE BOTTLE OF THEM PILLS WOULD PUT HIM TO SLEEP FROM NOW ON.
I WOULD LEAVE MY KEYS IN MY OTHER PANTS AT A TIME LIKE THIS!
FIRST THEY RING THE BELL AT THE FRONT TO SEE IF ANYBODY'S HOME AND NOW THEY'RE TRYING TO BATTER DOWN THE BACK DOOR- IT'S BURGLARS AS SURE AS I'M A FOOT HIGH
I GUESS THE ONLY THING TO DO IS BUST A WINDOW AND GO IN THAT WAY.
BAM!
CLICK
SAY WOT IN TH'-?
ONE SIDE, FOLKS! ONE SIDE!!
WILLIAM! WHAT IS THE MEANING OF THIS?
HE TOOK THAT WHOLE BOTTLE OF INSOMNIA PILLS I HAD IN TH' BATH ROOM, MAMIE.
WELL, WILLIE - I TOLD YOU MOON WOULD GET MAD IF YOU SHOT ALL THEM PILLS AWAY IN YOUR B-B GUN.

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution for many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. BATTLESHIP RUNS INTO ROUGH WEATHER

Even on a summer day the Bay of Biscay, on the west coast of France, can live up to its reputation for rough weather. This picture was taken on H. M. S. London. Notice how the front turret has been trained around to keep water from flowing into the gun muzzles.

By RHEA SEEGER.

THE most doubting young clothes collector will concede that a college girl would know more about the proper college wardrobes than any one else. So, after dashing about classrooms, across the campus a dozen times a day, observing scouts are fully equipped with the necessary hints and tips for a successful first year in any college or school. Chicago shops are now ready for the big rush. These experts are ready for the fun of telling first year girls the whys and wherefores of good college wardrobes. A dozen different colleges and schools are represented in the various college shops, so you can't go wrong.

Some of their hints we are passing on to the interested buyers of college loot. We've left the sweaters and skirts for another story. They rate that much alone, as a skirt and sweater comprise the standard equipment or uniform for each and every school and American college, whether expensive or inexpensive, sweaters in sets, in colors, and with sleeves rolled above the elbows.

Suits are as practical as can be designed, coats trimmed with fur collars that will top silk and wool dresses alike, and the best buy of the season is the swagger fur coat. Plaid wool costumes and slim daytime outfits may be used for general wear.

Foresighted Market Men Aid Plans of Kitcheneer with Partly Prepared Meats

By MARY MEADE.

IT'S not only Dame Nature who is giving the perplexed meal planner a break these days. Right now, of course, seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables are offering myriad suggestions for interesting and varied meals, but of late we've been especially intrigued by the help the meat markets have to give.

Time was when about all one could expect from a meat dealer was information on how large a roast she would need for Sunday's company dinner, or a tip that the lamb was particularly nice. Now, however, enterprising market men are stocking their refrigerated display counters with a great many partly prepared meat dishes as suggestions for appetites jaded by the inevitable round of chops, steak, and roasts.

Markets Also Aid in Preparation.

Not only in the meal planning, but also in the job of food preparation are these markets offering an interesting service. If the shopper is taken by the idea of serving broiled meat patties wrapped in bacon, attractively displayed in the chilled cases, she has had both the problem of "what to serve" solved for her, and the large part of the preparation, for all the tidy rounds ask is a few minutes of broiling or pan frying.

Ground beef cakes, those made from flavorsome ground lamb, and patties of veal, all are offered by a number of meat shops. They come in sizes adapted for convenient cooking and serving, and usually they boast the added flavor and fat content that wrapping with bacon gives. Also, this particular offering of the market provides an inexpensive meat dish with no sacrifice of flavor or tenderness. The less tender cuts of meat, with their high flavor content, are efficiently transformed, through grinding, into patties which are tender enough to be broiled just as one would the finest chops and steaks.

Besides the individual servings of ground meat, some markets also offer a ready formed meat loaf. The ground meats, mixed according to the market's specifications or your own choice, come neatly shaped, ready seasoned, and all set to be popped into the oven with a topping of bacon strips or a basting of tomato sauce.

If fried chicken is your pet dish at this time of year, one market we know is ready to relieve you even of the task of cutting and breading the individual pieces. You can purchase, at a surprisingly small cost, units of a half frying chicken —legs, thighs, and breasts—already dipped in fine, seasoned crums and ready for the frying pan. The giblets and more bony pieces may be purchased separately for fricassees or creamed dishes. Or, if you prefer to broil halves of chicken, it's not at all necessary to fret over splitting the plump young birds, for that's another job the market is pleased to do for you.

Roasting Birds to Be Stuffed.

Later on, when roasting chickens again supersede fried ones in popularity, the same market which offers the ready-to-fry birds will have ready-stuffed roasting chickens. What with flavorsome dressing neatly tucked inside the beautifully cleaned bird, all the cook needs to do is to take the roaster down from the top shelf and heat the oven.

Mock chicken legs are another popular suggestion that most markets have ready prepared. In some cases the mock drumsticks still are being made of small cubes of meat, alternating two varieties on a wooden skewer. The latest trick, however, is to sell machine shaped drumsticks made from ground meats. They're a little more even in shape and equally easy to cook.

If a roast is to be the order of the day, it might

TIPS ON FASHIONS FOR THOSE WHO MEET HIGHER EDUCATION DRESSED THEIR BEST

● Paisley silk scarfs in deep, glowing colors are tied around the necklines of sweaters, as well as of dresses or silk blouses. Dotted scarfs still are going strong as color contrast. Other neck trims featured are chokers of dull gold beads, or the always popular string of pearls.
● There are two heights in low heeled dancing sandals. An extremely low heel for tall dancers, or the higher "low" for shorter sandal buyers. In satins, in both silver or gold kidskin, and in white numbers that may be dyed to match the dress with which you wear them.
● Alligator handbags to match footgear are the most popular buys. You may find them in all bright colors and in dark street shades, and they are as dependable as they are smart and colorful, for they practically wear forever.

Paris Provides a Glimpse of Fall Fashions

Glorious Blue of Twilight Sky Is Leading Hue; Hats Going Dramatic.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The last week of the Paris season, just before the great national holiday, Bastille day, was frantic with balls, galas, the night racing at Longchamps, luncheons and dinners and teas under the delicate green of summer trees. I leapt from my bed each morning to answer an urgent telephone which called me to one of the great dressmaking houses or the other to see dresses, hats, and other finery just being made for the Famous Forty to wear hither and yon. Later I saw these clothes in their setting of glamor, lights, and fine hangings, on the ladies themselves. It has been a long time since women have bought such clothes, and so many, for one week in summer. Most of the fashion leaders chose with a canny eye on September and the last fêtes offered a forecast of coming styles.

At the ball that the Hon. Mrs. Fellowes gave in her château in Neuilly there was a veritable haze of blue, the glorious blue of twilight horizons over everything. It's a blue you see in dark cornflowers, and it's a blue that will want watching, for it is going to be a fall color of the first water. Maybe to fix the exact shade many of the smartest women wore blue cornflowers in their hair—garlands, or tiny caps of them, or visors over white foreheads.

Most Stunning Frocks Simple, Long, Slender.

At the night fête at Longchamps, when the famous race course was transformed to a wunderland of green grass and trees, made brilliant by electric lights, the women who looked stunning were wearing chiefly simple, slender line frocks which touched the graveled walks, and tailored jackets, officers' capes, or fabulous capes of sable, fox, or ermine, for the night was chilly. Every head was decorated with feathers, a silly and utterly charming miniature hat, or flowers.

The few women who wore bouffant organdy dresses must have felt a lot like Astor's horse, for they looked out of place, jaded, and demodé. Skirts were never flared, when chic, but many were draped a little, particularly in front. Some women wore their skirts draped up in front to daytime length, and long in back. This kind of skirt was startling, but to my expert eyes looked too bizarre to make any kind of sudden fashion.

Velvet took an important place for this midsummer week that is a real fashion parade. Velvet capes, cut like officers' capes right out of the Italian army, looked stunning and right, with their military collars. Several simple velvet suits with long skirts and sheer chiffon blouses were worn. They were cut like daytime suits, with pockets and all. An interesting note was that the velvet was colored, not black . . . dark cornflower blue, dark green, and dark Burgandy red.

Mainbocher's Drapery Definitly Simple.

Metal brocade and lamé, subdued to a mere shimmer of silver or gold on a white or colored ground, was a favorite material for some of the best dresses. Vast quantities of white were worn, and for once women left off the pink that has been an outstanding evening color this summer. As always, black was one of the most distinguished shades. The Marquise del Merito, a beautiful brunette, wore a Mainbocher suit of white damask threaded with silver. She had an oriental draped turban on her black head.

A flower bib like the one shown on figure No. 1 was a smart note. The drapery of this Mainbocher frock of darkest red velvet is the kind that [illegible] chic this coming season. It is definitly simple, as you see, confined to the waistline region and going into fullness at the front of the skirt. The flowers are pink, blue, and green, and there is a crown of the same flowers.

No. 2 is a model made for Baronne Eugene de Rothschild, by Mainbocher, and is a perfect evening dress in the new feeling of simplicity in fashions. It is heavy white crêpe, with two petals of the material coming from the twisted shoulder straps and making a bodice drapery. The skirt is quite wide without looking the part. The sable tulle pancake hat, with its feather, matches the sable cape.

Ruffled Back Contrasts with Plain Front.

No. 3 is a tulle evening frock that is being worn by such famous women as Marquise de Laborde, Lady Mendl, and Lady Hadfield. The ruffles that cascade down the shoulder straps at the back and the four ruffles at the back of the skirt give it a beautiful movement, while the front of the dress is extremely simple and flat. The crown of blue cornflowers, with buns of these flowers over the ears, makes an amusing headdress. The model is from Mainbocher.

No. 4, in black crêpe and black satin ribbon, which forms the right side of the bodice and the pouff at the left hip, is a frock which Baronne Philippe de Rothschild, Baronne de Zuylen, and the Marquise de Paris all wore the last week of the season, either in all-black or all-white. Mainbocher designed it.

DRAPERIES, CHIC RUFFLES AND FLOWERS ARE GOWN NEWS

● No. 1: This is the draped velvet frock which got an okay from Paris style leaders this season. It is dark red and the floral bib is pink, blue, and green. ● No. 2: Baronne Eugene de Rothschild wears this simple white crepe evening frock with a petal bodice. The hat is sable colored tulle and the cape of sables. ● No. 3: Tulle ruffles down the shoulder straps and skirt give a back interest to this smart evening gown being worn by several of the Famous Forty. ● No. 4: Black silk crepe and black satin ribbon are the materials of this smart evening frock worn by the Marquise de Paris. Ribbon forms the right side of the bodice and the interesting pouff at the hip.

Mother-in-Law Deserves More Consideration

Too Many Brides Carry an Unfair Prejudice as Matrimonial Defense.

By Doris Blake.

COMPLAINTS about mothers-in-law are coming in already from the young brides of the spring and early summer.

Today we intend to take a stand with the mothers-in-law against the younger women, because we are pretty well convinced that the younger women, time and again, bring the in-law troubles down on their own heads. They start out with a chip on their shoulder, fastened on with an age-long prejudice which, we think, needs to be dissipated.

The younger women have enjoyed too long, we think, the position of popular sympathy in these in-law struggles. We think they have capitalized on them long enough. Granted there are disagreeable, even unbearable mothers-in-law in the world, we still think there is, among the newlywed females, a greater proportion of viragoes than among the older group.

We are stunned frequently with the cold blooded attitude of young wives who have moved in on the older woman's household as a matter of financial convenience. The manner in which they expect the older one to abdicate her throne and turn the keys over to the self-appointed successor has certain other world known despots lashed to the mast for arrogance.

We know that many educated, modern mothers-in-law, hating that poisonous reputation that has clung to their enforced position for centuries, have leaned over backward in an effort to right themselves in the world's eyes. But not a moment of coöperation have many of these enjoyed from the younger woman. We could point to one illustrious incident in our personal acquaintance in which the mother of three sons schooled herself for years, before the boys took on marriage, to meet the in-law situation in a fine, generous way. There was never a word of interference on her part. Never a suggestion that could be misconstrued. One daughter-in-law proved a charming friend to her husband's mother. The other two set out armed with all the old prejudices right from the beginning. Not a single friendly advance did either girl offer the mother who blessed the lives of those two young women with excellent husbands. One, indeed, went out of her way to deliver hurtful remarks with nothing more than the age-old prejudice to inspire and sustain the enmity exhibited in said remarks.

We know that there is a great number of women of the older generation whose conduct under the in-law circumstances is above reproach, yet who suffer from the cruelty imposed on the in-law position collectively. Their most innocent remark is misconstrued. Their most innocent action is misjudged. Their very position as an in-law puts them beyond the pale of fair consideration.

We do wish you younger women of the In-Law society would do as much of your share in trying to bring about amicable relations as that body of older women is doing. You younger ones have been quick enough to shed other old customs and prejudices that interfered with your ideas of [illegible] progress. Why can't you remove that chip from your shoulder, hold requiem services over it, and inter it in a mausoleum along with other outmoded and outdated habits and customs? As we see it, it's up to you of the younger generation to make a few concessions now.

SNAPSHOTS FROM PARIS

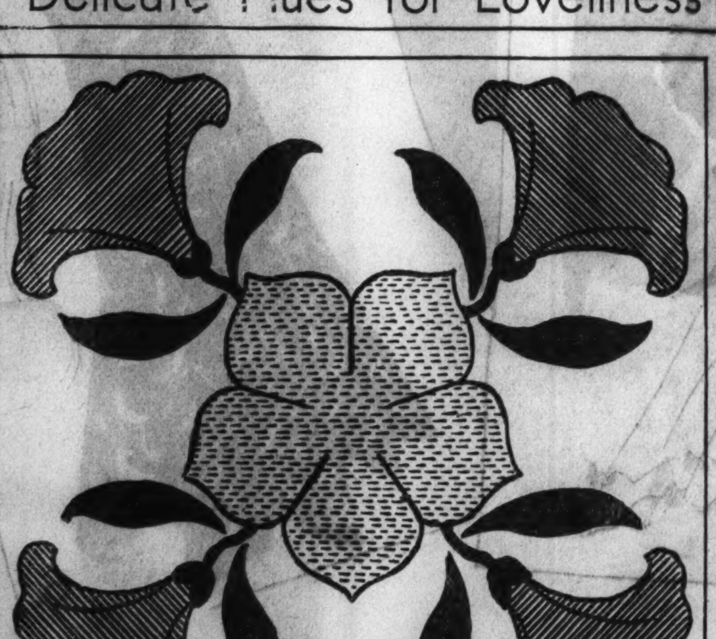
● The Paris fashion shows coming on for winter, 1935-'36, are going to see the debut of a mode for wearing jewels to hold the hair. Schiaparelli is making these ornaments.

● There are forty-nine fashions in fall hats, but women here who are ordering their September and October millinery choose most often the beret in one of its new shapes. Velvet and felt berets, trimmed with ribbon or quils, predominate.

● Gloves that you will want this coming season will be short, tailored gloves—about two and three button lengths. Dark blue, brown, and black are the outstanding colors for autumn.

● Paris shoes for fall are becoming more and more covered, and slippers that come up in a point over the instep to the ankles are the latest style. Heels continue low and medium.

Dainty Floral Quilt Combines Delicate Hues for Loveliness



AZALEA.

By Nancy Cabot.

MEASURING 16 inches square when completed, this lovely "Azalea" block requires only 12 applique and 18 plain blocks for an entire coverlet. Pink and rose, combined with soft green, form the favorite and most suitable color scheme for this particular type of floral design. The quilt diagram accompanying the pattern illustrates an effective block arrangement, with ample opportunity for the quilt maker to display her ingenuity in the quilting done on the plain blocks.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Meat Markets Aid Cause of Meal Planners

be well to inquire as to the prepared roasts your market offers. The boned, rolled roasts are, of course, to be taken for granted, as well as those whose tenderness has been enhanced by larding with fat or special wrapping. But we're referring to the possibilities in meat-stuffed roasts. A crown roast of pork or lamb frequently is available with a ready seasoned stuffing of ground veal. Of, if you prefer to add your own dressing, almost any market has shoulders of veal or lamb, already boned and slit to form a tidy pocket to hold the stuffing.

Veal breast also is available in the same form for roasting or pot roasting. [When cool wheather prompts you to think again of braised, stuffed pork chops, it also is well to remember that these needn't be split at home. It's much easier and more satisfactory to buy those chops which are already provided with a pocket.]

Another roast possibility, suggested by several markets, is the shoulder of lamb. One market offers this cut with a seasoned, ground veal stuffing, and it's excellent!

Rolled breast of lamb is one of the favorites of another shop. Weighing around three and a half pounds, this stuffed roast is just as economical as it is good. A meat stuffng is used, carefully seasoned, and combined with fresh mint in the grinding. The flavor of the mint thus permeates both the stuffing and the lamb in the cooking.

With the cubing machine coming more and more into prominence at the markets, it's possible to obtain individual servings of almost any meat in neatly cubed form. The less tender, and hence less expensive, cuts yield quickly to the cross-slashings of the blades. In addition to their economy, these cubed steaks offer the advantage of quick cooking. A few minutes of broiling or panbroiling usually suffice.

Soft Cashmere Tweed Creates a Distinctive Knitted Sweater

By Jean Macdonald.

WOMEN who want a change in knitting yarns from which to make their blouses, having worked on boucles, crêpes, string, or cotton during the summer, might look forward to a knitting job done with wool yarns such as chiffon, French or baby zephyr, 2 ply angora, or fine imported cashmeres and saxonies. These wools are ideal for the college co-eds.

Yarn manufacturers are adding their newest shades to an already attractive and well filled color chart. These include fascinating tweed mixtures and the popular violet and purple shades. The sweater illustrated today is made of finest imported cashmere tweed, the color of bronze and sea green, a heavenly combination. The blouse is as soft as a rabbit's ear. The main body of the blouse is knitted in the stockinette stitch, while ribs of purling in varying lengths run from the neckline to the waist of the sweater.

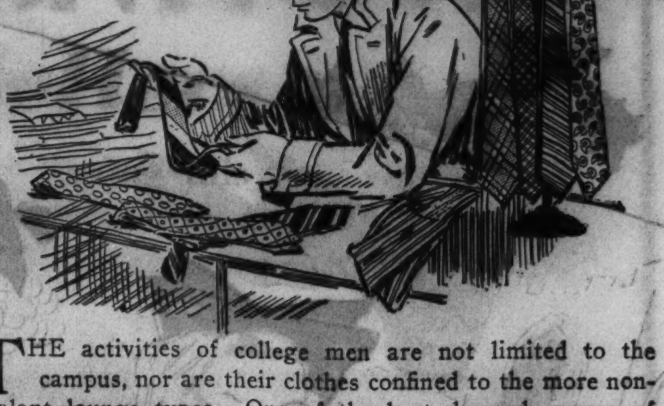
Tightly fitting cuffs carry out the same motif. A cord trimming is the only decoration for the V neck. The cord is tacked at points along the neckline to hold it in place, and it is finished with a diamond shaped bead through which the cord is fastened.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for knitting the tweed cashmere sports blouse and two scarfs illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Avenues of Fashion

If you would like information about modes for men, especially about articles described in this column, write to the Men's Fashion department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Illinois. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your letter.



THE activities of college men are not limited to the campus, nor are their clothes confined to the more nonchalant lounge types. One of the best dressed groups of men, including both undergraduates and graduates, embraces the college man in town.

In contrast to the studied carelessness of attire on the campus is his appearance in town, which compares favorably with that of any Wall street broker.

SHARKSKIN WITH AN OVER-PLAID

Typical of the choice of the university man in town in both fabric and model is the double-breasted suit sketched, which features the long roll lapel to the bottom button. It is made of a clear cut, oversquared sharkskin worsted fabric. The latter pattern idea is the newest note.

WIDESPREAD INFLUENCE

Even though he is separated from us by the Atlantic ocean, the duke of Kent is influencing the dress tastes of American men. The wide spread collar has definitly caught on and will be seen on the best dressed college men this fall. This shirt, as sketched, in a small check weave, is particularly smart.

The equally acceptable tab collar shirt again exhibits the British influence, with its closely spaced stripes of typical English origin.

ECONOMY AND SMARTNESS

Just as the well dressed man in all groups favors the custom lines of the British type quarter brogue, university men in town relinquish the sports type of campus shoes in favor of this model.

STRIPES AND CLOCKS

The hose chosen by the university man in town is distinguished by its smartly conservative appearance in keeping with the other details of his outfit. Hose of this category are the horizontal stripe and the 6 by 3 English ribs which Esquire has sketched.

HIGH FASHION IN HATS

Visit London and you will see well dressed Britishers wearing midnight blue Homburg hats. Visit any metropolitan American city, particularly on week-ends, and you will see well attired university men favoring the same top piece. Important details of this hat are the tapering crown and the definite curl of the brim that give it a mark of distinction when properly proportioned. Another smart in-town hat worn by university men is the bowler (derby to you and to us). Here, too, however, its smartness depends entirely on its well-proportioned crown, which should be slightly telescoped. Its brim should be moderately small and fairly flat set.

BRACES IN THE LOWER REGISTER

Following the lead of darker toned rep stripes in neckwear, braces harmonize in similar colorings. As with deep toned neckwear, these braces are unusual in their striking combinations of darker colorings.

Cut-Out Designs Are Waterproof and Decorative

A NEW line of cut-out decorations is now on the market. At a small cost one may purchase 120 of these little waterproof, colored motifs. Some are conventional repeat designs, others are of fish, elephants, flowers, etc. They come in red, green, brown, and lavender, and are intended as boarders to be used around the wall in kitchen, bathroom, or nursery, as a pretty outline for a window frame, as a mirror decoration, or as brighteners of play chests and chests of drawers.

Women of Punjab Display Apathy Toward Suffrage

WOMEN of the Punjab, given the right to vote by the new Indian constitution, have shown such apathy about registering, that it seems likely that not more than 1,000 of the 500,000 enfranchised will exercise the privilege.

New Utensil Is Practical Aid in Making Ice Cream

FOR those who can find no substitute for the delicious quality of old-fashioned, home made ice cream, one Chicago department store is showing a new and practical little utensil. It consists of a mechanical crusher for ice cubes, a receptacle for holding them, and a complete little ice cream freezer, large enough to serve four or six people.

You turn the crank, yourself, in the old fashioned way. It's a speedy method of making a satin-smooth, cold dessert.

Good Posture Is Key to Beauty and Vitality; Women Must Strive for It Daily and Avidly

By Antoinette Donnelly.

I SAT in the other day on a beauty judging event. And, if you'll only take my word for it, women, you young ones especially, not all the rouge and lipstick in the world will get you as far on the road to fame and fortune as will posture. I saw girl after girl being given the not-wanted highsign for no good facial reason. Some of the girls were extremely pretty facially, hair done up attractively, and they wore chic clothes, but the judge and his jury said: "She can't walk!"

Along came a girl whose mother never could brag about the face of that child of hers. Said the presiding judge: "Hold her! She has style!" He didn't mean clothes, either. For he added, when some one argued that she hardly represented a fashion house: "We can get her the clothes that are needed, but she has to supply the walk. We can't buy her that!"

And that, my sisters, is what beauty is coming to! If you can't move about with grace and ease the other girl is going to get the contract. We talk this posture and talk it and talk it, and get exceedingly discouraged when nice girls are seen who have everything but that one most important thing. I do wish you women would take up this posture business as you took up reducing. It was no trouble getting you interested in the neat silhouette, and how that improvement did change many of your careers! Now if you'd only tackle this posture business with the same enthusiasm, I'm here to argue that you could save half you spend on your wardrobe and you'd go twice as far if you'd only adopt the measure that gives you the buoyant step, the vital air, and the graceful motion.

Maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea to try to get the men interested, too. They need this posture training just as do the women. Then, when the two of you are working together toward a perfect postural state, you can be correcting each other good-naturedly.

Faulty Posture Sends Body Out of Correct Alignment.

I was reading the other day remarks addressed to the men by a noted physician who said that faulty posture is to the human body what poor engineering is to a bridge. If the girders are out of plumb, grave stresses develop and the structure sags or collapses. Dr. Morris S. Brill, the physician, calls attention to the pitiful figure which the average man presents at middle age. He stands there, the doctor notices, with head sunk forward, chin dragging, shoulders humped, chest collapsed, stomach protruding, and his weight on his heels. To the medical profession he is known as the gorilla or fatigue type. If he tires easily and always is below par, is it any wonder, we are asked? In this position his lungs are constricted so that they must get along on less than a third of the oxygen needed. His spine resembles an exaggerated letter S, throwing his whole visceral apparatus out of place and endangering digestive and eliminative processes.

"The resulting strain," says Dr. Brill, "on muscle tissue, plus the accumulation of intestinal toxins, leads to rapid fatigue and a miserable outlook on the problems of everyday living."

Health, Beauty, Mental Outlook All Depend Upon Proper Posture.

All of which proves that health, beauty, mental outlook, male good looks depend more upon posture than upon anything else. So let's be sensible, everybody, about this posture business! Let's try it out as a cure-all, as a beautifier, as contributing to masculine or feminine success, which it surely does! It's the first impression you make. It's the first hint anyone gets of you, what you're like, whether you are successful or not, isn't it? A commanding presence or a slovenly or timid one?

First, throw back the shoulders by rotating the palms of the hands outward as they hang by the side. Just walk around with the palms of the hands forward. See in a mirror what that does to pull up the chest and flatten the back. It's an old army custom, still practiced in the best army circles, to get one up in position. Brill suggests that this will expand the chest and if, now, you'll inhale as if you were smelling a pleasant aroma, really smelling it, the deflated lungs will blossom into full action.

Instead of standing dejectedly on the heels like the penguin, our hero and heroine should plant the feet parallel to each other and distribute the weight on the balls of both feet.

Get the chest up. Get those feet planted parallel, with the weight distributed, as suggested, and already there is a remarkable improvement. But don't stop here. Do some waist bending exercise. Bend forward and back from the waist, with hands stretched high overhead. While you're doing this exercise the muscles of the entire body are getting the good stretching they need.

Brill says it isn't the load we carry but the way we carry it that breaks us down. Why not let good posture lift the burden, then? I haven't a doubt that you have had the experience time and again of sitting, standing, or even walking along slumped to the depths mentally. With a jerk you pull yourself erect and almost miraculously you experience a lightening of the load. Maybe you never thought of it in connection with physical and mental health. But there the experience stands to prove its worth.

If you've been in the habit of walking with toes out, you have to train those toes to turn in slightly, Indian fashion, gripping the ground with the toes if no shoes were on the feet. In addition to correcting arch difficulties, this causes the body weight to be distributed along the outer edges of the feet.

So much for the erect position. Now don't sit with knees crossed low and the whole weight on one single spot, the base of the spine. You can't rest sitting on the spine base. It means only more tension. Sit well back in the chair, so that the weight is on the bottom of the thighs. This will rest you without strain.

New Invention Is Designed to Keep Bedroom Cooled

THE latest scientific invention in bedroom equipment is the air cooled bed. It is a mechanical arrangement, made to fit any bed, and which is guaranteed to keep the temperature above it at 70 degrees. It is simple to install, and you simply plug it into a light socket to start it going.

It consists of a white enamel railing, about a yard or more above the bed, from which are hung white, rubber lined curtains to the floor, and a long, narrow box affair depending from this railing at the foot. The curtains are to keep the cool air in. The box takes in the hot air of the room, de-humidifies it, and cools it, sending it out at the bottom. This cool air falls to the surface of the bed and spreads over it like water in a pan. It forces the warm air up. There is no cover over the bed, at all, yet it always is 70 degrees cool on the bed, itself.

There are no drafts on this bed. The air is cool, fresh, and dry, but it does not move any more than air in any room does, so the sleeper will not catch cold from drafts.

This bed is recommended for invalids, for people living in warm climates, for anyone who enjoys a cool night's rest no matter what the outdoor temperature may be.

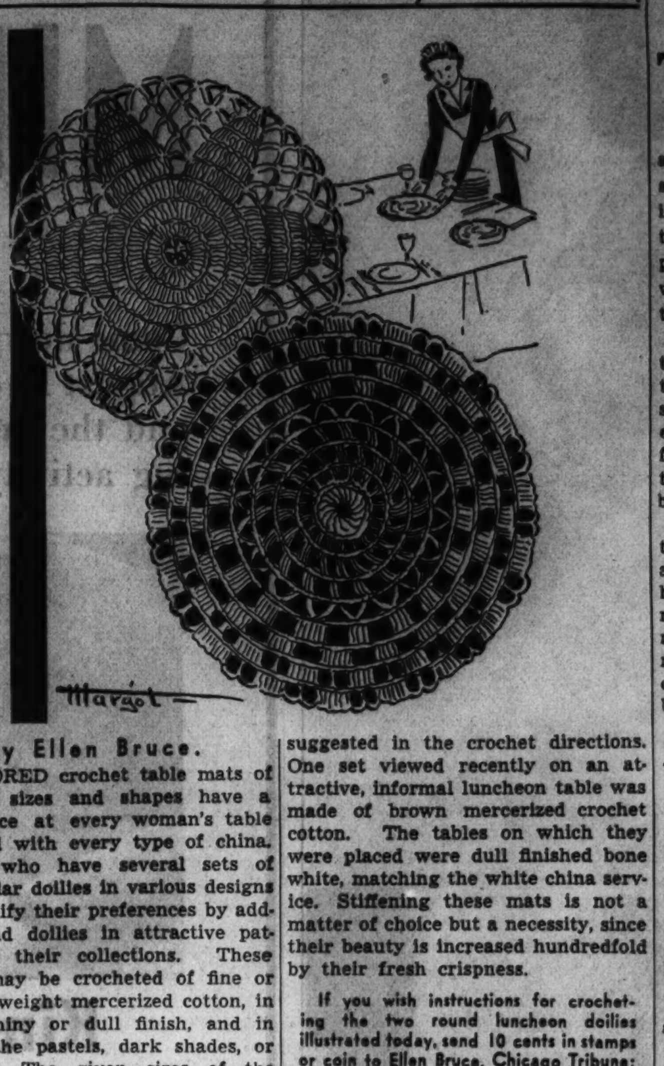
The equipment is the result of several years of scientific experimentation, and is the first of its kind to be shown in Chicago. It is on view and is sold at a State street store.

Bridal Market Annual Event in Mohammedan Country

A BRIDAL market is held annually in the primitive and remote Mohammedan community of Kukes, northern Albania. Buying a wife by Albanian shepherds remains a speculative transaction, but most of the deals are for spot cash.

Among the youngest of the new women skippers is Miss Mildred Merkley, 22 years old, of Las Vegas, N. M. She has a master's license to pilot boats in coastal waters.

Round Crochet Doilies Are Attractive with Any Service



By Ellen Bruce.

COLORED crochet table mats of all sizes and shapes have a place at every woman's table and with every type of china. Women who have several sets of rectangular doilies in various designs may modify their preferences by adding round doilies in attractive patterns to their collections. These doilies may be crocheted of fine or medium weight mercerized cotton, in either shiny or dull finish, and in any of the pastels, dark shades, or natural. The given sizes of the doilies, illustrated today, may be enlarged to fit another size of plate, as suggested in the crochet directions. One set viewed recently on an attractive, informal luncheon table was made of brown mercerized crochet cotton. The tables on which they were placed were dull finished bone white, matching the white china service. Stiffening these mats is not a matter of choice but a necessity, since their beauty is increased hundredfold by their fresh crispness.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the two round luncheon doilies illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Woman Among the Big Contractors of N. Dakota

ONE of the biggest contractors in North Dakota is Mrs. F. Emde Haas of Minot. Her company has 68 miles of road work under contract in North Dakota and she has built 23 federal projects in her state. Mrs. Haas lives in a house on wheels when supervising a job, and supervises as would a male contractor.

Glass Shelves, Well Placed, Will Not Cut Off Breeze

THERE is beauty in a "picture window;" that is, in a window with gleaming glass shelves across it, bearing colorful flowers and plants and trailing vines. But—such shelves do keep out the breezes in summer. And it is quite possible to obtain much of the beauty of this picture in a dining room or sunroom without sacrificing the window panes to achieve it.

There may be room on each side of the windows or on the side wall of the window recess. Glass shelves, spaced some twelve inches apart, can extend to the top of the window frame. Scrap plate glass can be cut to measure for the shelves, and shelf bracket supports used to hold them up.

A window box placed just outside the kitchen window is pleasing to look at and can be useful too. Paint the box some pretty color which will harmonize with the outside wall. You might include in it a bit of rose geranium for your finger bowls, and also chives, tarragon, mint, and lemon verbena.

Silver Thread Runs Through Damask Drapery Material

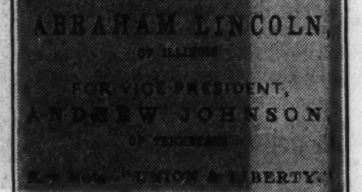
ONE of the handsomest drapery fabrics to appear for a long time is now shown in a Chicago store. It is cotton damask with a rich, satin sheen, its only ornamentation being tiny horizontal stripes of silver thread about two inches apart.

You can get it in solid color light yellow, in a lovely deep blue, in green, in brown and in the new orange tone that is quite bright and might be called Spanish orange. The silver thread adds a beautiful touch to the material. The price is reasonable and the width generous. This is a brand new idea for draperies.

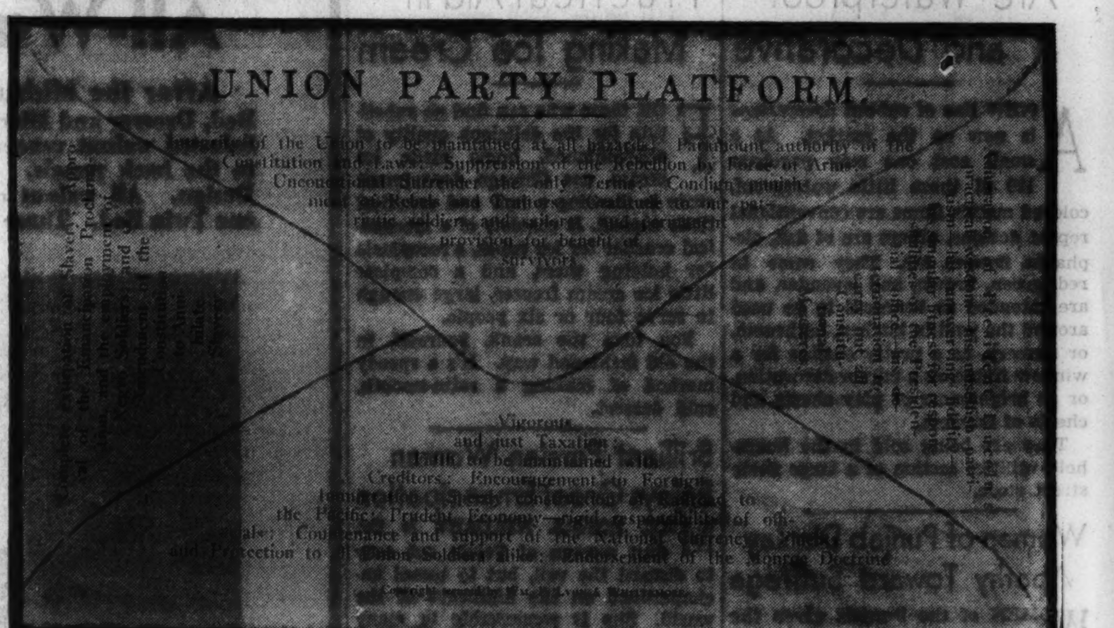
THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions about stamps, except questions concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamp Exchange contains offers to buy and sell. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.



This cover, endorsing Abraham Lincoln for President and Andrew Johnson for Vice President was used from Carrollton to Jerseyville, Ill. It may be of interest to note the actual name of the party as given on the reverse of the envelope, and to read the party platform of 1864.



ENVELOPES, so common today in an endless variety of sizes, shapes, and colors, were practically unknown in this country before 1847 and did not come into much use until about 1851. The usual letter before that time consisted of a doubled sheet of writing paper which was folded and tucked together so that a wafer of gum or wax would seal it effectively.

Shortly after the introduction of the envelope, and perhaps as an aid to its sale, manufacturers and printers made up special covers for almost every need or occasion. Small envelopes with elaborate embossing appealed to the feminine tastes of that day just as they appeal to the collectors of this day.

Standard propaganda envelopes of the day could be had from every stationer. These generally dealt with prohibition, slavery, or cheaper postage rates. Campaign covers came into use in the elections of 1852 and 1856 and were on every hand during the campaigns of 1860 and 1864.

Anti-Slavery Envelopes Were Merged in 1860.

The anti-slavery envelopes of the abolitionists of the early '50s merged in 1860 into the flood of patriotic covers of the civil war. Those used before the actual declaration of war were of course franked with United States stamps even when the sentiments expressed may have been decidedly against the Union.

Advertising covers came into use almost at the same time, and those bearing illustrations are sought by many collectors, as are the envelopes of hotels, colleges, etc.

Of all the campaign envelopes those used in the presidential campaigns of Lincoln are perhaps the most desirable, although they are not as scarce as those of earlier elections. The fact that they are Lincolniana makes them desirable to others who are not stamp and cover collectors. An example of a campaign cover of 1864-'65 is shown in the principal illustration.

Chicago Hobby Show.

Advance information for the Fourth Annual Hobby show at the Sherman hotel, Nov. 5 to 10, has just been released by the director, O. C. Lightner of 2810 South Michigan avenue. Stamps have proven to be such a drawing card that a special room has been taken in addition to the space heretofore needed for the various exhibits.

This additional space will house the stamp dealers' booths as well as the competitive stamp exhibition and will be at the right of the main entrance to the show. In close connection will be coins, firearms, Indian relics, and other exhibits which appeal generally to the men. Collectors desiring to enter frames of stamps in the exhibit should obtain complete information from Mr. Lightner.

Plate Number Lists.

A survey of plate numbers is under preparation by W. A. McIntire, chairman of publicity for the Bureau Issues association. It would seem to the uninitiated that a list of stamp plates printed by the bureau of engraving and printing of the treasury department would be readily obtainable from the bureau or from the postoffice department, but such is not the case. Changes in paper from unwatermarked to watermarked and from one variety of watermark to another, and changes in the gauge of perforations are of vital interest to collectors of United States stamps, but had no influence on the accounting methods of the printers or distributors.

In addition it is not easy to determine from the records whether a certain plate was ever put to press or not, and many plates canceled on account of defects or rendered obsolete by a new issue appear in previous lists of plate numbers. The forthcoming lists will be checked against actual plate number blocks and will be available in serial form. The bureau numbers begin with No. 1, assigned to a 2 cent type I stamp of 1894 and number more than 21,000 today.

Wants a Coolidge Stamp.

The question of a stamp to honor Calvin Coolidge has been raised by Representative Charles A. Plumley of Vermont. In a letter recently addressed to Postmaster General Farley Representative Plumley calls attention to the fact that, of all the now deceased ex-Presidents of the United States who have held office since 1869, only two have been neglected in the matter of stamps, and that both of these, Chester A. Arthur and Calvin Coolidge, were born in Vermont. A resolution was introduced in the house on July 22 looking to the authorization of a stamp for Coolidge.

Figures on Farley Favors.

During a three months' sale which ended on June 15 the philatelic agency of the postoffice department disposed of Farley special printings having a face value of $1,663,717.66. The quantities of each variety sold was almost directly proportional to the face value, the minimum number being 1,351,024 of the 16 cent air mail special delivery stamps and the maximum 3,253,484 3 cent Newburgh stamps. The gross cost to the postoffice department of the issue of approximately 41,000,000 stamps may be roughly estimated at $50 per million.

Convention Date.

The 5th annual convention of the Universal Stamp association will meet at the Inman hotel, Champaign, Ill., during the week-end from Aug. 31 to Sept. 2. The exhibition will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 12 p. m., each day. The program will include talks by Prof. E. G. Young and Dr. L. L. Steimley in addition to a bourse, an auction, and the regular business sessions of the association.

Club Notes.

The North Shore Philatelic society is arranging a special program for the regular meeting at the Sovereign hotel tomorrow evening, Aug. 26, at 8 o'clock. H. L. Lindquist of New York, publisher of Stamps, will be the guest of the meeting, and various local notables, including Mayor Kelly and Postmaster Kruetgen, have indicated a willingness to attend. Local stamp clubs are invited to send representatives in any number desired.

Cachet Notices.

First day of the Illinois state convention of the American Legion will be observed on Aug. 24 by a cachet sponsored by the Americanism committee, Cicero post No. 96, 2724 South Austin boulevard, Cicero, Ill. Send 3 cents postage and 1 cent forwarding charge for each cover with a clearly printed copy of your name and address. The Cicero post will furnish everything else with a limit of three covers. Commemoratives on wrappers appreciated.

The centenary of Blue Island, Ill., will be observed from Sept. 1 to 8, and will be marked by a cachet to be applied by Peter J. McCann, Midlothian, Ill., which will contrast mail carrying methods of 1835 and 1935. Send stamped, self-addressed covers, unstuffed and unsealed, with 1c forwarding charge in loose stamps for each cover.

Year 'Round Modern Home Possesses Charm of Summer Dwelling and Comforts of Winter House

Just completed, this fire-safe modern home has six rooms, two sun decks, built-in garage, laundry, and dressing room-shower for bathers. Its construction is of lightweight concrete blocks, finished with white cement stucco. Architect, Edward F. Behrns, Chicago. Builder, P. H. Lorenz, Peoria, Ill. Approximate cost of house, $8.500, inclusive of gas fired furnace.

The dominating note here is the wide, simple fireplace with recessed book shelves on either side. About the whole house there is a lightness and spaciousness, enhanced largely by the use of pastel colors against light backgrounds. The walls are of light textured cream plaster.

By Louise Bargelt.

● An all year 'round residence, this home has all of the charm of the summer dwelling, together with the construction and conveniences necessary for winter comfort.

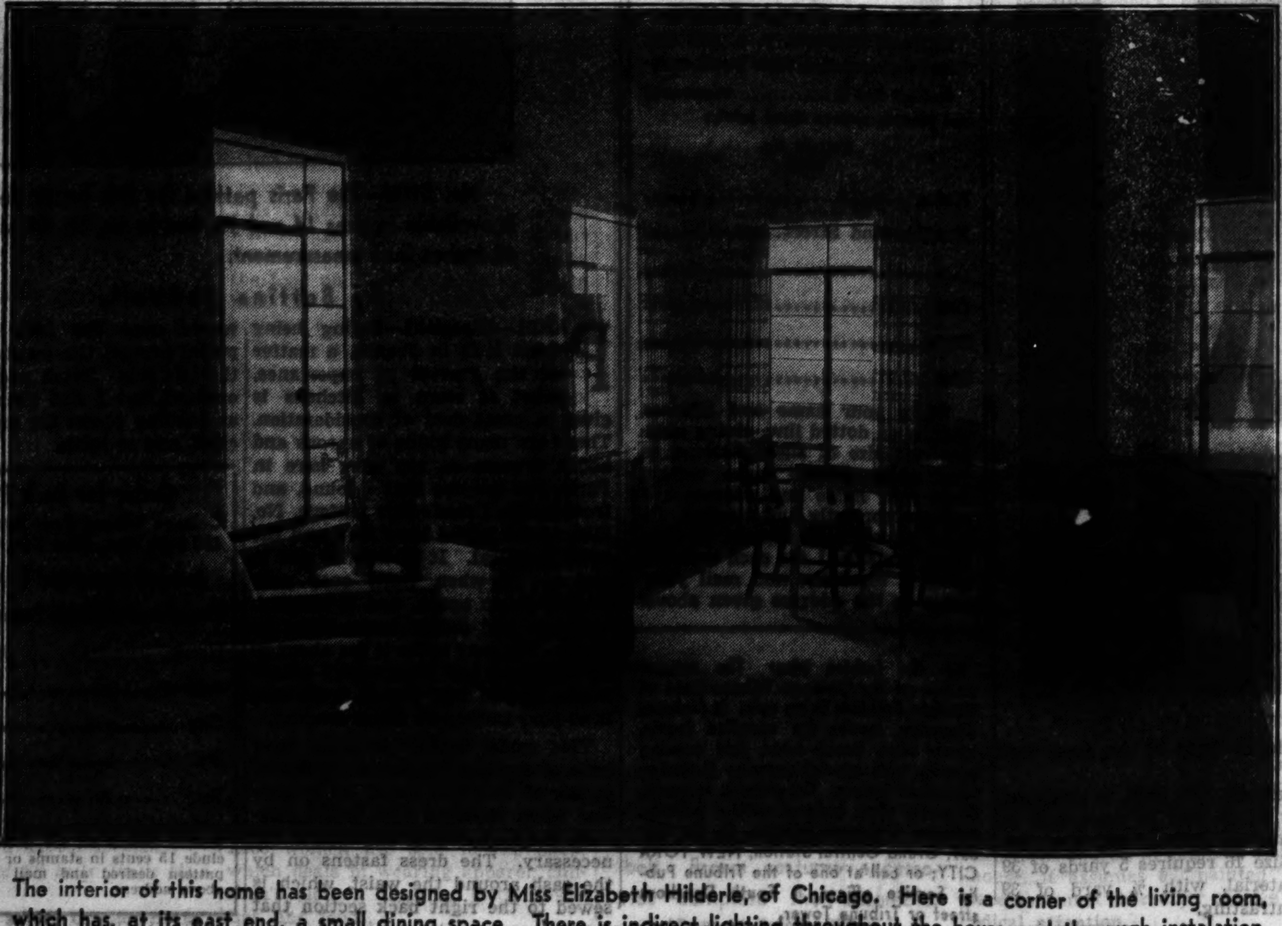
The basement floor plan includes a garage, a shower room and lavatory, a heater room for warm air furnace, gas fueled, and provision for a future recreation room, 13 feet by 26 feet.

The first floor has living room, 13 feet by 26 feet 8 inches; kitchen, 10 feet 8 inches by 12 feet 8 inches; a maid's room, which opens from the kitchen, and with exposure on three sides, would make a handsome dining room, if desired, 11 feet by 17 feet 8 inches; and a bedroom, 11 feet 2 inches by 14 feet 4 inches. A bath separates kitchen and bedroom.

The second floor has two bedrooms, a master bedroom, 11 feet by 14 feet 6 inches, and second bedroom, 11 feet by 14 feet. This master bedroom opens onto a sunny promenade and deck. The second bedroom has a large dressing alcove with generous window provision.

Built to afford large sun areas is this major sundeck overlooking the lake. The second, a smaller one, opens from the master bedroom. The roof is covered with asphalt plank roofing, painted dark green. It is the fashion moderne—to go up to the roof.

The rear of this home suggests the same utmost utilization of space. The floor construction throughout is of precast concrete joists, and two and one-half poured slab, finished with black cement paint. All the interior walls are insulated.



The interior of this home has been designed by Miss Elizabeth Hilderle, of Chicago. Here is a corner of the living room, which has, at its east end, a small dining space. There is indirect lighting throughout the house and thorough instalation.

Rug Patterns Are Modern and Early American

Blues Increasing in Popularity; Greens Chiefly in Lime or Hunter's Hues.

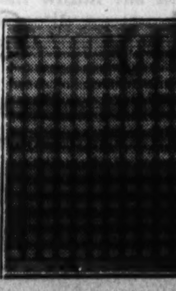
By Claire Winslow.

COLOR, texture, pattern tell the new story of the beautiful rugs and carpets you are going to see in your dealer's store this coming fall and winter. At the recent manufacturers' show held in the Merchandise Mart here early American designs were immensely popular, as were those in soft, easy on the eye modern patterns. Broadlooms, always in favor, are coming out in unusually pleasing tones and here you see those interesting textures that are a high style note. Pebbly weaves, ones that give an effect of pattern because they combine cut and uncut pile, and shadow or high lighting are three of the new trends.

As to colors, all the wood tones [ranging from beige and the light tans through cocoa, walnut, and the reddish browns] are excellent. Blues are increasing.

Greens Still Shown, But They're Blue Greens.

Greens are still being shown, but they are, for the most part, blue-greens, or on the lime order—chartreuse—or a regular hunter's green. There will be some grays of the lovely, pale, pearly sort that make such perfect backgrounds for furniture and draperies. But this color is more popular with decorators than with the large stores.



STUART.

The old henna and rust is happily completely out of the style picture. Instead we welcome the rose family: coral, wood rose, red rose, true rose.

Another company is making fascinating, true reproductions of the famous Scotch clan plaids. Each rug has a story all its own, enhancing its artistic value. Among the tartans represented are those of the following clans: Menzies, Frazer, Ross, Mackintosh, MacLachlan, and Stuart. Their manufacturer stresses the fact that they are not expensive; that they are ideal with early American maple and with simple furniture of other types, and that they are made of high grade wool which has undergone a special, sanitizing process.

FRASER.

Plaids and Checks Displayed in Profusion.

Plaids and checks we saw in profusion. The picture today shows a good looking, reasonably priced bedroom rug that comes in plaids and checks in the following soft colors: two tone tan, two tone walnut, two tone cocoa with random stripe, three tone gray, three tone bisque, two tone blue with darker border, and two tone green with random stripe and darker border. They will be sold at almost every store in Chicago and will have a nation-wide distribution as well.

This same firm is also creating beautiful floor coverings inspired by provincial homespuns of this country, Ireland, and the continent, shown for the first time in its line. Then, too, there are any number of fascinating rugs and carpets that copy authentic patterns and colors of early American hooked rugs, each one with its own quaint legend based on facts.

"Learn About China Before You Buy," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, tells you what to look for when you go shopping, explains the difference between earthenware and porcelain, and gives a little of the history of the most famous wares. It is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

TWO TONE TWILL IN HANDSOME FLOOR COVERING

Your floor covering is a vital part of your room. In this charming bedroom a twill, two tone green rug with a random stripe and darker border is used with charming effect. It comes in a variety of other color combinations, in plaids and checks, and it's most reasonably priced.

Centuries Give Mahogany High Fashion Rating

By Edith Weigle.

MAHOGANY is one of the royal family of furniture woods. It has been used for centuries and because of its beautiful color, its dignity, its strength, its delicate natural patterns, and its fine texture and surface it will be used for hundreds of years to come. Most of us know we like it, but we do not know why, and many of us are unable to tell one variety from another.

There are three localities from which this cabinet wood comes. They are the West Indies [Cuba, Santo Domingo, and Haiti], America [meaning Mexico, Central and South America], and Africa [from the west coast, gold and ivory coasts, and Nigeria]. When you buy a piece of furniture made of mahogany you are entitled to know whether it is West Indian, American, or African mahogany. There is no such thing as Philippine mahogany. Any wood sold under that name is a misnomer, says George N. Lamb, spokesman for the Mahogany Association, Inc., and editor of an excellent little handbook on this fascinating wood.

Cuban and Santo Domingo Mahogany Is Held Best.

Best for the finest furniture are Cuban and Santo Domingan mahogany, though the supply is not too plentiful today. It has a golden brown and sometimes a deep, rich, brownish red tone and is heavier than other types. It takes a beautiful finish.

American mahoganies have a straighter grain and more mellow texture and are found in logs of longer and wider cuttings. They are a rich, golden brown in tone.

African mahogany logs are enormous, sometimes measuring from fourteen to thirty-six feet long and from three to five feet thick. The wood is of a pale, golden brown color and is lighter in weight, with slightly larger pores, than the other types. Also, it is more lavishly figured. Therefore, it furpishes three-fourths of all mahogany veneers.

Do not associate an ugly, dark red tone with mahogany. That comes from a colored stain used in its finish and should be carefully avoided by any one who wants a beautiful piece of furniture in his home. The correct finish is one that brings out the beauty of the natural wood itself, but that does not change the color. Time will do that, deepening it and mellowing it. Man should not attempt to improve on nature here. The simple, hand waxed finish is the desirable one. The high, mirror-like gloss is just as ugly as the red tone. A soft, waxy brown is the ideal mahogany finish.

Mahogany Takes on Beauty with Age.

The older mahogany grows, the more beautiful it becomes. It takes on a patina, or color, that only time and kindly care can create. On the other hand, substitutes that resemble mahogany grow ugly with the passing of time, becoming lifeless in appearance, faded, dull. So it pays to buy the true wood.

So highly was it valued in the golden age of cabinet making, the 18th century, that the greatest craftsmen of all time used mahogany almost exclusively. It was Thomas Chippendale who made it famous. Pieces that remain to us, preserved by the museums, notably the Metropolitan in New York, are even more beautiful today than when they were made, because of the indescribable patina laid lovingly on them by time.

The picture today shows a dining room group made of Cuban mahogany by a well known Grand Rapids company and exhibited at the recent show in that city. It follows the best traditions of Chippendale, achieving great dignity as well as a certain pleasing grace of line. It is available at a Chicago furniture store.

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" a booklet by Edith Weigle answers many often-asked questions on furniture arrangement. It explains several pleasing methods. It is 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby. 5 cents by mail.

SUITE IN DIGNIFIED BEAUTY OF MAHOGANY

This beautiful grouping of dining room furniture is made of Cuban mahogany. Mahogany from the West Indies, Cuba, Santo Domingo, and Haiti, still is considered the finest of the mahogany family. The only other two places from which the true wood comes are America (Mexico, Central, and South) and Africa (west coast, gold and ivory coasts, and Nigeria). This suite is sold in Chicago.

Older Child's Body Control Has Triple Basis

Study Health, Physical Training, and Psychological Conditioning.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

THE "dry baby" (that delight of all mothers) was talked over in great detail, both practically and scientifically (yes, really!), some weeks ago in this column.

But I have a feeling that all that advice left some mothers still up in the air for the reason that their child was much older and still had not learned satisfactory eliminative habits.

This chronic lack of control in the older child we call "enuresis"—which is quite a different matter from the baby's incontinence or the occasional "accident." It is to help mothers whose children have enuresis that we have planned today's article.

Enuresis may be due to one or more of these things:

(a) Your child's physical condition.
(b) Improper physical training.
(c) Improper psychological training.

If enuresis is established the first step is to see that there is no physical condition or disability that is responsible. There may be an organic or functional condition, irritation, or a condition following illness that is the cause. If the doctor crosses off all these possibilities then the next assumption is improper training.

Suppose we list the various possibilities of improper training:

Letting the child get constipated.

Delayed or lax training due to illness of mother or child.

Giving the child highly seasoned food.

Insufficient knowledge or improper management on the part of the parent.

Get Child Accustomed to Feeling of Dry Clothing.

If the trouble is mostly at night the difficulty may be, besides those listed above, any one of the following:

(a) That the child is not wakened sufficiently to know what he is doing when he is put on the toilet. The cure here is obviously to make sure that he is thoroughly awake.

(b) That the child is not changed to dry clothing after a night accident and therefore has no incentive to stay dry, and also he gets used to or becomes insensitive to the sensation of being wet.

(c) That he is not taken up often enough. In this case change the schedule—taking him up either at 9 or 10, or before you retire, and at about 4 o'clock. If you are still unsuccessful you will have to chart his night time wetting and put him on a schedule.

(d) That he is given too much liquid. (Of course this means only while he is being trained to night dryness.) In that case cut out or cut down on liquids between meals and after 4 or 5 o'clock; make his supper hour earlier, eliminate boisterous play after supper, or other excitement (particularly if the child is of a nervous temperament).

(e) That he is too tired at night or there is nervous strain. This lessens control. See that the child does not get too tired, regulate his rest and sleep time, and increase the amount of it. Be sure that there is no undue mental strain.

Apprehension of Mother Is Communicated to Child.

If none of these causes seem responsible then perhaps the trouble is with your child's psychological condition.

Often the difficulty lies in the mother's approach to the habit of enuresis. She becomes apprehensive about this, and the dismay and other unhappy emotions she shows are communicated to the child and he begins to distrust his own power for self-control. This lack of confidence is serious, for it affects phases of his learning of other important things. A cheerful, confident feeling, with no tinge of disapproval, is going to help him most. Sometimes it is well to use a reward as an inducement to help prove to him that he can control himself.

Too Much Excitement Weakens Self-Control.

There are many other factors that may delay control or make learning harder. These things which I am listing below apply particularly to the child of a nervous temperament:

Too much social contact and excitement. Playing in too large a group.

Too little social contact resulting in possible loneliness.

Any schedule that allows too much emotional strain, and so forth. (By that is meant, particularly for older children, too many movies, much music, dancing, athletics, competition in school work, or too heavy a school program.)

Lack of sex education or distorted sex education.

Then there is always that old standby of the negative causes of enuresis, as of other behavior difficulties—the attention that enuresis brings or the ability that its prolongation assures to dominate a situation. When a child sees that he can easily cause excitement and concern and attention by his toileting failures there is less incentive for him to be successful. But remember that these motives are usually unconscious.

For the baby we have a fully written leaflet, "Establishing Good Eliminative Habits." This will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Aug. 26.

Continue cultivating all plants. It is an excellent time to mulch the perennials and flower beds with well decayed manures, to conserve the moisture and protect the surface from the intense heat of the sun's rays. A considerable amount of food is added to the soil by mulching, which stimulates the growth. Flower beds should be well developed by this time. Keep dead leaves picked off and all plants tied up. Sow delphinium seed as soon as it can be obtained. Fresh seed germinates more readily than old seed.

Tuesday, Aug. 27.

Continue to transplant iris. These plants have fine foliage which should not be cut down. If rose bushes are full of rust, spray with Bordeaux mixture. Do not allow hardy phlox to set seed unless it is wanted for sowing. Keep the old, yellow leaves of the water lilies removed. Be sure to buy madonna lily bulbs as soon as possible and plant in a good, deep, well drained soil.

Wednesday, Aug. 28.

Chrysanthemums growing in pots and plunged, should be fed and watered regularly to induce a strong growth. Watch for aphids and spray with a tobacco concoction or dust with pyrethrum. If worm attacks the leaves, spray with arsenate or use hellebore. Start a campaign to plow up vacant lots and sow a cover crop. It will look a great deal better than weeds, and some one will take the crop. House plants that are root bound should be repotted in good soil, if the work was not done in April or May.

Thursday, Aug. 29.

The best way to rid the lawn of weeds is to dig them out. Crab grass is killed by preventing it from going to seed. Keep cutting it down and raking up the clippings. When raking, pull up the stems that lie close to the ground. Quack grass is difficult to eradicate, but it may be killed by using chemicals, but chemicals will kill all vegetation. Sodium chlorate applied at the rate of one pound to a gallon of water and sprinkled over the affected area is one way to do the trick.

Friday, Aug. 30.

Give constant attention to vases, hanging baskets, and window boxes to see that they are supplied with water regularly and that they do not lack food. Follow directions when using plant foods. Do not neglect the shrubbery borders. Give them a shallow spading, or use the hoe to turn over the soil. Make sharp edges around all flower and shrub beds and borders. Keep the entire garden as beautiful as possible.

Saturday, Aug. 31.

Give hedges the final trimming this month. Cut back the ends of tomato plants, and reduce the amount of foliage to permit the light to reach the fruits. Aphids may cause the growing ends of branches and leaves to curl. Frequently, this condition is thought to be caused by blight. Spray to remedy the condition. If blight, use Bordeaux; if aphids, use tobacco juice. Do not allow geraniums that are intended for winter flowering to come into bloom. Pick off all buds. Arsenate of lead will kill grasshoppers. Transplant the bluebell now while it is dormant. Cut back the new, long growths of the wisteria to 4 or 5 feet.

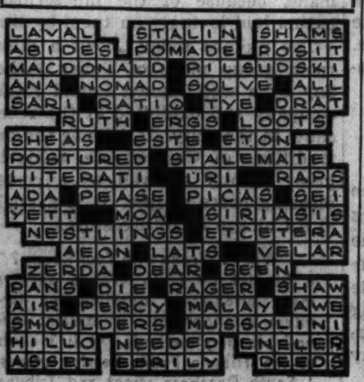
Crossword Answer



Patterns by Clotilde

• In July, women readers of The Tribune ordered 20,790 Clotilde patterns.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

WOMEN who remain in the city, and those who depart elsewhere for life on the campus, will be unanimous in their approval of this smart frock for the first autumn days.

Stitching directs attention to the plaits, from neck to hem, of this wool crêpe dress, the original of which was created in warm red shade. The plaits are released just below the hipline to give smart front fullness to the skirt, which is designed on slim lines. The collar and cuffs are attractively fashioned of white waffle weave silk crêpe and are embellished with tailored bows of the dress material.

The pattern, No. 2518, is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 5 yards of 39 inch material, with ¾ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Any Clothing or Furniture Which Readers May Be Planning to Discard Will Find New Use by Unfortunate Persons Unable to Buy Them for Comfort.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

HERE'S a man who's having a pretty difficult time these days. We'll let him tell his story in his own words:

"Dear Miss Brown: I never have asked for help from any one before, but now I'll have to bury my pride. I've been out of work for 3 years, and my clothes are in rags and can no longer be repaired. I have three sons, who expect to return to school next month, providing I can secure clothing for them. The youngsters, too, have had more than their share of hard luck. My wife is an invalid, and I have been doing odd jobs, anything from washing dishes to repair work.

"Please, could you help me get clothing for myself or the boys? J.S."

Mr. S. lives on the west side of the city, and will be happy to call for anything offered. He neeeds a suit, size 42 or 44, a suit size 38 for his 16 year old son, and one, size 14 or 16, for his 12 year old child.

Mr. R. D. has had many bitter experiences in the last few years, and has appealed to me for aid.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am, or was, an actor, but as there are so few places to act any more, I hesitate to call that a profession. If you can aid me, I wear size 35 or 36. I have had two serious operations this last year, and am now down almost to rags. I will appreciate your help."

From G. H., who also is in need of clothing:

"With a handicap of 80 years, I am making a daily effort to keep out of the bread line by selling razor blades. But, try as I may, I can't get even one single dollar ahead. I have a grateful remembrance of a year ago, when you so kindly aided me to obtain a much needed suit of clothes. My present predicament is that I'm sweltering with winterweight underwear, and with but one shirt left. You may imagine how welcome a few things would be. If you could aid me once again, I would appreciate it ever so much. My shirt size is 14½ and the union suit size 38."

Mr. H. is not on relief and has no relatives to assist him.

Great Britain Sends Exhibit of Chinaware

WHEN 27 leading British artists put their heads together and design chinaware you just know something smart and different is going to result. And that is just what happened. Two prominent pottery companies, E. Brain & Co., making Foley china, and A. J. Wilkinson, making Royal Staffordshire pottery, have produced ceramics from colored sketches submitted by Dame Laura Knight, noted etcher; Paul Nash, Frank Brangwyn, Duncan Grant, Dod Procter, Graham Sutherland and many others.

The first ware turned out, "first editions," as it were, and each piece signed by the artist, is now on exhibition in the chinaware department of a large Chicago store. This store will carry in stock many of the items, so that Chicagoans may purchase them for their own homes. Dinner sets, breakfast and luncheon and tea services, they are available in enchanting colors and at most reasonable prices.

Some Examples Frankly Modern, Others Strictly Traditional.

Some are frankly modern, severely plain and chaste. Others are in traditional china feeling, while still others are in a class by themselves, full of personality, vivid, and amusing. There is, for instance, the entertaining dinner set done by Laura Knight, known for her black and white etchings of dancers and circus performers. On each plate she has placed characters from the big top: a man in tail coat rehersing a big white bear with a pink ribbon around its neck; a lady in tights making a horse sit up; seals doing their stunts, while around the edges of the plates one sees hundreds of blank, staring faces—the spectators. The tea pot of this set has as its handle a female acrobat in tights, bending over backward. A clown pops up on the cover.

Frank Brangwyn has done a gorgeous decorative plaque, a jungle scene with a parade of turbaned children, huge, swooping branches of tropical trees, birds, etc. One artist has simply dashed off a few funny fish on his plates, so comical they bring a smile.

Another, in more dignified mood, has created a delectable tea set in pale sea green and silver, enchanting. There are powder blues, pale yellows, greens and many other tones from which to choose. Some of the ware is bone china, while some sets are in inexpensive pottery and earthenware.

All are done in that free, spontaneous spirit with which artists seem always to be gifted. None is in the least hampered by the rules of ceramic-making, each taking the rules and making them serve his own purpose. This whole exhibition comes direct from London and is well worth seeing.

IN CLASSIC MODE

Pure white, with a fluted lower section, is this stunning new utility chest. It is lined with cedar and may be used in bedroom, hall, or sunroom. Seen at the Merchandise Mart, it may be ordered through your dealer.

Paris Pattern Frock Designed for Chic on Kitchen Occasion

No. 5100—The Paris pattern for this house dress is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Eating being what it is in France, a matter of the gravest of importance, what is worn in kitchens is given a great deal of consideration. There are many kinds of aprons and house dresses on tap over here in Paris, but the one that I found, and from which I made this pattern, No. 5100, is the best I have seen and the most practical. It is easy to get in and out of, when worn over your dresses as an apron, and it makes a complete and dainty house dress by itself. You may make it for about 30 cents if you buy inexpensive cotton fabric, or you may put as much into it as your purse and fancy demand.

This model usually is made, over here, of checkered gingham, of dotted calico, or of white linen. It is prettier when trimmed with white rickrack braid, as shown, but that is not necessary. The dress fastens on by the sash around the waist, which is sewed to the right back section that wraps over the left. It is then pulled around the waist and tied on the left side. Patch pockets may be omitted, but I find them invaluable as parking places for one's handkerchief, and so forth.

Mail Supplies Various Topics About Etiquet

Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your letter.

By Helen Bartlett.

OUT of the mail bag!

Miss M. H., who is planning a September wedding, sends us this question. "When the church has no center aile, but rather two ailes, one on the right and one on the left, how does the wedding party approach the altar?"

The processional walks to the altar down the right aile [facing the altar of the church] and leaves the church from the left aile. In a church of this arrangement the seating of the principal guests varies a little from the ordinary custom. The bride's relatives are seated on both sides of the right aile, with her parents and immediate family in the first two pews on the left side of the right aile. The bridegroom's relatives are ushered to the seats on both sides of the left aile, his parents and immediate family in the first two pews at the right side of the left aile.

Engraving Only Suitable Choice for Invitation to Formal Wedding.

"Would it be correct to have the invitations to a formal church wedding hand printed by an experienced artist? If so, would Old English Tudor type be correct?"

Hand printed invitations would not be at all suitable. Hand engraving is the best choice. Or if this is not possible, machine engraving is the only other possibility. In any case, the choice of type is optional. At the moment simple types are more fashionable than the ornate varieties.

"What fee should be given to a clergyman for a wedding ceremony?"

That is something about which it is quite impossible for us to advise you. The amount would depend on the degree of acquaintance with the minister, the degree of elaboration of the ceremony, and on local custom. In fashionable churches the fee naturally is larger than it would be in less pretentious ones.

Condolence Acknowledgement Needed for Use by Entire Family.

Mrs. J. K. writes: "Our father died recently. There are only the children left to acknowledge the condolences and sympathies of friends. Should these notes or engraved cards be signed 'The Brown Family,' or should each of the children append his signature?"

When several members of a family are sending out condolence acknowledgments, a card that does not require a signature should be selected. Such a card is worded like this:

The members of the family of Mrs. John Howard acknowledge with grateful appreciation your kind expression of sympathy.

MIDNIGHT BLACK FOR WINTER SMARTNESS

One of the stunning sleek black caracul coats featured during the August fur sales. The roll-over collar is slenderizing. The full, flared skirt is held in at the waistline with a wide black suede belt. Black suede gloves and one of the new fall handbags of black antelope are accessories.

Sally Closes Party Season with Regrets

Lists Names of Children Who Will Attend the Last Event, August 29.

By Sally Joy Brown.

WELL, boys and girls, summer is almost over and school books, homework, and report cards are looming up in the near future, so we'll have to put an end to our good times for this year.

We've had lots of fun and many jolly trips together all summer long, but all good things must end, and so must the party season. Get back to your old routine now, and do your best to be good children until next year. It's been pleasant to meet so many of you youngsters, and to have been able to provide entertainment for you. I'm sure you'll all get high marks in English composition if your school compositions are as good as most of your letters to me. I particularly liked receiving the many "thank you" notes you've sent me after attending one of my parties, and you may be sure I'm going to keep every last one of them.

Here are the names of the fortunate fifties who've been chosen as my guests at our farewell party, which is to take place at the Stevens hotel next Thursday, Aug. 29. If you can find your name listed here, you'll receive a personal invitation from me by mail within the next day or so. Please notify me immediately if your address is printed incorrectly.

INCONSPICUOUS LAUNDRY AID

This laundry rack is destined to save dispositions as well as space. It will hide itself when not in use, but unfolded and opened up it is equivalent to 18 feet of line. Portable, it may be hooked easily on doors, windows, shower rails, or may be put up on any wall space with picture hooks. It may be hung in any room without damaging fine surfaces, for it is of rustproof and stainless wire.

Transfer Fluid Makes Newspaper Pictures Like Prints

BY the use of a small bottle of transfer fluid newspaper pictures can be made to look like old-fashioned decalcomania prints. All the favorite characters of the colored comics may be transferred onto wood, cloth fabrics, lethere, oilcloth or cardboard. Jimmie may have his favorite funny page character on his lampshade or the wall panels of his room, and little Alice may have Winnie Winkle or Little Orphan Annie depicted upon her pillow tops, her small chair, desk, or table.

Pictures are cut from newspapers or other porous paper without a gloss. They are then placed upon a slightly padded surface and the material to be transferred face to face with the picture and covered with any heavy paper. Full directions are given on the bottle of fluid. Attractive black and white prints may be applied to cardboard. When tinted with crayons they make pleasing designs suitable for place cards, etc. Anyone with a little ingenuity, an artistic touch, a few newspaper prints, and a bottle of this transfer fluid can produce clever results with little effort.

Dresden China Used in Exquisite Set for Dressing Table

IN all the traditional beauty of Dresden china is a lovely set suitable for a boudoir desk or dressing table. An attractive bowl suitable for powder, jewelry, or nuts and candy has rather large roses in the shade of that flower embossed on the cover. The same blossoms decorate a tray, and one full blown flower is sufficient unto itself as a figure to repose on the finest linen or lace of milady's dressing table. Two colonial figurines in Dresden china also accompany these delicate articles.

Little Sister

By Eleanor Jewett.

Brother and I go looking for berries,
Down the long road we go over the hill.
"This is a berry," says Brother, and picks it,
"It won't take us long now our pails to fill."

The hot summer afternoon runs away swiftly
And Brother and I pick terribly fast.
But the pails are quite empty. What can be the matter?
We've picked all the berries that we have gone past.

Brother's round face is full of explaining.
"We OUGHT to eat SOME," he points out to me.
"Because we're the ones picking."
But should we eat so many?
We can't eat and fill pails that's plain to see!

Pressure Cooker Simplifies Problem of Summer Meals

WHEN hot, sweltering summer days arrive housewives dread the many hours spent in the kitchen preparing meals. If an improved pressure cooker is installed they will find the problem enormously simplified. This device is made to operate perfectly with an accurate pressure gauge and a combination petcock and safety valve. A complete meal consisting of meat and two vegetables may be thoroughly cooked in it from twelve to forty minutes. The toughest roast or fowl will become tender and palatable, whether gas, electricity, oil, or wood is used, as the fire is turned low and the food cooked under intense steam pressure.

Remember way back when fireless cookers took housewives by storm? This invention to save fuel cooked well enough after it was started, but much time was required to prepare the food on the top of the stove, to heat the stone disc to place in the bottom of the box, etc.

These new pressure cookers easily pay for themselves before a season is over by the small amount of fuel they consume and by the fact that they allow the use of inexpensive cuts of meat with delectable results. The pressure cooker is splendid for canning fruits and vegetables. It is the last word in modern cooking methods.

New York Exchange for Women's Work 57 Yrs. Old

THE New York Exchange for Women's Work is 57 years old. It was founded in 1878 by the late Mrs. William G. Choate to enable "gentlewomen in reduced circumstances" to earn a living by disposing of their handiwork through a retail shop. Articles made by more than 1,000 women are sold in the shop, which deals in wearing apparel, children's clothes, lingerie, gifts, novelties, and foods.

Thirty-One Widows of New York Form a Club

THIRTY-ONE widows of Cortland, Dryden, Virgil, McGraw, and Homer, N. Y., have organized the "Merry Widow club."

TENPENNY NAILS

Lemon yellow pique trimmed with cocoa brown pique creates this sports dress. Tenpenny chromiumized are used for decorative effect on the blouse and belt. Brown costume accessories complete the ensemble.

Paris Fashions Go to Extremes for Smart Effects

THE showing of midseason fashions in the salons of Lusille Paray, famous French designer, indicates that unusual clothes are the order of the day. Gowns reminiscent of the stage and screen, extreme and daring, are no longer the exception, but the rule. Pastel shades are back for the summer season—and paler than pastel, too. One frock of ice blue satin, for the tall and slender, might well have been designed for one of Hollywood's chosen. It is beltless [which is a charcteristic Paray feature], tightly fitted at the waist, and has a double peplum of the material covering the hips and the front. The back centers its interest in added fullness, which sweeps to the floor in a demitrain. At the throat skilful knotting and twisting give the high and full effect.

Paray gowns are often beltless, molded to the form, or have belts set into the model. Whenever there ere belts however, they are spectacular. Some are scalloped lether, vividly painted with bright flowers or intricate, formal designs. Skirt fullness again begins at the waistline, and there is always fullness at the neck, introduced in a variety of ways. Shirring, intricate tucking, and double folds of the material are favorites.

Cold Water Wash Coating Enlivens Old Stucco House

FOR an old stucco house which is showing signs of drabness or, perhaps, even rust stains and other discolorations, try giving it a coat of cold water wash or oil paint. This will change its face entirely. Of course, in painting a stucco house, it assumes a "painted" surface and must thereafter receive periodical attention.

They're Off—in Race for Air Supremacy

By WAYNE THOMIS

EXPANSION of the fighting air fleets of the United States, begun during the last twelve months, has its parallel in virtually every European nation. The armament race has shifted, apparently, from the seas to the air.

To some extent the constant and swift technical progress made in aviation has been responsible for this demand by governments and peoples for more and better fighting airplanes. Mainly, however, the conviction that the air forces of potential enemy nations have an overwhelming numerical and performance margin is responsible for the rush of orders to designers and manufacturers.

These fears have led to numerous attempts to compare air strengths. Despite the impossibility of obtaining authoritative information which would make possible accurate weighing of the air forces, every one of the major countries of Europe —England, France, Germany, Italy, and Russia— has set up its own statistics. It is indeed difficult to separate the real information from the mass of propaganda each country has prepared for "official" release.

Air Power of Any Nation Can Be Expressed in a Dozen Different Ways

Without some definition and explanation of the types of airplanes compared, and their relative parts in air warfare, none of the accompanying tables means anything. The air power of any nation can be expressed in a dozen different ways, and consequently a common denominator must be reached in every case.

Probably the best and most accurate comparison is that of so-called "first-line" strength. This, in military understanding of the term, describes the fighting aircraft which would be available for war use on twenty-four hours' notice. These first-line planes are the service units flown by the country's specially trained airmen who are on active duty with the air corps.

To indicate the other possible bases of comparison, the air strength also could be considered as the first-line planes plus the reserve squadrons. Or it might be considered as the total of these two plus the number of planes in training centers or at testing fields. Still another basis would be the total of these aforementioned planes plus stock aircraft held to replace ships destroyed or worn out on active service.

The possibilities indicate the reasons for the wide variance in the estimated power of the seven great nations of the world as shown in the accompanying tabulations.

German Sources Place Russia at Top of List with 3,170 Planes

In only one instance can the basis of the statistics here be definitly stated. That is in the case of one of the accompanying graphs. The figures included therein are either all official announcements or accurate estimates of first-line fighting strengths.

The basis for another of the graphs, that supplied by the United States Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, is unknown. So are those of the tabulations made from other sources herewith listed.

From official German publications came early last spring a statement which listed France as possessor of 2,061 machines; England, 1,069; Italy, 1,053; Japan, 2,050; Russia, 3,170, and the United States, 3,158. Germany was not mentioned. An English parliamentary document of June, 1934, listed French air strength at 1,665 machines, English at 1,550, and Italian at 1,189.

Fred Stone, Stage Leader for 32 Years, in Film Debut

First Role Is Hepburn's Poor Dad in Movie of Tarkington Novel.

By Charles Collins.

AN interval in my last week's research of the history of Will Rogers found me toddling over to the Palace theater to pay a call of condolence on Fred Stone, his ancient friend and companion spirit. Of course Fred wasn't there in person, only in shadow, but we ex-playgoers of Chicago have to pretend, like the chronic movie patrons, that these shows are real. We quickly fall into the habit of saying that So-and-So is "appearing" on the screen when we know that the actual person is at that moment several thousand miles away.

I went to see Fred, or his cinematic phantasm, not only because of his spirtual brotherhood with Rogers, but also because this film—"Alice Adams"—marks his debut in the far flung, all pervasive movies. The industry took its own sweet time in catching up with this famous personality of the legitimate theater, for he has just passed his 62d birthday and has been a star for thirty-two years.

Hepburn as a Tarkington Girl.

Additional reasons for attendance upon "Alice Adams" were Katharine Hepburn, my favorite film actress, and Booth Tarkington, the novelist who wrote the story upon which this scenario was based in 1921. Tarkington's Alice was a notable addition to the gallery of American character in fiction, and Miss Hepburn is a happy choice for her impersonator. Therefore my visit was not altogether in the depressed mood of condolence; it had decidedly happy aspects whenever Miss Hepburn, as "pushing" Alice, the poor white collar family's pretty daughter, was in view, which was almost constantly.

Stone's rôle is Alice's futile father, a tragi-comic figure of middle class failure in life, nagged by his wife because he has not been as much of a money-getter as the men whose careers began like his, and harassed by a sense of his own inadequacy. He represents the average American pater familias who hasn't succeeded in becoming a Babbitt and is extremely sensitive about his inability to fulfill the national ideal. Although a type, Stone makes feeble, whimpering Mr. Adams a definite and strange personality with a cautious and reserved appeal to the emotions which is exactly in the Tarkington mood. He also, following his musical comedy method, which always contained suggestions of the white faced clown, makes the troubled old fellow almost a half-wit at times.

Stone Wins His Movie Spurs.

Stone proves his value to the movies in "Alice Adams." I do not believe that he will become Will Rogers' successor as my chief cinema adviser [aged 20] proclaims—that dream is too good to come true. He is not as comic as Rogers, and his mask is not the kind of face that charms the camera's eye. Moreover, he is too well advanced in years to establish a great film tradition. But he will give honorable service to this new medium of expression, particularly if cast, not as dull minded old fogies like Mr. Adams, but as sly, crafty codgers who hide their shrewd tricks behind an external dumbness.

The stage direction of "Alice Adams" conveys hints of the Indianapolis environment in which Tarkington specializes without submitting proof that its street scenes were photographed in that city. The influence of a summer heat wave upon Alice's destiny—the dinner party scene—is suggested almost as tellingly as in the original novel.

Do You Remember "The Red Mill"?

The ending is happy—Alice wins the young aristocrat whom she nearly lost because of her family's lack of the social graces and her own deceptions—and I can forgive this departure from Tarkington's text. I have always felt that Tarkington "bore down" too heavily upon his heroine, and I am glad to see the big hearted movies giving the handicapped girl a democratic "break."

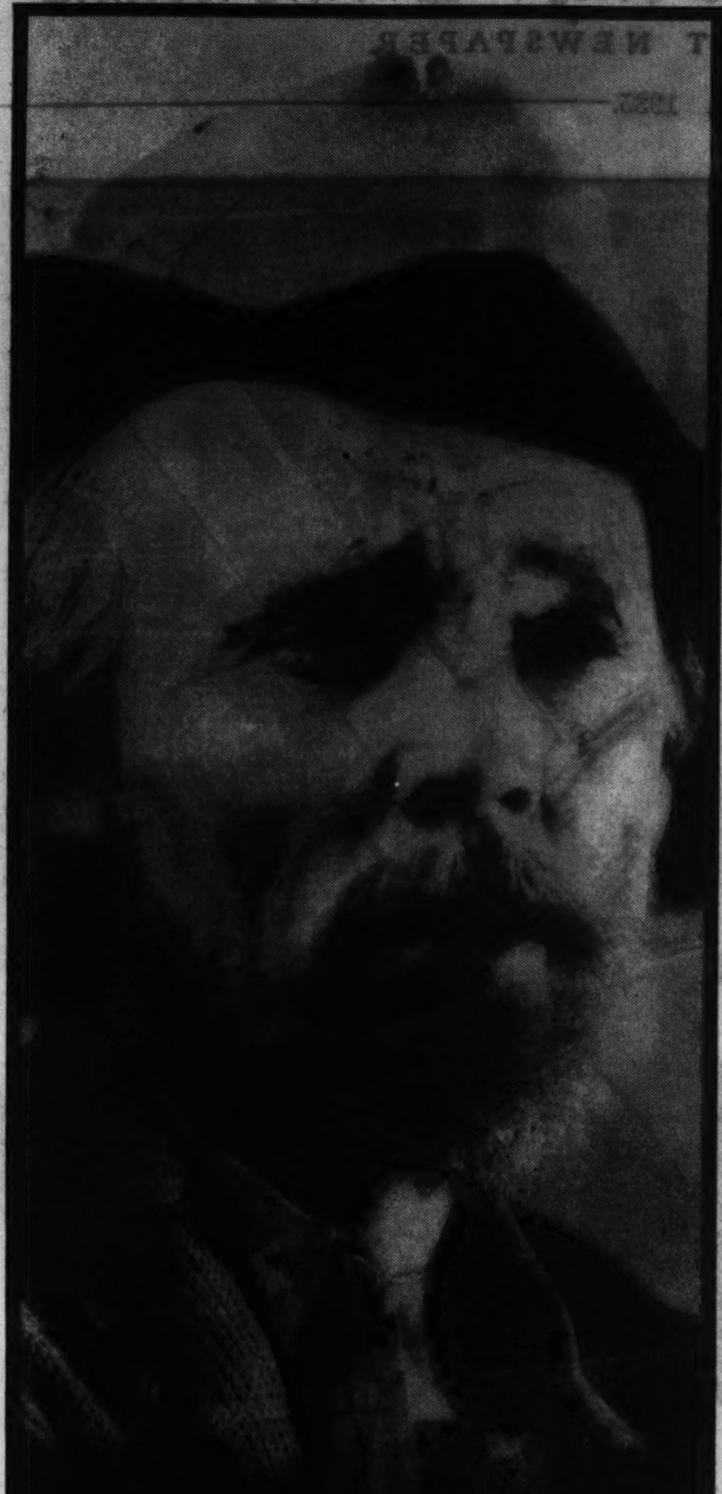
"TOBACCO ROAD" STAR IN CHARACTER



Henry Hull's acting in "Tobacco Road" has caused him to be one of the most talked of players of the year. He will be seen in his memorable characterization of Jeeter Lester, a Georgia backwoods scalawag, at the Selwyn theater, Chicago, in an engagement which will begin on Labor day.

Chez Paree to Reopen with Bernie's Band

BEN BERNIE, Chicago's favorite master of ceremonies and band director, will return as star of the show which will open the re-decorated Chez Paree on Thursday, Sept. 12. The leading woman of the floor show will be Gertrude Niesen, a supper club star from New York, making her Chicago café debut. She sings "torch" songs and folk songs.

A team of dancers new to Chicago will also be featured. They are Jack Holland and June Hart, who spent a season in Paris and several months at the Rainbow Room in New York. Dixie Dunbar, song and dance girl of "Life Begins at 8:40," will be among the many other players. Ben Bernie's engagement will be limited to a few weeks.

● The Walnut Room of the Bismarck hotel has again begun to rotate its eight floorshows in the "Carnival of Gypsy" series. These elaborate programs have been created by George Nelidoff during the last several months, featuring the songs and dances of many countries. Chita Chavez, Lenore Felden and Walter Kamryn are featured dancers in the troupe of entertainers. Leonard Keller and his orchestra continues to supply music for the shows and for dancing. A jubilee bill, celebrating the completion of a six months run by Nelidoff and Keller, has been set for Friday evening, Sept. 6.

● Alvino Rey, guitarist with Horace Heidt and orchestra in the Silver Forest Room of the Drake hotel is constantly adding to his répertoire of numbers. This week he will feature "Song of the Islands," "Learn to Speak Hawaiian" and other South Sea numbers.

Yvonne King, pretty 16 year old singer, is the latest addition to the King Sisters. She replaced Maxine, who got married.

● Benny Fields begins the second week of his two weeks stay at Al Mann's New Vanity Fair tomorrow night. Leslie, Ayres and Gold, comedians, have new songs and stories to their act. Corrine, formerly of the French Casino shows, gives her "golden apple" dance.

Two other dance features are included in the Lucille Ballantine and Paul Pierce ballroom team and Darlene Walders, acrobatic dancer.

● Trudye Davidson, dancer, is making a weekly change in her program with the ballet known as the Texas Debutantes at Harry's New York cabaret. "Jungle Drums," is her latest dance interpretation. Lavin and Owitz, who give a skit imitating and burlesquing radio stars, were winners of the amatuer contest. Freddy Marcus, of ceremonies; Phil Bernard, comedian; Harry Harris, Al Wagner, Edna Leonard, Art Buckley, and Billy Meyers continue in the floor show.

● Ted Flo-Rito's orchestra will continue at the Beach Walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel for two more weeks. This troupe of thirty-two entertainers contains the dance team of Shayne and Adams.

● The Jaros Sisters have returned to the Mural Room and the Crystal Bar of the Brevoort hotel. Allen Kane and his orchestra continue to play for dancing.

Finds Grand Canyon and Boulder Dam Reduced to Insignificance.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—I had been cheated out of a view of the Grand Canyon and Boulder dam from the air on my flying trip to California because the weather went bad, delaying the schedule and sending us scooting over the Arizona and New Mexico desert at night.

Coming home I was particular to book my flight by the canyon route. The experience was quite worth the effort, but the reaction was a little startling. This fine, pretty world does look so different from a grand stand a mile in the air.

Knowing how puny the works of man can appear from an airship. I still approached the Boulder dam with a conviction of its immensity first in mind. Surely, I reasoned, any barrier huge enough and strong enough to hold back a ninety mile lake would be a little bit bigger than anything else I had ever seen from any angle. My rotogravure researches had led me to expect that much.

And yet, as I looked down upon it, the Boulder dam was no more than a wedge shaped parenthesis some fifty feet across a cleft in a minor arroyo. And the lake that stretched back from it was an elongated puddle in the middle of such a barren world that it seemed likely to be soaked up with a week of steady sunlight. But that lake is not yet filled. Probably no more than half filled.

Grand Canyon Region Looks Like Cosmic Postcard.

The Grand Canyon itself was not a disappointment, save in the sense that in place of one tremendous gash in the white earth beneath there are dozens of them. Before the co-pilot's warning I had picked out at least a half dozen grand canyons and called the attention of the young lady in the seat ahead to them, being fearful she might miss a thrill. She had been lying back and not looking any too happy.

After the fourth time I disturbed her she smiled sweetly and allowed that as this was her third flying trip across the continent she knew about the canyon. As soon as we reached it, she said, she would tell me.

She was right. When we did come upon it the fact that it was bordered by one of those tape-like roads of concrete that cross the west set it apart from the other canyons. This part of the desert is threaded with a network of canyons and gorges, little ravines and large ravines. They are all in the same striking red sandstone patterns as the major cut. Spread out for miles, they look as much like a cosmic postcard as anything else, with softer coloring than the lithographers can deliver. The gentleman in back insisted that it reminded him of the illuminated intestines of the robot at A Century of Progress. I could do nothing about that, seeing he was a stranger and really trying to be friendly.

We were across the desert and into Albuquerque in a little over four hours' flying time, which endeared me still further to the plane. I have spent several miserably hot days and nights crossing that seven hundred odd miles of sand and sagebrush. Even when they told us we would have to wait in Albuquerque until we had a weather clearance for the hop to Amarillo I was not disturbed. Better a few hours' delay here than to be shut up in a train in the desert, even though it were air-conditioned.

We hung around the airport for the better part of an hour and then got our clearance and went on. But not for long. We had no more than made a range of hills perhaps twenty miles away than the black clouds into which we were flying began to gather around us in much too familiar a greeting. The pilot, with new orders by radio phone, or proceeding on his own judgment, wheeled about and went flying back for the airport we had just left. We were there not more than ten minutes when the storm broke. Buckets and buckets of rain. We probably could have ridden through it, but I doubt if it would have been much fun.

We could not go on now until after the storm had cleared. I did not care much. We were over the desert anyway, and this was all a part of the adventure. Those solicitous TWA boys herded the twelve of us together and took us to the Franciscan hotel in town. There we were assigned rooms and told we would be paged when the flight was to be resumed, probably early in the evening.

Aviation Breeds Spontaneous but Formal Camaraderie.

Apparently there is a new sort of camaraderie being advanced by aviation. It is at once more spontaneous and more formal than that growing out of either a sea voyage or a long train trip. More spontaneous, I suspect, because there is still lurking a feeling that flying is a bit more hazardous than other means of transportation. This inspires a quicker interest in those sharing the hazard with you. More formal because whatever the distance you may be traveling the time is sure to be short, and you are not inclined either to seek or to encourage quick friendships.

We were four when we finally got to the café in the Franciscan and decided to try a New Mexican aperitif before dinner. One was a Mr. Bochen, who owns a coffee plantation in Costa Rica and was flying all the way home by way of Kansas City, New York, Miami, and Porto Rico. Two were the Belnaps of Detroit, he one of Mr. Ford's legal alumni and she, at the moment, the somewhat anxious mother of a son she had hoped to surprise on his birthday, which was next day—a thrill that she now seemed likely to miss. We had a splendid dinner and a pleasant visit. And before I knew it the page boys were after me. . . . We were off the ground by 11; in Kansas City early next morning, and in Chicago by 10. . . . A week-end in Highland Park; a dip in good old Lake Michigan; a luncheon at the Drake at 2 on Monday. . . . Into a plane again at 3:15 and in Newark a little after dark, four and a half hours later. Thus endeth the saga.

I find, on my return to this village, that there are a good many preparations for a new theater season, and a good deal of optimistic prophecy as to what the season is going to offer. But up to now not much of it offered in evidence.

The only new attraction that has appeared since I left town a month ago is a revival of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and to call that new is stretching the truth pretty freely.

SINGER WITH BAND AT PALACE

Maxine Gray is featured vocalist with Hal Kemp's orchestra, now the chief item of stage entertainment at the Palace theater. She is proof of the fact that the singing girls with the jazz bands are as pretty as actresses.

Letters on the Life of Will Rogers

To the dramatic editor:

BY radio from the yacht, Mizpah, in Canadian waters: Here in the Canadian wilderness I have just finished reading the first instalment of your Will Rogers story.

In the spring of 1925, when I was organizing the MacMillan-National Geographical Arctic Expedition, for which President Coolidge had loaned us three navy aeroplanes, which I took north on my S. S. Peary to within 11 degrees of the pole, I approached Will Rogers, with Commander MacMillan's permission. I suggested to Rogers that he accompany the expedition as our guest and radio back to civilization each day the Will Rogers' slant of Eskimo and arctic life.

Rogers' first comment was: "Did one of my comedians prompt you to suggest this to me to get me out of the way?" Rogers said he would think it over, but did not give me much encouragement.

The next day I discussed the subject with the National Geographical society, who strenuously objected to Rogers going with us, because the president of the National Geographic said this was a scientific expedition and Rogers' story might ridicule it. I saw Rogers the following day. He told me he had talked the matter over with Mrs. Rogers and that she had said he needed a vacation and why not go.

Rogers said there was nothing he would like to do better than rope a polar bear. I did not want to hurt him by telling him of the National Geographic's decision, so I told him I only had one stateroom left; that the navy was insisting that I take a physician along. Rogers was so anxious to go on this expedition into the arctic that he offered to sleep in a sleeping bag on the deck if I had no spare stateroom.

He never knew the real reason why Commander MacMillan and I were prevented from taking him.

E. F. McDonald Jr.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—I will bet you $100 cash that Will Rogers played in the "Follies" in Chicago in January, 1917, and prove it by files of The Tribune.

J. B. Okie.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—On the night of Jan. 31, 1919, I sat in the left-hand front box at the "Follies." Will Rogers did his usual rope tricks, chewing gum all the time. When he started to sing a "Rose" song to Miss Richards he came over to our box and deposited his "wad" of gum on the side of the box. I brought this piece of gum home with me, and still have it in the envelope I put it in that night.

I always intended writing and telling him about it. In fact, when I read in the papers about him taking this trip with Wiley Post, I decided I would write him then, but did not do it. I thought he would get a "kick" about a piece of gum he had chewed so long ago.

New Records Give Chamber Music at Best

Mozart, Beethoven Exquisitely Played by Famed String Quartets.

By Edward Moore.

As sometimes happens in the examination of recordings, several sets of chamber music of high degree have arrived almost together. Wherefore this would seem a good time to gather around and examine them.

One is Columbia's Masterworks series No. 219, wherein Jacques Gordon and his string quartet play the Mozart Quartet in C major, the piece which in the Koechel catalogue, the most reliable guide we have to the order in which Mozart wrote his compositions, takes number 465. Chicagoans will remember the Gordon quartet of a few years ago. Easterners know it now. It is one of the first class organizations of the country, and it is at its best in this Mozart work.

Strange Interpolation in Quartet in C Major.

By a curious error of paging, there is an interpolation in the recording. The timing of the piece leaves the record makers with one side left vacant, but instead of following the custom and adding the extra music at the end of the main piece, it is placed between the third and fourth movements. It is the minuet and rondo from another quartet in G minor by the same composer, Koechel 80, in other words coming from a much earlier date in Mozart's career, but it is another example of lovely playing by the Gordons.

Just about the time you decide that this is ideal Mozart playing, you pick up for records from Victor, 8712 to 8715 inclusive, and find another beautiful example. It is the quintet, also in the key of C major, Koechel 515, played by the Pro Arte quartet with the addition of Alfred Hobday, second viola, and recorded in Europe. For both the Gordon and the Pro Arte organizations play Mozart's music for strings in the same manner that Claire Dux and John McCormack sing his songs, with supreme devotion to melody, to legato, to exquisite phrasing, and with an unfailing idea of cheeriness as the note of interpretation. The C major quintet is considerably more complex in structure than the C major quartet.

Flonzaleys at Best in Beethoven Quartet.

Yet another chamber music recording makes its plea for attention. Here is Victor's album, M-153, containing the Beethoven Twelfth Quartet in E flat, opus 127, and played by no less an organization than the Flonzaley quartet. True, the Flonzaleys have disbanded, but they have made this record, a great one, and there is no telling whether they made it while they were still together or whether they returned for recording purposes. They are at the top of their golden playing, and the disks are first class examples of modern recording, so you can take your choice.

Another vacant side leaves a place for the scherzo from the earlier B flat quartet, opus 18, No. 6, but this time it comes where it should, after the main piece is finished.

Sometimes one is inclined to believe that the recording companies do their best service in chamber music. Strings record just about the best of all instruments, and the four or five lines of melody which make up the chamber music compositions never become so thick as to cloud the records, as sometimes happens in the more complex music for full orchestra. At any rate, whether you favor the sunny utterances of Mozart or the ponderings of Beethoven in the period when he was giving out his mightiest music a short time before his death, you will have some records that are worth acquiring and preserving.

Music Notes

The Chicago South Side Woman's chorus, directed by Charles Rousseau, Chicago conservatory, and whose president is Lucille Wheeler Moore, 1533 East 66th place, sends word of a prize of $100 offered for a composition written in three parts for its own use. An accompaniment for piano and small string orchestra is desired, and the suggestion is made that the poem, "Spring Journey," by Elvir Winter Gilmore, be used as the text.

The Chicago conservatory, Chicago's oldest music school, is marking its seventieth anniversary by moving to larger quarters in the Kimball building. A little theater on the seventeenth floor, with stage equipment and a seating capacity of two hundred, will be ready Oct. 15 for the drama department and for recitals. A radio department with broadcasting facilities will have its own suite on the tenth floor.

"STEAMBOAT 'ROUND THE BEND"

Before you is the beloved Will Rogers in a scene from one of his last films, "Steamboat 'Round the Bend." It is being shown at the Roosevelt theater.

Romance and Music Blend in 'Metropolitan'

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.] "Metropolitan," the film Lawrence Tibbett now is making for Twentieth Century-Fox provides a comedy background for that golden-voiced star of opera and screen. The plot makes him a young fellow with a voice who can't get out of the chorus at the "Met" because he's just plain American born and trained with absolutely no foreign flavor. The boy signs with the wealthy patron of the opera company whose wife is operatically ambitious and always goes to pieces through temperament or some other cause whenever a performance of an opera is scheduled. Alice Brady carries the rôle of the wife—and it isn't too hard for Alice, as she studied opera seriously for some years, taking up drama when an unfortunate accident marred her singing career.

Tibbett, as the boy, is about to get his chance in the opera company of the temperamental lady when she suddenly changes her mind and her husband withdraws, leaving the company with no money. Virginia Bruce, as the young leading lady in love with Tibbett, gets her father to provide the money for the show and everything is just dandy at last in spite of Cesar Romero and his love making directed at the lovely Virginia. Tibbett, of course, does some opera singing, as every one would expect, in the film, but he does his popular "Mandalay" and "Glory Road"—and even croons as a bit of comedy business.

Boleslawski Says Opera Must Not Be Sacrosanct.

Richard Boleslawski, director of the film, is of considerable experience in this matter of operatic producing, for in the old days he produced opera in Russia and Germany. "Art is not the whole thing in this opera business," says Boleslawski. "Opera cannot be sold as such, with some sacrosanct air of being 'art.' Opera needs people in it who can give interpretations of the rôles assigned them, who can characterize and make them interesting with bits of business, acting, personality, not just singing. Tibbett understands this well in his operatic work. He makes a gangster type of the toreador he plays in 'Carmen.' He is a bold fellow who slaps the girl and makes her like it."

Boleslawski is trying to find three months' time to work out the final chapters of his "Escape of the Lancer," the third book of his series on the war, the others being "Way of a Lancer" and "Lances Down," telling of his own adventures as a Polish lancer fighting for Russia in the world war. He has been so busy going from one directorial assignment to another that he has had no time.

Tibbett Thinks Met May Come to Films for Stars.

Lawrence Tibbett himself is most enthusiastic about his most recent venture in films for several years. Since then his old film and operatic teammate, Grace Moore, has done all right for herself in films and Larry is anxious to better her score with the fans. Tibbett believes that there is so much of a future for opera singers in films that it is only a matter of time till the legitimate grand opera companies will be sending to Hollywood for their operatic stars instead of Hollywood's present method of getting singers from opera.

"The chances are greater for a singer to crash films than to slip through the portals of New York's Metropolitan. As grand opera becomes more and more popular on the screen it follows that young singers will prefer to try for Hollywood first. Another thing, the screen gives the singer a much wider public. This means more draw at the box office; even haughty grand opera impresarios cannot overlook that.

"When I returned to the Metropolitan and the concert stage after my film, "The Rogue Song," I found I had an entirely new public to draw from. I could tell this especially in my concert audiences, who always demanded as encores something I had sung in the films.

Alice Brady May Go Back to Broadway.

"The increase of operatic singing in films will bring out a whole new school of operatic singers, for the number of stars from the operatic stage who are suited to films is limited. Youth, beauty, and dramatic ability as well as voice are needed in screen opera. Undersized tenors and oversized sopranos just don't go over with film audiences.

"Thus the screen will develop its own operatic stars and their popularity at the box office will put down the bars at the Metropolitan for them. It will not be a surprise to me if the 'Met' gets more stars in the future from films than it has ever given to films," says Tibbett.

Alice Brady threatens to leave Hollywood after the film is completed to go to Broadway and do a Greek tragedy, the name of which she will not divulge as yet, as plans are not settled entirely for the Theater Guild. Yes, Alice does heavier things, too, though her comedy, "Lady Tubbs," is one of the current phenomenal hits at the box office.

Busy Co-Author

GEORGE ABBOTT, co-author of "Three Men on a Horse" and other stage successes, might be called the champion collaborator of the Broadway producing field. Yet he cannot work happily in Hollywood, where practically everything is collaboration.

Abbott, a tall, slender chap with a humorous grin, passed through Chicago recently on his way back from the Pacific coast, where he was looking over the far western edition of "Three Men on a Horse." While there he spent a few days in Hollywood. He directed his last picture, "Lilly Turner," in 1933, and before that did "The Sea God" and "Manslaughter."

Mr. Abbott is concerned about what Warner Brothers will do to "Three Men on a Horse" when the play goes into pictures next year. He would like to see Charles Butterworth get the part of Erwin Trowbridge, but fears that Joe E. Brown may get the part. Samuel Goldwyn wanted the play, he said, but for Eddie Cantor.

As a director, Abbott thinks there are plenty of capable leading women in Hollywood, and very few comediennes. "And every one," he said, "is so blonde. Blondes on all sides." He thinks it's the greatest of the screen's menaces.

George Abbott was one of Prof. Baker's drama students at Harvard in 1912, then an actor and then a writer-director. He was with Paramount for three years. His first notable success as a playwright was "The Fall Guy," with Jimmie Gleason. Then he wrote "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em" with J. V. A. Weaver; "Broadway," with Phil Dunning; "Four Walls," with Dana Burnet; "Coquette," with Anne Preston Bridgers; "Those We Love," with S. N. Lauren; "Sally Turner," with Dunning, and "Three Men on a Horse" with Cecil Holm.

Tanagra Dances While Daughter Has Operation.

Tanagra [Mrs. Tiffany Thayer in private life], who does the dancing in the film for the "Carmen" scene Tibbett does, had a most distressing situation to meet while the dancing was being filmed. Her daughter, Theda Thayer, 17 years old, who runs a bookshop and does arts and crafts for the gift shop she runs in conjunction with it and takes voice lessons in her remarkable spare time, was taken to Cedars of Lebanon hospital for a serious operation, and her mother, unwilling to delay production, came to the set from the hospital and kept a wire open until the operation was over and the daughter out of danger. Every ten minutes a call was put through to the operating room and she talked to the nurse in charge.

George Marion Sr., grand old man of the American theater, now in his 80s, is playing the rôle of the orchestra conductor in the film and is having so much fun doing it he doesn't let his stand-in get a chance to earn his money. Marion, a San Francisco born man, produced opera, stock, comedies, tragedies, motion pictures, and minstrel shows in his long career in the show business. At one time he wrote a new minstrel show every week for over two years. His home is now at Carmel, where he luxuriates in a marvelous library and spends his early morning playing ball on the beach for an hour, following it with nine holes of golf. Now and then he plays in films and leaves his earthly parades for Hollywood.

Molly O'Day Looking for New Film Role.

There is a new Molly O'Day looking for new work in the films. It's not the harum-scarum kid that turned the town on its ear a few years ago with her antics—she and her sister, Sally O'Neil. This is a demure young lady, with a two month old daughter and a husband, a home and a serious outlook on life, who wants to whittle out a career for herself in films. Molly is only 23, though every one thinks of her as older because it is a long time since the sad eyed kid started in films as the leading lady with Dick Barthelmess in "The Patent Leather Kid."

"Fifty girls were tested for that part," reminisces Molly, smart in a green gown with handtucked yoke and wide shoulder bertha and smart fall velvet tam. "Al Rockett and Al Santell hired me for my sad eyes and because I could cry easily. Before that I had been at Roach's in comedies. I shared dressing rooms with Martha Sleeper and Fay Wray.

"I'd like to do light comedy rôles, like Myrna Loy—I think I'd do them best. I can sing and dance also, not expertly, but well enough to learn more. I like serious drama, too. I spent some time playing in stock just to get experience. Two years ago in Minneapolis I played in 'The Good Fairy,' 'The Church Mouse,' and 'The Monster.' I worked awfully hard and was as nice as I could be to the cast. I had the advertised name, but, believe me, I needed that cast and I knew it."

Jack [Jack Durante] is the young lady's husband. He's working in "Music Is Magic" with Alice Faye right now. "He calls me up three times a day," says Molly. "I don't think most husbands do that, do you? I'm extremely happy—it's grand to have a husband and a home and a baby. Jack is glad to see me go back to work. I can't be happy in that bridge playing set of wives of actors, and there's nothing else to do but work. That's why I'm back in films." Her last rôle before retiring was with Ann Harding in "Vergie Winters."

Hampden's Plans.

Walter Hampden's first fall production will be "Achilles Has a Heel," by Martin Flavin. Later in the season he may appear in Shakespeare's "Coriolanus."

GOOD MORNING!

This is a crackling good mystery movie!

It is "different" in a number of ways, beginning with the title—which really does mean something.

What does it mean?

You'll never know from me—and the picture doesn't give away the secret till the last scenes.

The story is localed in England and Scotland. It relates the strange adventures of a young Englishman who, coming to the aid of a lady in distress, finds himself accused of murder and becomes a fugitive—not only from justice but from a desperate band of criminals.

Robert Donat Injects a Dose of Humor.

The action is swift and the acting by a virtually all English cast headed by Robert Donat is most convincing. Some of the situations are not without their grim humor. The hero's winkling appreciation of the droll side of his predicaments is one of the nice things about Donat's intriguing portrayal.

Scenery and sets are interesting and the piece fairly pulsates with suspense.

I haven't one single qualm about recommending "Thirty-nine Steps." It's a mystery melodrama that mystifies.

ItsaBOUTem.

HARRY RICHMAN, popular night club entertainer and singing star, is in Hollywood and has been selected to play opposite ANN SOTHERN in the musical production "Moonlight on the River." . . . MILDRED HARRIS CHAPLIN, who gave up her screen career in 1931, is making her comeback in the movies in a two reel comedy, "Star Gazing." Retort to Mira Hobbs About Criticizing Fredric March.

Dear Mae Tinée: It certainly is a pity and surprising that any one cannot appreciate wonderful acting such as Fredric March can and does give us.

Take this person Mira Hobbs, for instance, who wrote in and gave such intelligent (?) fearless criticism. I would like to know what she thinks of Charles Laughton, Lionel Barrymore, and a few other great actors. Probably their type of acting and genius would not appeal to her either. But for us who do appreciate good pictures and ability, let there be more.

I have never written to any paper before, least of all would I write to criticize true art, for if I could criticize intelligently enough I would want pay for it.

MRS. D. H. P.

Poor John R.! His Pun Went Astray for a Letter.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am sorry to spoil John R.'s clever pun about Emily Picker's picking, but my name happens to be Picher.

If he wants to know the "sort of stuff" I would pick let him go to see Elisabeth Bergner in "Escape Me Never," for that is my all-time choice of pictures.

Yours truly, EMILY PICHER.

As Sequel to "Thin Man" "Star of Midnight" Fails.

Dear Miss Tinée: The producers of "Star of Midnight" failed to give us a good sequel to M. G. M.'s "The Thin Man," if that was their original idea from the start. Every one who appeared in this film acted too smart and too cute. And my! Wasn't that a cute little trick, Ginger Rogers trying to be the sophisticate! Almost every scene was a drinking one. I expected to be served any moment with a gin fizz by the attending usher. And yet with all the drinking nobody got drunk!

Gene Lockhart, who played William Powell's valet and butler, acted like some hick just released from the local dramatic school. And when or where did Ralph Morgan get that lovely feminine voice he let loose on us at the close of the film when he was disguised as a woman? The woman who really did the speaking should have received screen credit. She had a lovely speaking voice. To me this was the only interesting thing about the whole film. I think M. G. M. are the only ones who could successfully attempt to produce a sequel to "The Thin Man." "Star of Midnight" was just a carbon copy and a pretty poor one at that.

Sincerely, LESLIE STORM.

The Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

This tremendous blast of more than 300,000 pounds of powder was set off by a railroad company to obtain ballast for a trestle across Great Salt lake. It loosened 550,000 tons of rock. Twenty men worked six months in preparing for the explosion. This is one of the uses to which explosives are put in the arts of peace. (Kadel & Herbert photo.)

Explosives Are as Vital in Peace as in War

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

ACCORDING to half legendary scientific history, there was a German monk, Berthold Schwartz, who lived some time during the thirteenth century and was interested in chemistry. One day he was attempting to discover the formula for Greek fire, an inflammable composition that the Greek soldiers were accustomed to sprinkle upon invading armies.

Schwartz mixed up some charcoal, sulphur, and saltpeter and set the mixture on the stove to melt. It blew up with a thunderous report, wrecking the laboratory. History does not record what effect the explosion had upon the inventor's person; however, he undoubtedly must have survived in order to report the incident.

That is one version of the invention of gunpowder. On the other hand, certain British scholars claim that it was discovered by the celebrated English monk, Roger Bacon. The evidence for this consists chiefly of the fact that Bacon made quite a number of interesting discoveries, but was compelled to conceal all knowledge of them for fear of getting in trouble with the authorities, who were much opposed to chemistry at the time. Therefore, since we do not know all of the things that Bacon discovered, it is entirely possible that he discovered gunpowder.

A third version is that the knowledge came from China. It is a known fact that the Chinese knew of gunpowder about a thousand years before Europe did, but the only useful application they could make of it was in the firecracker industry. It is quite possible that knowledge of the material could have been brought from China to Europe either by Mongol invaders or by Italian traders.

At any rate, gunpowder made its first appearance on the battlefields of Europe in the early 1300's. The first firearms were cannon, two hundred years elapsing before the appearance of guns and pistols. It is a sad thing to report that the first mention of a peaceful use of explosives, in mining, did not come until the seventeenth century, after men had been trying to destroy each other with gunpowder for nearly three hundred years.

Ordinary black gunpowder, consisting of saltpeter (potassium nitrate), sulphur, and charcoal, remained the only known explosive until the middle of the last century. Such improvements as were made in it consisted of using purer materials and better mechanical mixing, and not an improved chemical structure.

It had a number of serious defects. Since it contained nonvolatile potassium compounds, it left a solid ash after exploding, which fouled gun barrels and caused a heavy smoke. Moreover, naturally occurring potassium nitrate is not a common mineral. During the Napoleonic wars the supply was inadequate and it was necessary to prepare the material artificially by a highly inefficient method. A patch of vacant land was sprinkled with wood ashes to supply the potassium and then soaked with sewage to supply nitrogen. By means of bacterial action a little potassium nitrate was formed, which was then extracted from the soil by means of water.

What are the properties of gunpowder that explain its usefulness? Explosives are used whenever it is desired to concentrate a large amount of energy into a small space and also into a small time interval. A good explosive, then, is a substance which, after suitable prompting, is capable of undergoing a highly spontaneous chemical change, with the evolution of great amounts of heat and gas. Spontaneity is essential in order that the energy be released in a very short time. The heat evolved is the energy itself, and the gases provide the means of transforming the heat into mechanical work.

Now, the chemical reactions that offer the maximum amounts of energy and spontaneity are those known as oxidations or combustions. Therefore any fuel can be an explosive if intimately mixed with air or any other oxidizing agent. The potential violence of gasoline vapor mixed with air, or of coal dust suspended in air, are well known.

In the case of gunpowder we have two combustible substances, sulphur and charcoal, mixed with a powerful oxidizing agent, potassium nitrate. The reason for the exclusive use of these particular constituents for such a long time lay in the fact that until about fifty years ago potassium nitrate was the only solid oxidizing agent available in sufficient amount.

At the present time black powders are made from a variety of materials. In addition to sulphur and charcoal, rosin, pitch, and wood meal are used as combustible substances, while potassium nitrate has been replaced to some extent by other nitrates and chlorates.

The best of the present-day explosives are prepared, not by mixing small particles of oxidizing and reducing agents, but by bringing them together as parts of the same molecule. Obviously this gives a much more intimate mixture and has the additional advantage of giving no smoke, since no solid residue is left after exploding.

The most important explosives of this type are guncotton and nitroglycerin, discovered respectively by Schönbein and Sobrero almost simultaneously in 1846. These materials are prepared by treating cotton or glycerin with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids under the proper conditions. By this process a nitrate group, the same as that which explodes the sulphur and charcoal of gunpowder, is attached to the combustible cotton or glycerin molecules.

Both of these compounds were useless from a practical standpoint for the first twenty years of their existence. They could not be used in firearms, since they exploded with such speed that they burst the barrel before the bullet had time to leave it. Their usefulness in blasting was limited by the fact that nitroglycerin is far too dangerous to handle, since it sometimes explodes even when lightly jarred; while guncotton, because of its light, fluffy form, is too easily ignited by accident and cannot be safely stored.

In 1866 the Swedish chemist Nobel discovered that when nitroglycerin was mixed with a white mineral powder known as fuller's earth a cheesy solid was formed which was as powerful an explosive as nitroglycerin but much less sensitive to shock. He named this product dynamite, a name now generally applied to a number of mixtures of nitroglycerin with inert solids.

A few years later it was found that guncotton, unlike cotton, dissolves in certain solvents. On evaporation of the solvent the guncotton first sets to a jelly and finally to a hard solid like celluloid. When mixed with certain modifying materials the jelly can be molded into grains of any desired size.

Knowing that nitroglycerin was improved by soaking it up in a solid, and that guncotton was improved by softening it with a liquid, it occurred to Nobel during the 1880's to use nitroglycerin as a solvent for gelatinizing guncotton. The resulting material, blasting gelatin, is one of the most powerful explosives used in peace-time activities.

By treating carbolic acid or toluene with the nitrating acid mixture there are obtained respectively picric acid and TNT.

Another explosive, ammonium nitrate, is something of an anomaly. On the basis of theoretical considerations of heat measurements it should be highly explosive. Yet when pure it is noninflammable and cannot be made to explode. But when mixed with other substances, such as aluminum powder or TNT, it can be touched off to give as good an explosion as the theory predicts. It is one of the ingredients of the newly discovered safety explosive, nitramon.

What is the best explosive of all? This depends entirely upon the use to which it is to be put. Explosives may be put into three classes: High explosives, used for shells and torpedoes and for blasting; propellants, which explode more slowly and are used to send the shell or bullet on its journey; and detonants, which explode on a relatively slight impulse and are used to initiate the explosion in the main body of the charge.

Scientific Queries Answered

Address questions of scientific nature to Dr. Thomas M. Beck, Graphic Section, Chicago Tribune. For personal reply inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

I have heard that a way has been invented where gasoline can be made better by mixing a little water with it, but the oil trust has suppressed it. Do you know anything about it?—A. C., Chicago.

I have not heard anything about it. A motor gets its energy from the heat of burning fuel. Since water does not burn, it cannot add anything to the value of a fuel, any more than sand can increase the nutriment of sugar. I am not familiar with the oil industry and its code of ethics, but I assume it is in business to make money. If it were possible to improve gasoline by mixing it with a cheap stuff like water, the oil people would hardly suppress the process. Instead they would make this superior mixture and sell it at a greater profit.

FAVORITE POEMS

ELIZA COOK, English author, was born in Southwark Dec. 24, 1818, and died in Wimbledon Sept. 23, 1889. She was self-taught, and as a mere girl manifested a talent for writing. From 1849 to 1854 she conducted a paper for family reading called Eliza Cook's Journal. Later she published "Jottings from My Journal" and "New Echoes." As the author of a single poem, "The Old Arm-Chair," Eliza Cook's name for a generation after 1838 was a household word in both England and America.

THE OLD ARM-CHAIR

I love it, I love it! and who shall dare
To chide me for loving that old arm-chair?
I've treasured it long as a sainted prize,
I've bedewed it with tears, I've embalmed it with sighs.
'Tis bound by a thousand bands to my heart;
Not a tie will break, not a link will start;
Would you know the spell?—a mother sat there!
And a sacred thing is that old arm-chair.

In childhood's hour I lingered near
The hallowed seat with listening ear;
And gentle words that mother would give
To fit me to die, and teach me to live.
She told me that shame would never betide
With Truth for my creed, and God for my guide;
She taught me to lisp my earliest prayer,
As I knelt beside that old arm-chair.

I sat and I watched her many a day,
When her eyes grew dim, and her locks were gray;
And I almost worshiped her when she smiled
And turned from her Bible to bless her child.
Years rolled on, but the last one sped,—
My idol was shattered, my earth-star fled!
I learnt how much the heart can bear
When I saw her die in her old arm-chair.

'Tis past, 'tis past! but I gaze on it now
With quivering breast and throbbing brow:
'Twas there she nursed me, 'twas there she died,
And memory flows with lava tide.
Say it is folly, and deem me weak,
Whilst scalding drops start down my cheek;
But I love it, I love it, and cannot tear
My soul from a mother's old arm-chair.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Fashions in Dogs

THE way dogs may go in or out of fashion always is difficult to foretell, but dog breeders know that the American public does express itself in its preferences by buying large numbers of certain breeds—thus lifting these breeds into the public eye. Regular show followers realize today that the dachshund has been making a lot of new friends in recent years, that the fox and Scottish terriers continue to hold their position as popular breeds, and that the cocker spaniel registrations, entries in shows, and sales have been large.

But just a few months may reveal some startling news about the popularity of various breeds. And the trends often tell dog breeders what the handwriting on the wall is apt to signal so far as sales and entries in shows are concerned. Registrations of the American Kennel club are the best clew as to the gradual slumps or upturns in the popularity of certain breeds. An analysis of the registration figures has been made, so that one can get a pretty clear picture of what is happening.

An examination of the figures for the first six months of the year brings out these facts as worthy of notice:

Terriers seem to have displaced the nonsporting group, and the hounds are ahead of the working division. Both of these changes are the reverse of trends in 1934.

Boston terriers continue to lead all other breeds. The Bostons had a six months registration figure of 5,564. The cocker spaniels had 4,182 registrations. Right behind the little spaniels, the wire-haired terrier showed 3,606 registrations. Scotties came next with 3,591.

One of the biggest gains among breeds is that shown by the cockers. Their jump from 2,876 last year, which gave them fourth place, to 4,182 and second place during the first half of 1935 is something for dog fanciers to think about. And another noticeable thing is the way the Scotties are whittling away at the lead of the wire-haired terriers this year.

The dachshunds have made a jump from 596 to 824. Most of the registrations are the smooth-haired variety. The increased popularity of the little German dog, plus the steady rise of the popular beagle (a great favorite in the middle west), has put the hound group ahead of the working dogs.

When one examines the figures on gun dogs no marked changes are noticeable. The most popular members of this group have about the same positions. America is quite enthusiastic about Irish setters, English setters, and other breeds used in hunting, and continues to acquire specimens of the breeds. One item in the figures on gun dogs for the first six months of 1935, however, interests this department greatly. It is the jump of the clumber spaniels from 5 to 25—a truly remarkable jump for this neglected member of the spaniel family. The figures surprise us because we didn't think there were that many clumbers registered in a couple of years, much less six months. (This department is expecting to contribute something toward this clumber spaniel registration figure, because Carnforth Tobias, a male clumber, has been ordered from Surrey, England.)

While collies continue to hold first place among the working breeds, the Dobermanns have taken a jump from 632 registrations in 1934 (six months) to 706 this year. This is quite a gain for the Dobermann and indicates that a large number will be put on the books this year. There are large entries in the shows this year, too. When you stop to think that the Dobermann is one of the breeds that are included in the group now getting some reaction because of the agitation against the cropping of ears, the gain in registrations is especially significant. Another interesting fact in this year's registrations is the way the Great Dane has forged ahead of the German shepherd.

The Pomeranian has made a big gain so far this year. Although the Pekingese still is the leader among the toy dogs, the Pom gained more during the first six months of this year than the Peke. Among the nonsporting dogs one finds a 100 per cent gain for the poodles and almost as much for the Dalmatian or coach dog.

But behind all these figures is this outstanding fact: The dog interests of this country are booming as never before. Already 35,375 dogs have been registered during the first six months of this year, as against 29,800 for the same time last year. Inasmuch as registrations seem to be heavier during the second six months of a year, undoubtedly more than 70,000 dogs will be put on the books of the Kennel club during 1935. Last year, a banner one for the club, saw more than 60,000 registered.

There isn't much doubt but that the world is "going to the dogs"! More and more families are realizing what a valuable member of the household a dog can be, how a pup can make a delightful playmate for children, and what an important rôle a dog takes as a guard over children and other members of the household.

After owning many dogs, the one thing that impresses us about this animal that becomes a part of our family life is his unselfishness. What the master wants is the dog's pleasure. You can call your dog to take a walk, to go hunting with you, or to help you when you are in danger, and the dog has no thought except to do what you want him to do. He doesn't think about himself when danger threatens. It's only about the master and what can be done to help him, irrespective of whether it means the dog's life or not.

THE QUESTION BOX

We have three puppies. One is a dwarf collie and spaniel, three and one-half months old; one is a chow and spaniel, six weeks old, and the other a beagle hound puppy, also six weeks old. We are in doubt what to feed them now and when they get older. Will you please send us some suggestions?—A. R., Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago.

This department has a leaflet on feeding which has been sent to you. In it you will find listed the approved foods for puppies and grown dogs.

It is well to remember that a dog's diet consists of four main classes of foods—meats, cereals, vegetables (small amount), and a group of miscellaneous foods. The dog, being a meat-eating animal, depends on meat as its main article of sustenance, so don't be afraid to give your dogs plenty of meat. That small beagle puppy can be fed small amounts of meat along with milk, cereals, and other foods.

Among the foods which I give to puppies may be included raw chopped beef, canned dog food containing beef, cod liver oil, etc.; milk, tomato juice, cereals such as shredded wheat, prepared dry dog foods, and other approved items. Your two youngest pups can be fed about four times every day until they are older.

Will you please give us advice on how to feed and raise a wire-haired terrier puppy? The pup is now just about eleven weeks old. We want to do everything right and train him to do some tricks and maybe be a show dog. Thank you very much.—Millicent and Barbara H., Oak Park, Ill.

You are wise in wanting to take the proper care of your puppy, because one raised correctly is healthier and also more fun for you. I am sending you a free leaflet on feeding the dog, but I suggest that you procure one or two books on the wire-haired terrier and how to train a dog to be obedient and do tricks. There are two small handbooks that we know of which give simple but explicit directions on how to train a dog to sit down when commanded, to lie down, to come when called, and other useful acts which make any dog more of a pleasure around the home.

You can learn about showing dogs in a dog show in two ways. One is to read a booklet on what a dog must do in a show ring, and the other is to consult a professional handler and have him coach you. It is fun to show a dog. Even if you do not win, your dog has learned a lot about manners and obedience, because training for shows gives him needed instruction.

Makeup Expert Able to Paint Personality on Faces

Features of a Subject Serve as Canvas for This Artist

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

DISCUSSIONS as to whether a makeup artist or a cameraman does the most in producing a flattering picture can reach only one answer—it all depends. In Hollywood, where the great makeup and camera artists of the world center their thoughts and efforts on making an actress as beautiful as is humanly possible, there is no argument over the credit due to makeup or to photography. In certain fields it is due to one; in others, to the other. Usually the credit is rather evenly divided. Makeup and camera men work together, each realizing what can and cannot be done by camera and makeup respectively.

Perc Westmore, head man in the Westmore Makeup company and originator of corrective makeup as it is used in the studios, has some definite things to say on what his work can do.

"There are two kinds of makeup," he declared. "One is corrective and the other is straight, as we say. When corrective measures are taken the credit is due the makeup man. When straight makeup is employed the cameraman is responsible for beautiful effects. This is a general rule only, of course, and is subject to some exceptions.

"Corrective makeup may be employed to shade a nose that is too wide, to disguise a loose chin line, to shade down wide jaws. Eyes can be made to appear larger. Mouths can be modified, eyebrows shaped. If a cameraman had to operate without the aid of a makeup man his work would be much harder, for, while he can create beauty through his shadows and lights, it is more difficult. If an unlovely nose is given the proper light and shadow treatment in the camera, that same lighting may be most unflattering to the face as a whole or to some other feature needing its own correction.

Only Six Expert in Corrective Work

"There are only six men in the makeup business in Hollywood who know how to do corrective work. I got the idea through my paintings. I do portraits in pastels and in oils. It is really possible to paint a personality on a face, using the face as a canvas. I can read a script and paint the character on the actor's face, if necessary. This is actual portraiture, a little beyond being corrective makeup.

"After the corrective work has been done on a star, the cameraman has the real job. Coöperation between the cameraman and the makeup man is close. When I have done some corrective makeup on a star I always tell the cameraman just what has been done. With this knowledge, it is easier for him to plan the lighting to aid the effect. Actually, corrective and straight makeup both are for the purpose of reducing the amount of light, and consequently heat, needed for photography on the set.

"Here is an example of the interdependence of makeup and camera work. A faulty complexion may be covered by makeup, but the cameraman can obtain much more pleasing and softer effects if the skin is naturally good. Makeup tends to iron out the translucent quality in a skin."

George Barnes, veteran cameraman and husband of Joan Blondell, whose films he always has photographed, said:

"There are a few general rules that every cameraman develops and which he always tries first when he is making the setup for the camera. The main or source light is first put on the face of the star at a good angle for her particular face. Then the auxiliary lights are put into the heavier shadows, to lighten them somewhat and to avoid the sharp contrasts between strong light and black shadow. Anyone who has taken a snapshot in the strong sun knows what I am talking about. More front lights are used to soften and diffuse. This is pleasing and flattering.

Most Favorable Lighting Goes to Woman Star

"We always give the most favorable lighting to the woman star if she is the center of a group, though too much cannot be sacrificed in this way. As the star is likely to be moving about as the scene progresses, our lighting cannot be nearly as potent in beauty creating and correcting as the lighting of the still or portrait cameraman.

"Sometimes we find our effects have been bad, and we must try again. That element of uncertainty is ever absent in motion picture photography. The motion picture cameraman always has to compromise his lighting effects to allow for all the angles at which a star may appear during the playing of the scene.

Soft, Duffused Light the Most Flattering

"One general rule is that the soft, diffused light is always the most flattering. This is especially useful if an attempt is being made to conceal lines or wrinkles. But the lights are helpless when it comes to a bad nose or a feature that is out of line. A still man might paint it out with light and shadow, but on a set it's entirely up to the makeup man to correct such defects. There's a limit to that, too. The dark-shadowing paint sometimes used to conceal a double chin, a broad nose, or such feature may photograph like a dirty streak. This has to be lighted carefully by the cameraman to avoid a smutted effect.

"Harsher lights are often used for tense dramatic scenes, where the facial expression of the actors may be most important. This presents still more difficulties for both makeup and camera man.

Every New Setup Offers New Problem

"Every new setup is a new problem to be worked out all over again by the cameraman with his lights. There are no rules for photographing different types of beauty. Each star is a different problem to be studied and experimented with before the camera. Minor flaws and better features differ, no matter how similar two faces may be.

"Photography is always full of surprises. Sometimes all rules fail. Since the talkies, beauty is not as essential as before; yet it is always easier to do good work on a beautiful subject."

While Mr. Barnes is modest, there is no star in the business who does not know the great value of an able cameraman. Mary Pickford had the same cameraman for years. So do many of the stars, who would not step before a camera without the man who knows how to photograph them to the best advantage.

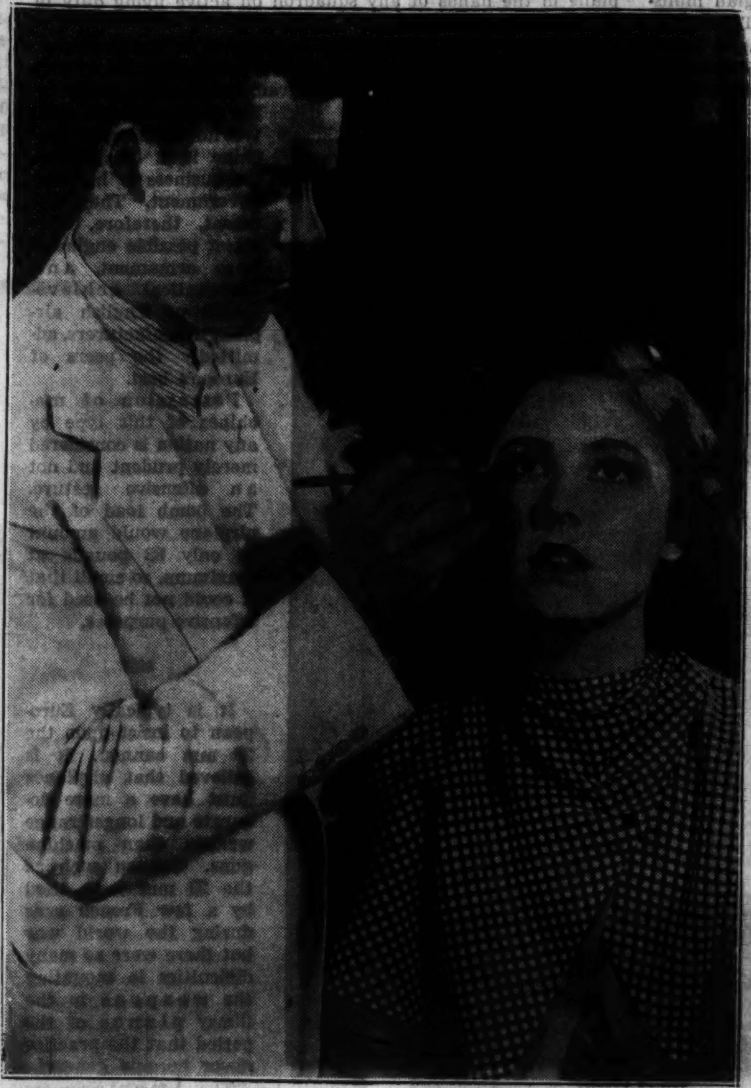
Tony Gaudio, Lucien Andriot, and Hal Rosson are famous favorites. Jean Harlow became the wife of her cameraman, Hal Rosson. While it wasn't a happy marriage, it wasn't a bad idea in a practical way at that period of Jean's career, as she needed help. Many a famous director has developed from the man behind the camera, notably Von Sternberg.

Cameraman Seeks Becoming Angles

Since a motion picture cameraman cannot depend on retouching, as the portrait photographer can, he must seek out ways and means to beautify his subject by catching flattering angles. Many stars know exactly how a certain pose will register in the camera. In such cases the cameraman's job is simplified considerably. Usually this comes with experience and study.

There always is a better side to any face. Some faces have beautiful profiles but are undistinguished in a front view, and others register better with an uptilted angle or with the chin dropped. The cameraman must learn to observe all these things and advise the actress of them.

No makeup man can help a girl with a poor profile who keeps presenting it to the camera. The cameraman can help by pointing out a more flattering and less severe angle for the face.



Perc Westmore, head man of the Westmore Makeup company of Hollywood, advising Josephine Hutchinson as to how her natural brows and a medium amount of eye shadow will accent her beauty. Josephine has Titian hair and golden brown eyes.

It actually is possible to paint a personality on a face, using the face as a canvas, according to Perc Westmore, expert makeup artist of the cinema capital. This diagrammed portrait of Glenda Farrell, a popular movie star, follows the Westmore method and illustrates how the actress was made up in a test to develop personality for a part in "Little Big Shot."

Below: For the round, full face—hair brushed back from forehead, not too much heavy makeup, and the mouth made full to soften the fullness of the face. The subject is Patricia Ellis.

Another of the Westmore method diagrammed portraits employed to reveal the successive steps in the makeup designed to build up personality in a face. The numbered lines, as in the other similar pictures on this page, indicate the facial areas plotted for shadow color, powder, and rouge treatment by the makeup artist to bring out the characteristics desired.

What's New in World of Airplanes and Air Transportation

French official statistics of May, 1935, ignoring the French and Japanese air forces, listed Germany's strength at 1,050 machines, England's at 1,050, Italy's at 1,206, and Russia's at 3,400.

These, however, are merely the first comparisons possible and do not indicate the balance in each air force between strictly defensive military ships and the offensive planes.

Europeans naturally are preoccupied with such comparisons, because possession of both types of planes is essential if their air forces are to be effective. This is true because distances between countries are so small that in each case the capitals and manufacturing cities of nations are within easy bombing range of modern high-performance planes.

The purely defensive military planes are the single or two seat fighters. These are built to have a high rate of climb, high speed, maneuverability, and great strength to stand violent maneuvers. They are expected to have only a short range, flight durations ranging from two to four hours. Primarily they are intended to intercept and engage bombers.

The bombardment and attack airplanes are obviously the offensive ships of air warfare. The bombers are built for great carrying capacity, speed, and long range. The modern bomber will carry 2,000 pounds of explosive and can fly from 900 to 1,200 miles. The attack airplanes are also long-range machines, capable of carrying a smaller load of bombs but several men in the crew to operate machine guns against ground defenses.

Most of the efforts at comparison, naturally, have been made to determine offensive craft available. An accurate estimate, made after a survey of a number of public and private records, placed the offensive strengths of France, Italy, and Great Britain in July, 1934, as indicated in figure B. Germany at that time was not supposed to possess any military air force, so the numbers of its ships are not given.

To these figures must be added, however, the civil aircraft, transport, mail, or freight carrying planes, which easily could be converted for warfare. Of these France had on that same date 104. The English had 11, Italy had 64, and Germany had 84.

The defensive aircraft possessed by these powers in July, 1934, are as indicated in figure C. This graph alone hardly tells the tale of defensive possibilities. France, for instance, is really almost on a par with England in the number of up to date fighters. Both countries have added only 50 odd new airplanes since 1931 to their single seater squadrons.

Italy is slightly ahead, having added more than 60 new airplanes to its fighter groups. Still the seemingly overwhelming strength of Italian fighters is considerably less impressive when the amount of new equipment included in these swarms is known.

The total number of airplanes including military, private, freight, mail, and transport, in each of the world's great countries is shown in figure D. The heavy black figures in each case are the civil transport machines. These figures, as well, are as of July, 1934.

Despite all the efforts made to increase the war airplanes since that time, there is little likelihood that any substantial additions have been made. It takes considerable time to turn out airplanes and even more to manufacture highly supercharged engines of large horsepower. Orders undoubtedly have been given the manufacturers, but none or few of these orders have been filled.

An example of the time necessary to build air fleets is seen in the efforts made by France two years ago to increase air armament. The air ministry offered a contract to manufacturers who won in an open competition. The plane builders were unable to finish machines for eight months and the competition lasted more than four months.

Then when the Dewoitine company was given an order so much time had elapsed that the machine it had built was obsolete and the government gave it a very small contract to fill a gap in the air forces while a new series of orders went out to Morane, Caudron, and to Dewoitine for a newer model. None of these orders will be filled for another year. Deliveries will not begin for another six months.

Much of the reason for the apprehension of the various European nations is evident in the series of figures A, F, G, and H. All of these deal with increases in various phases of airplane performance over the period 1928-1935.

Even during the world war the airplane shrunk the map of Europe. The Germans were able intensively to bomb London, Paris, a number of port towns on both sides of the channel, and a number of ports in the Mediterranean sea from territory of their allies of the Balkan region.

These raids, of course, generally started from bases close to the lines. During the war, too, Germany spent a great deal more money and energy in building a large multi-motored bombing craft than did any of the allies. Only at the end were the French and British completing preparations to bomb Berlin, and other German cities.

Indeed, as the armistice was declared orders were sent out to the British Independent Air force, which had massed a great quantity of Handley Page bombers and was about to launch a series of raids on a really large scale. These were to be daylight missions deep into Germany with so many bombers that tremendous destruction was certain to be the result.

All these facts, of course, are well known today. War plans for the future contemplate just such large scale bombing raids and it is this type of offensive action that every European nation fears. Moreover, as inquiry is made, these fears increase because it is generally admitted that the airplane has increased in deadliness since the world war.

Performance advances made in merely the last seven years are clearly indicated in figure A. In 1928 the first line bomber could carry 1,500 pounds of bombs for 245 miles and return. In 1931-'32 the same class of bomber could carry 2,000 pounds for 375 miles and return. Today the same type of bombardment machine carries 6,500 pounds of explosives for 435 miles and return.

Furthermore, as speeds and climb of these airplanes increase toward the performance of fighters and the margin narrows between the types, they become more and more suited for daylight bombing which hitherto has been considered too costly in probable equipment losses to make it worth while. This, of course, adds to the daily time interval during which bombing operations could be carried out.

Just how that margin is constantly narrowing is clearly shown in the remaining figures F, G, and H. The offensive multi-seater is the bombardment plane. The fast two seater is either a two man fighter or an attack airplane. The single seater is, of course, the intercepter or pursuit airplane.

Performance increase inevitably means cost increases. Materials, workmanship, intricacy of manufacture—particularly of the extremely light and extremely powerful supercharged motors built now for fighting aircraft—all add to cost as they are refined. This cost increase can be expressed in the following table:

Class of airplane—	1928.	1931-'32.	1935.
Bomber	$45,000	$85,000	$200,000
Two seater.	15,000	25,000	80,000
Single seater	12,500	15,000	30,000

One of these latest fighters, $30,000 worth of airplane and armament, is represented in the colored illustration on page one of this section. It is a machine constructed specifically to fill the needs of defense against the bombardment planes now being turned out by continental manufacturers.

The airplane was manufactured by the Fairey Aviation company, Ltd., of Hayes, Middlesex, England, for the International Fighter competition held by the Belgian ministry of national defense. The competition began on July 15, at Evere aerodrome near Brussels, and testing of the various airplanes entered therein is expected to continue until October.

The machine is called the Fantome and was built to surpass the following specifications: Speed of at least 400 kilometers per hour (248 miles per hour) at 16,400 feet; a duration of 2 hours at 8-10th full throttle at 13,120 feet; a climb to 16,400 feet in 6 minutes; a landing speed not to exceed 74.5 miles an hour; an armament of either one 20 millimeter cannon and two machine guns, or four machine guns and four 22 pound bombs.

Definitly, the specifications of this machine are higher than those of any airplane in the hands of any squadron on active flying duty in any air force in Europe.

Every detail of the machine is revealed in the drawings. Such plans hitherto have been secrets never revealed by any government. In this case the diagrams were made public by the manufacturer, who was not entering the machine in a competition for business of his own government. They represent, therefore, the latest possible engineering, armament, and aeronautical achievements of English airplane manufacturers, admittedly the peers of Europe's best.

Possession of machines of this type by any nation is considered merely prudent and not an offensive gesture. The bomb load of the airplane would amount to only 88 pounds at maximum, so small that it could not be used for offensive purposes.

It is typically European to insist upon the 20 mm cannon. It is believed that airplanes must have a more accurate and longer range weapon than machine guns. Cannon such as the 20 mm were used by a few French aces during the world war but there were so many difficulties in mounting the weapons in the flimsy planes of the period that the practice never became general.

The American air fleet is developing entirely separate from European influence. Admittedly the American air forces consist of more up-to-date aircraft than those of any other nation. The American bombardment airplanes, particularly the Martin already in service, and the Boeing 229, the Martin B-16, and the Douglas bomber, which appeared in competition for a new army contract at Wright field, Dayton, O., on Aug. 22, are far ahead of anything else in the world.

The Boeing P-26 fighter, the Grumann biplane fighter, and the new Curtiss high-wing monoplane fighters now going into service in the army pursuit squadrons have performances in excess of even the Fantome.

Thus far the United States army air corps has put its trust in .50-caliber machine guns and in the heavy bombs of the offensive squadrons rather than in quick-firing cannon. The British have experimented with the cannon in their heavy flying boats, but have not armed fighters with the weapon.

They have, however, armed with anti-tank guns four squadrons of small, comparatively slow low-wing monoplane fighters. These are of approximately .50 caliber but are of a type that can shoot gas shells, incendiary ammunition, or small explosive shells. The gun is not aimed along the path of the airplane, but is placed so that it shoots through the floor of the fuselage while the airplane flies level.

Some idea of the depth of the fear which Europeans have of air attack can be gathered from the fact that the English now are engaged in digging vast underground airdromes and shelters in which fighting airplanes and large numbers of the population can be protected from bomb attacks.

Plans, according to John Steele, Chicago Tribune London correspondent, have been made and a number of sites chosen. The work is farthest advanced at Gravesend, the new civil airport of 154 acres. There, according to the correspondent, the underground shelter will include, besides storage space, machine shops, workrooms, offices, and sleeping quarters for the crews.

"It will serve not only as a vital and inviolable center for fighting craft but also as a center for the transportation of munitions and men to all parts of the islands," reported Mr. Steele. "From this great airport subways will run to the heart of London, linking up with the present subway system. Ramps will provide means of admitting planes to the levels below."

President Maintained in Luxury Beyond Richest Dream

Three and Half Million Spent on Him in a Year

By WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C.

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT is being maintained in the White House by the American people in a state of luxury unknown to his predecessors and far beyond the reach of the wealthiest of his subjects.

In the fiscal year which closed last June 30 the cost of supporting the President reached an all-time high. The cost, direct and indirect, topped three and one-half million dollars.

The President occupies the most valuable establishment set aside in the world for a ruler. The official valuation of the White House is eighteen million dollars—$15,700,000 for the grounds and $2,300,000 for the White House and other improvements. Its rental value is $1,800,000 a year.

Running of the executive mansion during the last fiscal year cost more than $600,000. Improvements cost $400,000. Maintenance of the President outside of the White House cost about $700,000. Other expenses not directly attributable to the executive department have been estimated at between $100,000 and $200,000.

Against these expenditures President Roosevelt draws a salary of $75,000 a year and a yearly travel allowance of $25,000. The overwhelming balance is met, except for the White House rental, which is purely hypothetical because the mansion is the property of the people, by congressional appropriations.

Under the budget the executive establishment was charged with the expenditure of $442,050 in the last fiscal year, but the actual cost was far greater than this figure indicates. A great many of the services offered the White House were charged against other departments.

The expense of the executive office proper was $136,634. For the next fiscal year the appropriation has been boosted to $161,454. Of the $136,634 all but about $20,000 went into pay checks. These took $113,188. The balance was for supplies.

President's Secretary Draws $10,000 a Year

The salary list of 37 employés is headed by Col. Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to the President, who draws $10,000 a year. The two assistant secretaries, Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen Early, each get $9,500. Salaries of other employés range from $1,170 each for two laborers to $7,000 for an executive officer.

The grand total of expenditures for the executive office was $267,840 and will be $233,934 in the fiscal year now under way. This includes the President's salary and traveling expenses, Vice President Garner's salary, and contingent expenses, which include services of a superintendent, three chauffeurs, an assistant chauffeur, a footman, and two washers, who get a total of $14,706 a year.

On the White House care, maintenance, repair, alteration, heating, lighting, and the like $174,210 was spent. There was a pay roll of $88,423 under this appropriation for 58 persons, including four butlers, three cooks, one valet, five maids, and seven gardeners. A number of temporary gardeners and other employés received $7,800.

The government pays all White House expenses except the cost of the food consumed by the President, his family, and his guests. At times this may be charged to taxpayers. Anything in the nature of official entertainment may be set against a federal fund, so that if the President invites a number of senators to lunch he can, by making sure they are not all of the same political faith, assess the government for everything from soup to nuts. If he does not exercise this caution he must dig into his own pocket.

Purchases of furniture, rugs, linens, curtains, glassware, and china come out of the congressional appropriations. Because of the high ceilings and spacious rooms, curtains, draperies, and rugs are an expensive item of the White House budget. And the little economies practiced in every home are frequent in the sewing room on the third floor. Curtains are turned, rugs are rewoven, and other furnishings are darned and mended.

The laundry of the bedrooms and dining rooms is listed under maintenance. But the personal laundry comes from the President's pocket, as do stamps for personal letters, personal telegrams, and personal telephone calls.

Any purchase for the White House, if large, is made through the supplies and warehouse section of the national park service. The purchases go through the red tape of specifications, bids, and awards.

The White House maintenance is under the supervision of the national park service of the department of the interior. This unit spent $4,000,000 in the maintenance of public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia. Again, none of this is charged directly against the White House.

The most recent purchase of furnishings was an item of $9,301 for 1,720 pieces of china for White House dinners. In the last year there were 2,492 luncheon and dinner guests.

The White House has its own police force of 48 men. A captain, a lieutenant, three sergeants, and 43 patrolmen drew $103,950, and will get $117,700 in this fiscal year. This is another of the items not charged against the executive department, being carried against the treasury department.

Secret Service Men Work Seven Days a Week

Another White House charge against the treasury is for ten secret service men. These draw about $50,000 a year and are forgotten men under the New Deal, because each man puts in a full seven-day week.

The secret service men are charged with the protection of the President and his family and accompany him on all trips. Their chief, Col. Edmond W. Starling, is the one man the President must obey.

When President Roosevelt visited the Chicago World's Fair in 1933 he was in a holiday mood and readily assented to the suggestion that he ride through the grounds and see the sights. The exposition grounds were teeming with visitors.

And Mr. Roosevelt didn't go into the crowd.

Three other White House functionaries are charged against the war and navy departments. They are Lieut. Col. Edwin C. Watson, military aid; Capt. Wilson Brown, naval aid, and Commander Ross T. McIntire, White House physician. The three draw about $15,000.

The duties of the military and naval aids are largely social. Their picturesque uniforms lend color to White House receptions and to official tours.

Dr. McIntire is entrusted with the health of the President, his family, and the White House staf. At present he is attending Secretary Howe, who has been seriously ill for several months.

In emergencies the President can draw upon the entire army and navy and public health service for medical attention.

No one knows how many White House clerks, stenographers, and other employés are charged against other departments. The President has the entire federal pay roll of 717,712 workers, trained in every profession, at his command.

One of the many luxuries provided the President is a greenhouse operated at an annual cost of $5,208, with the charge being borne by the park service. The greenhouse once was above the passage to the executive offices, and a tour among the palms was a regular feature of White House receptions. It knew many a romance and flirtation. In the time of President Theodore Roosevelt it was moved to West Potomac park, where it now stands.

The greenhouse supplies table decorations for state dinners. Enormous quantities of flowers go to adorn the White House rooms. In the past the blooms went fresh each day to the desk of the President, his wife, the secretaries and cabinet members.

Under the New Deal the number of recipients has enlarged so that almost every White House stenographer and each brain truster gets a daily quota. Under no President has the outlay been so great, the gardeners assert. The White House also can draw on the department of agriculture's experimental greenhouse, supported at an annual cost of $71,239.

The White House grounds are strewn with flowers, chiefly roses, which occupy the attention of seven gardeners. No flowers ever are cut. There is also a special garden for the wife of the President, set with flowers common to housewives of the country. In this garden Mrs. Hoover spent much time, giving it her personal attention. Mrs. Roosevelt seldom goes to this garden; her frequent travels preclude personal attention to the old-fashioned patch.

Sixty-seven Rooms in New Executive Office

The fiscal year just closed saw one of the largest improvement plans in the history of the mansion. The PWA provided $325,000 for a new executive office and another $152,000 for modernization of the White House kitchens.

The elaborate new executive office has 67 rooms and 15,000 feet of office floor space, excluding corridors. The new quarters, which the President took over last December, were air-conditioned at a cost of $90,000. There are three cooling systems, one for the President.

As part of the kitchen alterations a basement grotto, used as a cow shed in the time of Andrew Jackson, is being transformed into a storage room for hams and cheeses, high in the favor of the Roosevelt palate. Many of these are sent to the President by admirers and are admitted to the storeroom only after rigid inspection by the ever-suspicious secret service operatives.

The President, like all his predecessors, receives many gifts. These are wide in range. Some of them have been relegated to what Mr. Roosevelt has designated the "chamber of horrors" in the little White House at Warm Springs.

Close by the executive offices is the garage. Here are six magnificent cars provided by manufacturers each year under a contract by which the White House pays only the upkeep of the cars. Two of these are for the President—one closed and one open. There is one each for the secretaries and another for bringing distinguished visitors to and from railroads and air lines.

There are a number of smaller cars. There are trucks for marketing and baggage, and cars for various members of the household. Mrs. Roosevelt has a small car—the gift of a manufacturer.

In former years only the President's cars bore the White House seal. Now those of the secretaries also carry the emblem which is the summit of the "I gotta drag" club.

In the fiscal year the President spent all, if not more than, the $25,000 travel allowance. His total mileage for the year was about 25,000 miles—equal to a circumnavigation of the globe. Yet the bulk of the cost of his traveling was not on the White House records, but on those of the navy department, his cruises and yachts costing about $700,000.

Junket to Hawaii Cost a Half Million

When the President decided upon an extended trip to Hawaii at the beginning of the fiscal year just closed, the cruiser Houston was assigned to carry him. The cruiser New Orleans went along as an escort and a transport for representatives of press associations. This junket cost taxpayers $500,000.

When the President went to Florida early this year to fish from the yacht of his good friend Vincent Astor, the destroyer Farragut went along as an escort. Its two-week cruise, together with other navy facilities employed by the President, cost about $100,000.

The navy also bears the expense of the President's yachting. It took over the coast guard cutter Sequoia to take the place of the presidential yacht Mayflower, sold by Hoover. At the same time the navy took over the coast guard patrol boat Cuyahoga and fitted it up as a tender for the yacht.

The maintenance of the two yachts set taxpayers back about $50,000 a year. Regularly during the summer the President week-ends on the Sequoia along with cabinet members and other New Dealers.

When he travels by rail the President pays twenty fares for his private car and also the fares of his staf. Until the time of President Coolidge, Presidents paid a much heavier special train rate. The frugal Vermonter, by way of objection to the rate, took a public train on one of his trips. After the resultant trials the railroads compromised.

Today a presidential special is carried on the books of a railroad as a regular train. Theoretically anyone who purchases a ticket may ride on the train. He who believes he can pass the vigilant secret service men can try to board a presidential train—one could also try to rob the mint.

The privileges attached to the office of President defy enumeration. It is even more difficult to assess the cost of these privileges.

If the President wishes to go fishing he may call on the bureau of fisheries to detail an expert to lead him to trout pools. Should he wish to play polo he could get a string of mounts and able instruction from the army. He could study astronomy or make mouse traps and find a government expert to aid him.

The President can and does have movies shown for himself in the White House. Actors and singers gladly would come at their own expense to give recitals. Many have.

Big Cats of the Brookfield Zoo Have Their Public

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

EVERY well stocked zoo offers a wide variety of attractions, all basically scientific and educational. Many of these exhibits in addition have an appeal that goes beyond the mere satisfying of a desire for knowledge. They are fascinating in a greater or less degree—depending quite a lot upon the mental processes of the individual who beholds them.

The monkey house of any zoo, for instance, is a house of hilarity. Within it man, superior representative of the Primates, guffaws in an unrestrained manner at the antics of his little cousins as they spring from branch to branch. The almost human ways of the orang-utan simply crack man open with laughter.

And the bear pits — they more often than not have a crowd about them. The bears, as everyone knows, are the buffoons of the zoo. Their pantomimes bring chuckles. They amuse in a more subdued way than do the jabbering, scampering monkey folk.

In the reptile house visitors often speak in whispers. Snakes affect people that way. Their cold, whip-like bodies move so deliberately. The light in their beady eyes seems to betray a lineal familiarity with the well known scandal of Eden. Serpents are prime attractions.

Everyone loves elephants.

But of all the departments of the zoo, perhaps none surpasses in attracting power that which presents before the public the big cats, the larger of the Felidæ. It may be the majesty, courage, and strength of these great cats—lion, tiger, leopard, jaguar, and puma—that make them so interesting. Zoo visitors stand in awe before the cages of the cat house, marveling at the kings of the jungle, whose forepaws can crack a zebra's neck, whose massive jaws can crush the thigh bone of a buffalo. Humans realize that lions, tigers, and others of the great cats are most dangerous of beasts, and seem to manifest a feeling of security at seeing these creatures in captivity. The baleful eyes of the animals tell a story of destruction. Back of all this interest in the brutes is the knowledge that they (lions and tigers) under certain circumstances are man-eaters.

About the Big Cats at the Brookfield Zoo

This, then, as title and accompanying illustrations already have revealed, turns out to be a story about big cats, particularly those big fellows that inhabit the spacious cat house of the Chicago Zoölogical park, commonly known as the Brookfield zoo.

First a few words about the Brookfield zoo residence of the big cats. We do not know definitly whether it is the finest of its kind in the world, but we can imagine none more perfectly designed, more completely equipped, or more scientifically ventilated and lighted. Within it, along one whole side, are clean, roomy cages—a large number of them. On the exterior, and connecting with the cages on the inside, are four huge, barless inclosures in which the captive animals live very much the life that they would have in their natural state.

Surrounded by picturesque masonry, shaped to imitate great natural rocks, the beasts in the inclosure loll at ease in the sunlight or exercise when they wish. There is plenty of room for exercising. The visitor sees the animals as though they were at liberty in his next-door neighbor's garden—no bars between. But he knows there is no danger, for between him and the creatures, across the front of each open inclosure, is a concrete-lined ditch 25 feet wide and 22½ feet deep. The outer edge of the ditch (that toward the spectators) is three feet higher at its lowest points than is the inner edge.

Robert Bean, assistant director of the Brookfield zoo, and son of the director, Edward H. Bean, says the width and depth of the ditch are more than ample — provide a very wide margin of safety. He points out that lions could be held safely with a much narrower ditch, but that the greater width is used before all of the four inclosures so that various species may be switched around from one inclosure to another. They take their turns. The 25-foot width provides absolute security against the escape of tigers, though in some other zoos a narrower ditch has been found sufficient to discourage attempts at escape on the part of the great striped beasts.

Cubs Hidden Away by Jealous Mothers

At the Brookfield zoo only the lions, tigers, and jaguars are permitted the liberties of the outdoor inclosures, which, as mentioned before, are connected with the inner cages. Between the cages and the outer inclosures, in the passageways through the imitation rocks, are retiring dens. It is in these that the young of the cat house are born and in which they are hidden from the public by their jealous mothers until they are old enough to frolic about. There is good reason why the leopards and pumas are not allowed the freedom of the open inclosures, according to Robert Bean. Those lighter, more active animals could swarm up the sides of the rocks and could get out in a twinkling.

With present facilities requiring that the more active animals, leopards and pumas, be kept indoors, it is planned there to erect some time in the near future a great open-air cage for the lesser of the big cats. This would be somewhat like an aviary in appearance, would be divided into sections for the different animals, and each section would have within it a retiring den into which the animal or animals could retreat for warmth and rest.

The barless cage idea, of which the Brookfield zoo's cat house presents one of the most modern examples, originated with Ursus Eggenschwieler of Zurich, Switzerland, a painter of animals. He had constructed a private zoo employing barless cages. The Blackpool, England, zoo borrowed the plan, and then the Hagenbecks of Germany adopted it. Finally it traveled to America. Adaptations of the idea are seen in many of the buildings other than the cat house at the Brookfield zoo — the bear pits, the pachyderm house, and some of the abodes of the smaller animals.

In the cat house at Brookfield are 20 or 21 lions. The number still was uncertain at the time this was written because of the fact that members of a newly born litter, hidden away in a retiring den by the mother, had not been counted. Robert Bean was of the opinion that there were three in the litter, or possibly four. This explodes the old idea that a lioness gives birth to but a single cub at a time.

Of the tigers there are ten, including a pair of Sumatra tigers, the male 24 years old; six western or Turkestan tigers, three adults and three cubs born last May 7; and a pair of young adult Bengal tigers.

There also are in the cat house two male black leopards, but none at the present of the spotted or ordinary variety (they all are of the same species—the black representing only a color phase of the ordinary type); a pair of pumas captured in Colorado and formerly residents of George Getz's private zoo; and a pair of adult jaguars captured in Brazil. The zoo some months ago had a lone spotted leopard, which was sent to another zoo as a mate for a lonely leopardess. There is a considerable exchange of animals among the zoos of the country.

Of the lions there are 14 adults and young adults and six or seven cubs. Five of the males are adult animals, two being fully grown. These last named were taken in a wild state, one captured as a cub in Abyssinia and the other in Kenya Colony. Nearly all of the lions one sees in zoos are born in captivity. Robert Bean thinks that breeding strains of some of the lions now seen in our zoos and circuses run back perhaps as far as the days of ancient Rome, when the creatures were bred for combat and exhibition in the great gladiatorial arenas. Park-raised lions are larger and weigh more than animals taken wild. The biggest lion in the zoo weighs about 600 pounds.

Tiger Group Said to Be Best in Country

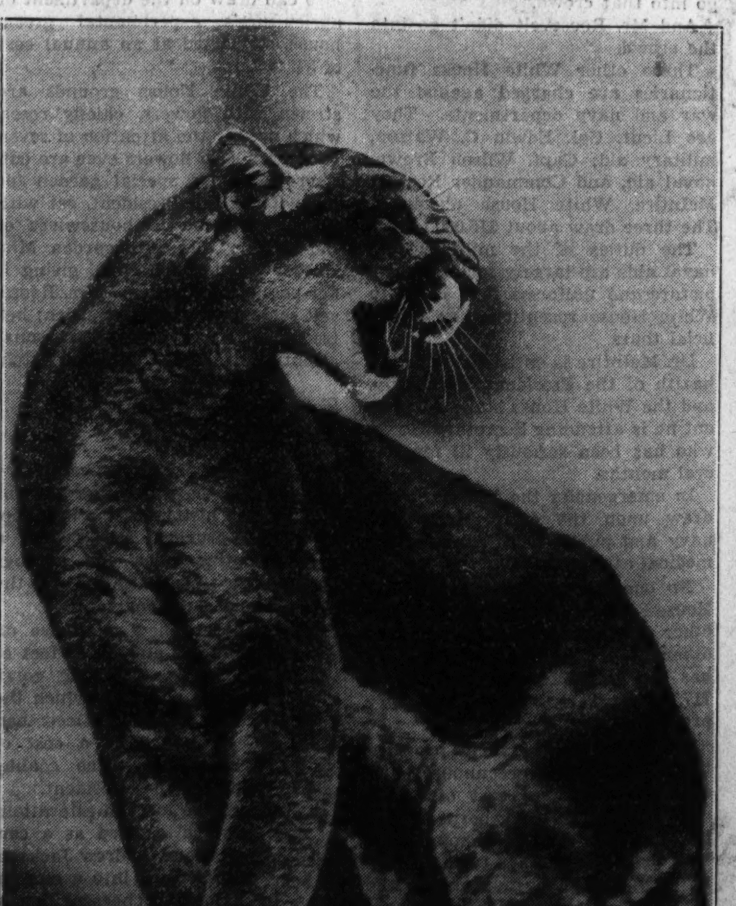
The tiger collection at Brookfield is said to be the best in the country. It represents three distinct races of the animal—two of the now rather rare type found in the island of Sumatra, two of the type still carrying on depredations in the jungles of India, and six of the kind that inhabits Turkestan. The western or Turkestan tiger is the equal, according to Mr. Bean, of the celebrated Manchurian tiger both in size and in length and richness of pelt. Of all the inhabitants of the cat house only the adult Turkestan tigers are permitted to range in open inclosures the year around, though the other tigers and the lions are allowed to enjoy the outdoors through the crisp days of autumn and the early days of spring.

Once at Brookfield the Sumatra tigers were placed in an inclosure with the Indian tigers. In the rumpus that followed the 24-year-old Sumatran male was the aggressor. Tigers and lions, of course, under ordinary circumstances never share the same cage in a zoo, though there has been successful experimentation in Munich and other places in the production of hybrid animals, the result of crossing lions with tigresses. Mr. Bean believes that in a fight to a finish between a fully grown lion and a fully grown tiger the tiger would come out the victor. The biggest tiger at Brookfield is just about as heavy as the biggest lion there. Tigresses do not make as good mothers as lionesses, according to the assistant director.

Breakfast in the cat house at Brookfield consists of milk and cod liver oil. All the cats get it. The oil keeps them healthy. The milk is of the canned variety. For the evening meal the cats get beef-heart one day, liver the next. Green bone meal, three or four ounces of it, also is fed to the beasts by making an incision in the meat and concealing the meal in it. A full-grown tiger or lion gets eight pounds of beef daily, except on Friday, when there is no evening meal. Smaller animals get less in proportion to their size. The plan is to substitute horse meat soon for beef. Horse meat is considered more easily digestible for carnivorous animals. Six pounds of it is considered the equal of eight pounds of beef. Heretofore horse meat has been difficult to obtain in sufficient quantities for the zoo.

When it is found necessary—which is not often—to give an inmate of the cat house a dose of medicine, the physician or veterinarian on the case and the keepers are compelled to use deception, for a big cat does not like medicine and is difficult to trick. The remedy is hidden in an incision in a chunk of meat. If the cat is hungry he gets it. If not, he passes up that portion of the meat in which it is hidden.

Though Edward H. Bean, a veteran animal man, and his son have supervision over all the beasts, birds, and reptiles of the zoo, the inhabitants of the cat house are under the direct attention of Herman Kinast, senior keeper, and his assistant, Henry Fara.



Cowardly raider of the rancher's calf pens in its natural state and fearful of all mankind, the puma in captivity is a beautiful beast to behold. It is so lithe and graceful. Its range once included the very territory upon which the Chicago Zoological park now stands.

THIS BOY JOE

By Booth Tarkington

Joe Sees Madge with Another Man and Turns to Anita Blythe—He Senses a Growing Fondness for Her

THE STORY TO DATE

Joe Hadley is a sentimental high school student of the small town of Aurora, Ind. His mother has recently died. His father is a state senator. While he is at the capital Joe's sister Emma tries to keep watch over Joe, as does his Uncle Milt, his mother's brother, who lives with them and on them. Joe meets Madge Alterbeck and her chum, Mabel Benns, at a roadhouse in Columbia City, where he is taken by his sporting friend, Yeastie Marshall. Yeastie is driving a new car, which he tells Joe is a gift from his family. Joe falls for the cheap glamor of Madge and desires to convert her to a higher life. Ben Webster, a detective, appears at the roadhouse. Yeastie hustles Joe away, leaving the car behind. Next day he sends Joe back for the car. On the way back to Aurora Joe is followed by a man in a shabby touring car. He leaves the car on a side street for Yeastie to pick up. His father is having trouble, having gone against a crooked bill sponsored by Gus Cooper, the town boss. He returns home a broken man, to die soon after. Joe calls on Madge and proposes marriage, but she doesn't take him seriously. His sister Emma is soon to marry Edgar Morrison.

INSTALMENT VI.

WHEN Uncle Milt got through he gave Edgar's hand a last jerky shake, sniffled suddenly, turned away, and sat down, with his face working. Edgar was a good fellow; he was embarrassed, but Uncle Milt almost had him crying, too; and the truth is that although one part of myself, as I looked on, was skeptical, another part of me got emotional, and in spite of me I was a little blinky. I had the queerest thought—but it was true—that if Emma and I both died, why, now Edgar Morrison would inherit Uncle Milt from us. Not that Uncle Milt was planning any such thing and working for it—not a bit of it! but somebody would always inherit him; somebody always just would.

Another thing; if a stranger'd been looking on at this scene he'd have thought Edgar Morrison owed everything in the world to Uncle Milt, instead of the way the facts ran, which was that from time to time Uncle Milt had already been quietly borrowing a little odd cash from Edgar and naturally would now expect to borrow a little more—and probably still some more after Edgar'd become actually his nephew-in-law.

One evening they got to talking about something that stirred me up so that I just couldn't stand it. I felt I'd have to do something about it, and I did.

They weren't speaking of anything that was connected with my thoughts—not on the face of it. Uncle Milt mentioned that the Ancaster Tile company had gone into bankruptcy and that Mr. Jackson Blythe had been appointed receiver.

"I'd spoken to a few of my friends about that receivership," Uncle Milt said. "Purely mercantile operations have very little interest for me, but I thought a receivership like that would be worth considering—worth considering. I told my friends I could find the time for it now—I don't mean I meant to bring any particular pressure to bear, but if it came my way I'd accept it. I suppose Cooper heard I'd been speaking of it, and, of course, he knows what I think of him, so he threw his influence for Jackson Blythe. I'd never in the world have accepted it at Cooper's hands, and I understand Cooper virtually dictated the appointment."

EDGAR MORRISON spoke dryly. "Yes, of course. Everybody knows Cooper's influence made Jackson Blythe receiver of the Ancaster Tile company—Blythe's Cooper's lawyer. It's a pity; if that company could have held on till the depression lifted a little they'd have had a big thing—it's a great property. Now in the end Cooper'll get control of it—Cooper and Jackson Blythe together. Of course, there'll be big fees and other nest-feathering, for good measure, in the meantime. That's my private opinion."

"O, yes," Uncle Milt said easily. "It's a good many people's private opinion; but that sort of thing's natural—shrewd men take advantage of their opportunities, of course. I'm not disposed to make an issue of it or to quarrel with Jackson Blythe because he's been preferred over me. I trust I'm man enough to congratulate him, and I sincerely do, if only for the sake of his charming daughter. A very superior girl, very superior!"

"Yes," Edgar admitted. She is, indeed. Especially, I think, she's superior to her father."

Uncle Milt's generosity of spirit toward his successful rival went on being showed off. "Now, now, my boy! Jackson Blythe's not a bad man, not a bad man at all. A touch of the damage suit lawyer, granted, but able—able in his profession and able in politics. I bear him no grudge; not the slightest."

"Anita seems to me a splendid girl," Emma said. "She's really very superior to the other younger girls, everybody says."

Good old Uncle Milt looked at me, too, a little sidewise. "Yes, a lovely girl. A lovely girl in form and face—in face and in form—and'll make some young man a splendid helpmeet—ah—a few years from now, a splendid helpmeet!"

I WANTED to break out yelling at them. I wanted to yell in their faces: "Are you all crazy? Don't you see what you're doing to me? Hinting around at me about a spiritual, intellectual girl like Anita Blythe—and me all drying up inside on account of Madge Alterbeck because I can't get the dazzle of her out of my mind!"

That's why I went down there to the boarding house again about half an hour later.

I was within about fifty feet of her stepmother's house when Madge came out of the gate with a man—a tallish, stooping man who looked to be about twenty-five years old and had on a light suit and a gray fedora hat with a black band on it, all springish and sporty. They were both chewing gum fast and chattering and swinging their arms and laughing as they walked along together, and neither of them noticed me any more than they did the telegraph pole I stopped and stood by while they went right past me. "Hon, I'm simply overcame!" I heard Madge saying to him. Her voice sounded to me like a dreadful cackling. "If you ain't the wisecracker, though! Just wait till I and you——"

He said something then, I couldn't tell what, because they'd begun to hurry and were laughing. I didn't hear any more. I was a wreck inside, all shot to pieces. "All right," I said, "I'll show you!"

I meant that since she treated me so, now I'd go and see Anita. I seemed to think that somehow that would "show" Madge Alterbeck.

It was still early in the evening, only about a quarter after eight, and when I got back to the sidewalk along in front of Anita Blythe's house I could hear her piano going, and I stopped and stood a minute, listening, before I went in.

She'd been playing duets with little Amy Quorn from next door, and Amy started right in to be funny about my coming. "O, la, la, la!" she said, pretending to be French. "I'd better make myself scarce! The first time in my life I ever heard of the great woman hater, Mr. J. Hadley, coming to see any girl all by himself! Why, Anita!"

"I don't pretend to be a woman hater," I told her when she stopped laughing at how funny she thought she'd just been. "I trust——" I stopped, because I wanted to say something that would be dignified repartee; but I couldn't think of anything. I only said, "I trust——" again and stopped, out of vacancy.

Then Amy whooped and did some more of her O-la-la-la French, and after a minute hopped out and went home.

Anita was serious. "You look pale and sad," she said. "Is anything the matter?"

"No," I told her. "I just thought I'd drop in a little while, if you don't mind."

"I don't," she said, and didn't say anything more right away. Then she said she was sure something was the matter with me, but I kept telling her "No," so after a while she asked me if I wouldn't like her to play to me; I said I wished she would, and she did.

If I'd live to be an old man I'd never forget sitting there listening, and how she and the grand piano looked, and that side of the room, too, behind her.

The room seemed part of Anita's playing, too—one side of it all long book shelves and everything cool and shadowy, with only one picture, a painting of a cathedral, that I knew must be pretty fine.

She told me what she was playing; said some was Chopin and that one piece I didn't understand and didn't feel up to was César Franck, and another I liked, maybe because I thought I'd heard it before, was Rachmaninoff's Prelude.

She played almost all evening to me, and then just before I left she stopped and talked a little. She looked at me in her serious way and said, "Really, couldn't you tell me what's troubling you?"

I told her, "Why, nothing!" and tried to laugh in an offhand way and said good night and went home.

Anita was one of the few Emma invited to the wedding. It was at home in our sitting room, not in church, and couldn't have been much less of a show-off occasion, except that Uncle Milt had talked so much about giving away the bride Emma had to include that part of the ceremony to keep from hurting his feelings. He made more out of it, too, when he did it than anybody ever did before or ever will again, I expect. He stepped forward as if doing something military, and when he took Emma's hand to give it to Edgar he lifted it 'way up like going to dance the minuet with her, then he gave a great loud, short sigh that could have been heard out in the hall and swept poor Emma's hand down to Edgar's—they just seemed paralyzed.

Emma and Edgar were away less than a week; it was the night before they came back that Madge Alterbeck called me.

We'd had to let old Anna go after my father died, but Emma'd taken her back just before the wedding, and now we were going to keep on having her. Uncle Milt and I were in the sitting room, and I heard the telephone ring and Anna answering it. "Who? No, this is Anna. It's Anna. Who? Mr. Hadley's dead. O, the young one. I'll see."

I lost my breath. Only one person I could think of would have asked for me as "Mr. Hadley"; I had the shakes by the time I got to the telephone. "Do you want me?" I asked into it.

"Listen, that depends!" There was a laugh, and it was Madge Alterbeck's voice. "If you're Mr. H., you're the one I want. Say, listen, I'm loose tonight and kind of got the droops or something. If you want to take that walk we were talking about, I'd just as soon. How you feel about it?"

"Yes, I want to!"

"All right, then, hon. Say, listen. I'm at Gerling's drug store. You know, corner Decatur and Second. If you want to come by for me right pronto I'll wait here for you. Sure you want to?"

"Yes, I am!"

"All right, High School, don't get mad. Be seeing you!"

I didn't have any breath left when I went plunging into Gerling's drug store, and certainly that was more from excitement than it was from the speed I'd put on. She was sitting on a stool at the soda counter, finishing an orangeade and talking to the hard-boiled looking old man in a dirty white coat that did the soda jerking there, and she only looked 'round when I came in and gave me a casual wave of the hand, meaning she'd be ready in a minute.

SHE frowned and pulled on the straw, finishing what was at the bottom of the glass with a loud, bubbling sound, and, standing there getting my breath back and waiting for her, I had again that same feeling of disappointment in her looks she gave me when she first came into the parlor at her stepmother's—almost wondered what all the fuss I'd been making over her in my inside was about.

She stood up. "Say, listen," she said to the clerk. "If he rings up, you tell him I've moved or something; you don't know where, see?" She started toward me, then stopped and looked back at him again. "And say, look, don't get mixed up, Simp. You find out if it's him first, because if it's So-and-So—you know—puts in a ring for me, you take the message and tell him I'll ring him back; see, Pop?"

"Got you, dearie," he said, wiping up the counter; and then she came and all of a sudden gave me the brightest kind of a smile and put her arm through mine—and that stopped the disappointment.

When we were out in the street she slid her arm along a little farther and put her fingers through in between mine.

"I wish you meant that," I said, just barely able to speak. "Where—where you want to go, Madge?"

She laughed. "I don't care." We began to walk along just aimlessly. "I don't expect you got much of that forty cents left, High School?"

"No," I told her. "I haven't got any. I had a dollar and a half last week, but it's all gone now. What made you call me up, Madge?"

I COULDN'T tell, but in the dark it seemed to me she was thoughtful and prettty moody when she answered: "I don't know. I didn't have anything else to do. I get awful sour on sitting around at my stepmother's sometimes—she gripes me. Besides, there was one or two things I wanted to ask you."

"What! Ask me, Madge? You don't mean you've ever thought about me? You don't mean you've——"

"Uh-huh," she said affirmatively. "Yes, I have. Uh-huh."

"When? When did you ever——"

"Say, listen," she said. "I don't always feel like razzing and making big whoopee over nothing. I don't always; honest, I don't. Sure there was something I wanted to ask you. Couple o' things."

"What?"

"Listen," she said. "I guess you forgot all about the way you took on that night you blah-blahed to me so goofy. You know—all about our getting engaged for the bands of matrimony and all that squirrel talk. Forgot all that, ain't you, huh?"

"No," I said, but I swallowed. There was a serious sound to her voice that made me nervous all of a sudden. I'd been in the wildest kind of earnest about giving my life to her, but now that all at once it seemed to me maybe she was going to let me, I began to be scared. "No, I haven't forgotten." And then, before I knew it, I went on. "I meant every word I said, Madge."

"Think so?"

"Yes, every word, Madge!"

"Out of high school yet?"

"Almost," I told her. "It's just a matter of days now."

"Going to have a job?"

"If there are any," I told her. "Madge, do you mean you——"

"Say, listen," she said, "I get the gripes awful sometimes. Mostly I'm 'way up in the air—bang-bang, what's the use? Let's all go haywire, see? Then there's other times like tonight when I'm down and get to thinking."

I felt more dashed. "That's when you think of me, Madge—when you're down?"

"Yes," she said. "Lately I do sometimes, kind of. You did kind of put some ideas in my head, you know." She didn't say anything more for a minute; then she asked me, "Just how haywire was all that talk of yours?"

"It was sincere," I said, swallowing again. "I wouldn't have said it if I hadn't meant it."

"Honest? Still feel that way?"

"Yes, I do." My voice didn't sound quite natural. I didn't know how I felt, except that I had that queer kind of scare in me and yet wanted to go on walking with her fingers in mine like that. "Of course I do."

"All right," she said. "If you keep on wanting us to get tied up, I might. I don't say I wouldn't."

I tried to say what I thought was the right thing. "You mean you'll be engaged to me, Madge?"

"Well, I might." Her voice sounded sad, but had a queer sort of businesslike tone to it, too. "Something like that, if you're sure you mean it."

"You mean we are engaged, Madge?"

"Something like that, if you want. More or less so, if you say so. I guess I just as soon—I do get terrible gripes sometimes."

"Say, listen," she said. We'd come quite a distance from Second and Decatur by this time and were walking along the sidewalk that runs around Soldiers' Memorial plaza. That's a little park only a couple of blocks long and a block wide, with maple trees all around and some benches along the gravel paths and a weak little fountain the center. "Look," she said, "there's a bench we can sit on a while. My feet ain't fixed for too much walking, hon. Come on." So we turned in the gravel path and went to the bench she meant and sat down. Then she let go of my hand and pulled my arm around her. "This is nicer, ain't it, hon?"

I said yes, and I did like having my arm around her, but I was embarrassed and felt ashamed, too.

"Listen," Madge said. "There was something else I wanted to ask you, too, hon. You remember my telling you about that big shot around town Mabe Benns was talking so much about, and you said you knew who he was?"

"Yes, I rememoer." I gave a little jump, too, at the thought of Cooper again and what I meant to do about that when the time came. "What about him?"

"Well, listen," she said. "You sure you gave me the low-down on him, and he is as big a man as he tells Mabe he is?"

"Yes. That's one thing he isn't lying about."

"One thing?" she asked. "Then maybe he wouldn't be on the level about other things? That's funny, because that's the very thing he seems to play up the heaviest. It ain't so much what he comes right out with; it's just big talk like a man that owns pretty much everything and runs all the rest whether he owns it or not. I mean he doesn't come right out and say, 'Watch me, folks, 'cause I'm the goods!' but everything he spills seems to mean that. You know. Just spills it big, so you think you're with King Buzoo from Buzooville."

"With?" I said, and I took my arm away. "So you know him, too, do you? When were you with him?"

"High School!" She laughed at me and pulled my arm back again. "Listen, Brown Eyes, Mabe's my buddy. You don't think I'd want to step in and cop her big future, do you? I'm not taking anything away from Mabe, I can tell you; she's the best ever! Yes, I met him, because he took her and I out to Street Car park one night and bought us sandwiches at the barbecue there, and the way he talked you'd thought it was the Aurora Biltmore full-course dinner. That's the way I mean he talks all the time, and Mabe just as soon I'm along when it's him any time. What he makes you think is that he's your rich uncle or grandpa that used to be president of the Philippine Islands, and just stick to him and you'll wear a mink coat and have a couple personal maids!" Madge giggled. "All paternal, didn't I tell you, see? Mabe and I are both sure he wears full uppers! You taking your arm away on account of that old berry!" She pulled my arm tighter so that I was close to her. "Ain't you my own High School now?" she asked me.

She was smiling, I could see, because her face was so near to mine, and I knew she thought I might want to kiss her, and I could.

An Open Letter to Nelson Eddy

Dear Nelson: You have an exceptionally strong set of vibrations in your horoscope, including ability to weather almost every kind of storm that can occur in a human lifetime. I said "almost." The outstanding exception is a storm that could arise from within your being, not a tangible thing from your environment. Be on guard always against taking yourself too seriously, for such an attitude leads to the troubles of vanity. With best wishes, WYNN.

Claire Trevor, a charmer of the films whose latest releases are "Dante's Inferno" and "Black Sheep." Her first professional achievements were as a modeler of hats.

Above: Rita Cansino is a lady you watch with interest in "Dante's Inferno." Her specialty is dancing, an accomplishment which put her into the films.

Upper right corner: Claire Dodd, who went into the movies just to be doing something. Appeared first in "Whoopee," and since then in many productions.

Ruth Peterson, who has a small part in "Curly Top," Shirley Temple's new number, went on the stage when she was nine years old—playing child parts. She signed a Fox contract last year.

Meet Four Charmers of Beauty Gallery!

By MAE TINEE

GOOD morning, connoisseurs!

Welcome to our Gallery of Beautiful Women!

Today we present for your inspection the latest thing in portraits of four charming ladies who have a lot to do with making films box office attractions. You will recognize immediately, of course, the two Claires, Trevor and Dodd. Ruth Peterson appeared briefly in "Curly Top" with Shirley Temple. Rita Cansino you saw—or probably will see—dancing in "Dante's Inferno."

Fashions in femmes change like anything else, don't they? The fluffy, ruffly blonde of a few years ago has given way to the blonde with zip. The languorous, opulent, smoky-eyed brunette has been superseded by the lady with pep, personality, and poise.

Before you, then, are four Ladies of the New Era.

Claire Dodd says she doubts if she'd ever have been a movie actress if left to her own devices. Her parents had plenty of money, and she was not a bud upon whom ambition gnawed enough so that anybody would notice. But she had a friend. And the friend lived in California. And the friend said why on EARTH didn't Claire take a screen test.

So, just to be doing something, Claire eased over to one of the major studios. . . . And she's been doing something ever since. The screen test brought her a telegram requesting her to report for work in "Whoopee," which Flo Ziegfeld was producing for the screen with Eddie Cantor as star.

That over, she was in "Smiles"—a Ziegfeld stage production. After that—the movies . . . "The Match King," "Crooner," "Footlight Parade," "Lawyer Man," and many others.

Miss Dodd's hobby is—strangely enough for a woman—deep-sea fishing. She yerns "to land my first marlin." She loves to hike and cares nothing at all for food—which explains why she stays so slender. Sleep she can't get enough of, and they say she only uses creams and powders when it is necessary for professional makeup.

Claire Trevor became an actress with malice aforethought. After having been graduated from the public schools of Larchmont she entered the American Academy of Dramatic Arts to prepare herself for a theatrical career—and then she F-I-B-B-E-D! (Why, Miss Trevor!)

Yes! She started out to land a job, and thought it would be right cute to pretend she'd had a lot of experience. A willing ear was lent—because Claire, you will all agree, is a maid to whom one WOULD lend a willing ear—UNTIL she happened to mention a play which she'd never seen and which happened to have been produced by the man to whom she applied for a job! No, NOT so good . . .

Her first professional earnings, therefore, were made modeling hats. But a little girl trying to get along usually does get along in time. So first it was "stock," and then it was screen "shorts," and then it was "stock" again, and then it was the stage opposite Ernest Truex in "Whistling in the Dark." Then touring. Then the stage again—and then the movies.

Her latest releases are "Dante's Inferno" and "Black Sheep." You have seen her in "Baby, Take a Bow," "Hold That Girl," "Wild Gold," etc., etc.

She says that Mala, the Eskimo, is her favorite actor. (Can't you just hear Hollywood males anvil-chorusing at that!)

What about Rita Cansino?

Well—she was christened MARGArita Cansino, to begin with. She was educated in the public schools of New York and Los Angeles, and danced at the Foreign club in Tia Juana, Mexico, for seven months. After which time she was signed up for screen work. Her hobby is stamp collecting.

Miss Cansino had the rôle of Carmen in "Pampas Moon," and she is a lady you watch with interest in "Dante's Inferno" and "Charlie Chan in Egypt."

Her parents, by the way, are both professionals.

(If you're interested in the dress she's wearing—it's richly colored crêpe with a contrasting eyelet trim. The hat's of felt.)

Ruth Peterson—who has a small part in "Curly Top," Shirley Temple's new number—went on the stage when she was nine years old—playing child parts. Did you see "Hindle Wakes," a foreign production? Well, she was in that.

Along about 1934 she was signed to a Fox contract—and now we shall see what the future holds for little Miss Peterson.

Which concludes our Gallery tour for the morning.

Come again!

New Heights Predicted for U. S. Dance

Balanchine Thinks Our Terpsichorean Art Now Approaches Greatness.

By Edward Moore.

"THE American dance is regaining the glamorous estate attained by history making ballets of the past," says George Balanchine. He is the director of the American ballet, which is to take over the dance features of the Metropolitan Opera this season, and is also to visit Chicago for a brief engagement.

Mr. Balanchine is a graduate of the ballet school of Russia. Now in New York, he has been able to evolve something that seems to be new in the dance. With the Russian technic as a basis, he is reported as building American ideas thereon, and, it is added, with much success. In fact, he insists that he is more American than the most of the American dancers, because he has gone through all the foreign ideas and is looking for new ones, while they, or the most of them, are still looking to Europe.

"Americans are interested in the dance," he says, "and because of definite similarities in esthetic pursuits which prevail in Russia and this country, the dance will flourish here. There is that love of bigness that is so important in the ballet. The skyscrapers, vast fields, gigantic machines—all make for thrilling spectacles.

Evolves American Variations of Classic Form.

"American themes occupy a prominent place in our répertoire and have tempered our technic so that already there are distinctly American variations of the classic form. Moreover, the native talent is splendid. We have gifted dancers possessing promising potentialities. Many are technically skilful, and others gifted with great imagination are capable of becoming talented maitres de ballet."

Mr. Balanchine's definition of the ballet is interesting. "It is pictorial, but it is more than that," he says. "It expresses movement beautifully. It appeals to the eye and to the ear. It is a synthesis of color, movement, and music. No other art form accomplishes this as purely and simply as the ballet.

"But if ideas emanate from the dance, they are implications only. The primary appeal is to the senses. In my opinion that is all the dance should strive for."

Dudley Hails Chicagoland Music Festival.

Out of the communications to the music desk these are selected. A telegram from William Alvin Dudley delivered a week ago and referring to the Chicagoland Music Festival says: "Tonight's program at Soldiers' field is another great event in the musical demonstration sponsored by your paper for the last five years. My family and I have journeyed down to Soldiers' field to enjoy this wonderful musical program. I am sure that these annual musical programs sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are directly responsible for the musical programs now being given by the park district of Chicago. May I say to you that the citizens of the city and the strangers within our gates surely appreciate the wonderful programs initiated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

From David Nyvall Jr., director of the Chicago Lutheran A Cappella choir:

"As a tribute to Dr. Frederick Stock and as an expression of civic pride in our distinguished fellow citizen and the great orchestra he conducts, may I propose that the citizens of Chicago by popular subscription send them on a good will tour to the music centers of Europe. May I suggest that the 800,000 school children be given an opportunity to add their mite to this fund."

Asks for One More Program of Symphonic Music.

From K. M. Loewy, relayed through Vox Pop: "I should like to ask the management of the Grant park concerts if it is not possible to present us with another program made up of purely symphonic music. Lately the programs played by the various musical organizations were of lighter character, primarily operatic, with many repetitions of works that have been played before a good many times.

"I am sure that there are a great many Grant park concert fans who, like myself, would be pleased beyond measure by the announcement of a program similar to those so admirably played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the beginning of the month. That great body of artists having completed its engagement, we would choose the Chicago Civic Opera orchestra, led by that greatly talented young 'symphoniker,' Henry Weber, to play for us a program made up of works by Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn, Schubert, etc. Perhaps Edward Moore could use his good offices toward that end."

Parnell in Drama.

Robinson Smith and Frederick W. Ayer, a new producing firm, will make its bow on Broadway this fall with "Parnell," by Elsie Schauffler. The play deals with the life of the great Irish leader, his fight for home rule, his political association with Gladstone, his relations with Katherine O'Shea.

"EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT"

Native French Make Paris Gay This Summer

By Cousin Eve.

Across Europe by Motor . . . We are met, in Paris, at the Gare du Nord; happily! A smartly PARIS smocked chauffeur in white and blue directs the ruffian who handles our luggage. The limousine is a pale, perfect color neither green nor gray, with black hood, and the streets are alive with new taxis, pea green, streamlined. There are many new buildings, style moderne. We nip along the grand boulevards, by the Madeleine, into the Champs Elysées. The air is electric, and over all—the rosy light of Paris. Glamor!

Faces seem all French. One sees an entirely new sight, Paris full of French people, subdued, leisurely. The old charm of its queer roofs and gray streets seizes one. It is like listening to a half forgotten, well loved sonata, a combination of sounds and fancies that vibrate the heart strings. The Bois de Boulogne so green; such full foliage. On the left Longchamps. I ask Herman Gade what about this midnight racing? Do horses run faster by electric light? A man I know in London had come over, had dined well, lost his bets, and reveled in the novelty of the scene.

St. Cloud Most Delightful Place in Paris Sector.

St. Cloud and its fountains; the front courtyard of Louis XIV.'s country house, Versailles, as restored by John D. Rockefeller Jr.; and soon after we are rounding into the cobbled court of the Château Mesnil St. Denis. Wide borders of rose pink geraniums brighten the old stones.

It is a marvelous place, with the most charming, informal hospitality in all the Paris sector.

My room had a fascinating vista of an old cobbled farm yard. On the left, a tower where pigeons congregate, a huge, ancient clock on the stone wall, and clatter of sabots on the pave. A noble farm bell by my window which I longed to ring. We motored to Chartres Sunday by shaded roads and yellow harvested fields, passing Mme. de Maintenon's house at Maintenon. This 14th century château with steep slate roof and three round towers, is reflected in the Eure. It has a certain air of propriety; or does the thought of Mme. de Maintenon make it seem so? Now the property of Duc de Noailles.

Fugues Underscore Beauty of Chartres Cathedral.

Soon we saw on the left, mistily over the plain, the towering, marvelous Cathedral of Chartres. Its spires are of widely varying periods, and frankly not mates.

Entering and supreme joy of joys! Organ music was pealing out from its lofty Gothic arches as from the high heavens.

To the beauty of blue glass windows of the 12th century, whose secret is lost to the world, to the incomparable 14th century stone carving of the screens, is added the poignant glory of an ancient fugue. One absolutely reels under so much beauty.

Walked with lovely Alice Gade in her walled gardens, all locked from the wicked world. Its long allées grow everything, artichokes and peas, asparagus and eggplants, strawberries and raspberries. Peaches ripen low on a palier. On the branches of the cherry trees, a new gadget, the black face of a cat with rolling glass eyes to frighten birds. It was so cold we sat o' nights in the library facing the portrait of the former owner, a red haired playboy of Louis XIV.'s court, with long ringlets. His saying, "Those who love conjure dreams for themselves," is graven deep on the chimney piece.

Paris Brings On a Pain in the Pocketbook.

Paris is expensive. One had a severe pain in the pocketbook all the time. Which fortunately wasn't long, because of a highly enchanting invitation to motor to Brussels to the exposition. Then to continue across Europe to the fair city of Trieste, where I was going. One hopped at this like a drowning man clutching a straw.

In Paris, tea one day at the Union Interalliée. This exclusive club, a gorgeous building with gardens running from Faubourg St. Honoré down to Avenue Gabriel, was formerly the residence of Baron Henri de Rothschild.

None but French people were taking tea on the graveled garden spaces, sitting at tables covered in pink, under navy blue umbrellas. French howling swells lounged in the library, sallow, lean men, the duc and marquis of this and that. The wizened but gallant General Thus and So. Much hand kissing of low voiced dowagers in dark silks.

Many sparrows made excitement by stealing from the plates of cake and chirping 'round the tables. The tea at Union Interalliée is terrible; a weak infusion of hay plus straw; but the style of the place is perfect. Lots of liveried footmen.

I hunted up my little dressmaker, kept under cover these few years not to be ruined by my fair compatriots. Just to see what the depression had done for her.

The crise had treated her nicely. She now makes clothes for Mrs. Stotesbury, Mrs. Dahlgren, Mrs. Harry Lehr, the Drexels and Morgans, and a Vanderbilt or two, she told me.

I bade her a sorrowful farewell.

It takes five hours to motor to

WAITS FOR HUSBAND'S GOLF GAME TO END

Mrs. Newton C. King finds knitting a pleasant way of keeping cool in the summer time while she waits at the Knollwood club for her husband to finish a golf game. She is the former Doris Bokum, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris D. Bokum of Chicago. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Brussels. The whole northeast of France was a vast wheat field as we tore along towards Soissons. On the same road taken by the heroic taxi cab army that saved Paris from the Germans twenty-one years ago. We slowly crossed the Marne, remembering that once it ran red, a river of blood of men.

I love to drive at sunset and in the twilight, and we had passed an infinity of neat Flemish villages, along splendid roads, before it was dark and we were in Brussels. The hotel was a swanky place; servitors in glorious liveries, white spats, white gloves. Deciding to dine at the exposition we seized a taxi cab and were off. On and on and on we sped through dark streets—no signs of the exposition and no bright lights. Asked the driver if he were going to Paris, and suddenly we arrived. Were stunned by the main portal, with its six great golden victories with outstretched arms to welcome us, and flying draperies.

Soon we were dashing into old Brussels to dine. It is a much larger edition of Chicago's Belgique. Pittoresque, with bigger and better cobbles to murder the feet. A huge square with platform for folk games, and palaces all about, while in the estaminets in the small side streets the riotous joy of the Flemish, with clog dancing, was rather terrifying.

Palace of Archdukes Gorgeous but Desolate.

We dined at the palace of the archdukes. A most beautiful, authentic palace, with tapestries, two orchestras, banks of hydrangeas, several score tables, and only six Belgian swells in the place, dancing with stiff decorum. It was a bitter night and the outdoor archducal ballroom, seen through the windows with its tables and place for cabaret, was quite empty. We enjoyed the sumptuous, if desolate, scene, the superlative food, and were not quite bankrupted by the bill.

Rushed back to the hotel by taxi cab. Asked the sulky driver wnat about the Invisible Eye which counts visitors who enter the gate? He said, rather wittily I thought, that it was, after all, the visitors who were invisible as well as the Eye.

But the Brussels fair of 1935, a centenary of railroading, is perfectly charming. Belgians do things most awfully well and there are too many things to delight the eye and intrigue the mind for me to enumerate. The fair is placed in a frame of magnificent tall trees. On one side the royal park of Laeken. The floral parterres of heliotrope, rose geraniums, and roses interspersed by feathery fountains, leading up a long slope to the permanent buildings, are beautiful. The walks are smooth, with many seats. An the top the Grand Palais is an architectural curiosity. Of glass, it is a terraced building, held by great arches of concrete on the inside. Here are displayed continental railroad trains of vivid green and red, outstreamlining the earth itself. This remains. There I saw exhibited several marvelous screens of white glass, made in squares with repoussé design, framed in metal.

Treasures of Netherlands Art on Impressive Parade.

On the right the Museum of Old Arts, and here go poor and rich, young and old, to the most remarkable collection of Netherlandish art ever assembled. The greatest examples of the greatest artists are here. Also a superb French room, with French furnishings as well.

Of Brussels tapestries there are four of the finest and most perfect known, and four from the Wawel in Poland, ordered by Sigismund Augustus. There are collections of silver and gold plate, and primitives of rare color and preservation. Also an English room with glorious portraits from private collections, and Chippendale pieces to make collectors tear their hair. There is an interesting modern art exhibit. Every country in Europe but two has a building—Germany and Russia. The United States also kept aloof.

The fair copied our Chicago idea of music in the air, with loud speaker effects. But instead of jaz and musical mush, hymns come bursting forth at all hours. The most amazing building is a church of Byzantine effect, with huge brassy bronzy obelisks, like towers—it tells inside of Catholic missions and such, has a fine organ, daily church services and preachments.

Belgians Have Engaging Ideas About Food.

The beautiful model farm and dairy will remain. The Belgian Congo was stunning and one pays one's devoirs to the restaurants, which are faultless. "La Vie Est Belle" was my favorite, a dear little cream colored place with balconies. Where we sat was a grove of gorgeous trees and tiny motorboats for two dashing round the little lake in circles.

Lunching elsewhere one day, the waiter urged a certain dessert upon us—it was wild strawberries, raspberries, shreds of orange, shreds of pineapple, iced, with clotted cream. Belgians know all about food.

It is a young exposition, full of novel, interesting ideas, and sponsored ardently by the handsome, idealistic young king, Leopold III. An exhibition gate is named for lovely Nordic Queen Astrid.

The exposition cost 65 million francs and is certain to lose money. The cold weather has been forbidding. But on every hand are lottery tickets. One at fifty francs offers 110,000 money prizes, the largest being for 2,500,000 francs. Everybody seems to be buying lottery tickets, so probably in the end there will be plenty of cash on hand.

One did not see a dozen Americans in Brussels.

German Mark Develops Strange Caprices.

The road to the German frontier at Aix-la-Chapelle is fairly interesting. Here in his favorite spa Charlemagne died in 814 and was buried seated upon a marble throne. Three hundred and fifty years later Frederick Barbarossa opened the tomb, removed the throne, and reburied Charlemagne lying down. Thirty-seven German emperors were crowned here.

I had my troubles with a frontier agent who was curious about everybody's money. It seems there are two kinds of German marks. One kind gives us two marks forty-seven pfennigs for a dollar. The other kind, bought out of Germany, four marks for one dollar. Of these one may spend only fifty a day. They are called reichsmarks.

My story was that I had express checks. I had to show them, and the agent spent hours copying down their numbers. Not that they were so many but the numbers were so long. And meanwhile scores of people were forming in line cursing inwardly and outwardly.

The Rhine was beautiful that day, and we struck in from a magnificent new motor road, hard and wide, at Bonn. And then onwards towards Frankfort, by those robber castles, and red roofed villages and changing banks of the noble stream that somehow make the heart sing.

At Coblenz our chauffeur, who had been an American aviator in the war, became oppressed. It seems that he, with twenty other bombers, had had Coblenz spaced off for bombing when the armistice came. To him it was still an unfinished job. Opposite Ehrenfels, on rock ledges in the river, a round tower with little towerlets called the Mouse Tower, where Archbishop Hatto of Mayence was eaten alive by rodents after he had burned to death a crowd of famine stricken peasants. "Every day the starving poor crowded round Bishop Hatto's door," runs the legend.

Frankfurt Captures Traveler's Affections.

On the road to Frankfurt, in the early twilight, we passed our third terrible motorcycle accident—three men lying dead. Frankfurt is a delightful, pleasant town. Great wealth has been lavished to make it beautiful; the streets are wide, the houses are majestic, and in the old Jewish quarter the Rothschild family originated. The wealthy sporting Oppenheims still live there, of whom Baron Max of Berlin is a noted archaeologist.

I enjoyed my stay in Frankfurt. Why does one like one town and dislike another? There is a pretty outdoor theater, a little stadium draped in flowering vines. The stage is the portico of an old house. For classical plays. Goethe was born in Frankfurt.

We reached Munich through a gorgeous panorama of landscape. Forests, tall pine forests, green glades, cozy villages, brigades of geese. We saw no soldiers, no signs of war, only marching geese everywhere. The goose belt. Passed through ravishing towns, Kissingen, Bismarck's favorite spa, and Ratisbon, where there was a famous peace or something, and the medieval houses are as beautiful now as if new. And such a cathedral!

We skirted the old walls of Nuremberg, paused to lunch there, or perhaps it was to take coffee and proceeded to eat up the road until we were passing at a smart pace into Munich at dusk. Unknown to us, Munich was having horse races, a horse show, grand opera, and crowds never so great since the war. The soft air, wide streets, parks and flower gardens, its statues and monuments were thrilling. We were running rapidly behind two motors. Suddenly a great commotion. Men in the last car waved frantically at us shouting to keep back, to retire, to get off the earth, and vanish. A great yellow lantern hung at the rear left end. I seemed to remember it was the sign of Hitler and called to the chauffeur. Just then a cyclist hissed "Hitler" at us, and turning out we raced rapidly in the opposite direction.

Our route lay through Salzburg, a charming country road, all pines and vistas of distant mountains. Salzburg was full of people, and but few Americans. Many English. We heard "Falstaff," led by Toscanini, with Dusolina Zianinni, Virgilio Lazzari, and Ezio Pinza; an all Italian Scala company. Our hard seats cost $10.25, or 51 shillings. "Everyman" was given that Sunday night, and a cathedral concert of ecclesiastical music at 11 in the morning. All of these events figure high for the American purse.

Thornton Wilder, Gertrude Stein, Alice B. Toklas Make Up Party.

At the Hotel Europe, as we were leaving, along came the Cornelius Cranes with a luncheon party of various friends, among them Carleton Smith, on his way to Russia for an orgy of Russian drama. The Cranes are summering in Salzburg, and in a few days Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swift and Bobsey Goodspeed are due. Somebody had run upon Thornton Wilder traveling with Gertrude Stein—at Geneva, I think it was. And, of course, Alice B. Toklas.

I must tell about Bad Gastein. High up in the highest Alps lots of people take their cares there. We upped and upped till we arrived and found what it is all about. A dashing, uproarious waterfall is the center of everything, and clustered round it houses and hotels, shops and restaurants, on scores of levels and jutting crags. Narrow streets full of people, largely men. Seems it makes you young again, rejuvenating place, and all that sort of thing. Few Americans. Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris was passing through, and we went one morning to visit Lady Henriette Davis at her hotel. She was bored with Gastein and intended to leave; thought the visitors were queer looking; had said as much to the maharajah of Kapurthala. Said he: "Really, I never saw in my life such ugly women." Said Lady Davis: "And I never saw so many ugly men." Said the maharajah: "Why prolong their lives anyway, all these people?" Going out we met the maharajah in the lift, a tall, slim, upstanding figure in bathrobe and slippers, with grizzled hair, clipped mustache, and magnificent teeth. Looking just a teeny bit sunburned.

In spite of the absence of Venuses and Adonises at Bad Gastein I quite like the place and would go back some time if only it would stop raining. The hotels are grand. And at night the raging thunder of the waterfall and sparkling lights of the spa make it seem extraordinarily splendid, unreal.

Watch Hill Society Turns Attention to Music and Sports

WATCH HILL, R. I.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers is among the patronesses of a series of musicals presented at Mystic, Conn. The first featured Miss Muriel Keer of New York, well known pianist, and was held Friday afternoon. Mrs. Oren E. Taft was hostess at a dinner party at the Taft home, Cedar Brae, Wednesday evening.

The Men's Golf club championship started Monday of this week at the Misquamicut Golf club. Frank Hibbard and Hubbard Phelps were among the contestants.

The Governor's ball took place Saturday evening at the Misquamicut Golf club. All prizes for all winners in all events in golf and tennis during the season were awarded before the dancing started.

A meeting of the board of the club was held in the morning and officers for the coming year elected.

Mrs. Louise DeKoven Phelps tied with Hunter Marston of New York for second place in the Sunday afternoon putting contest held at the Misquamicut Golf club.

Tentative plans are now being made for the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the inception of the Misquamicut Golf club on Aug. 28.

The Watch Hill Women's golf team won the second of the series of matches between the teams of Watch Hill, Narragansett, and Fisher's Island. The match was played at Point Judith Country club, Narragansett, and the third and last of the series will be played this week at Fisher's Island. The splendid game of Mrs. Louise DeKoven Phelps helped the Watch Hill team greatly in this unusual run of luck.

Mrs. Robert Whiting of Winsted, Conn., was the house guest of Mrs. George Nichols Jr., at Sunnycroft over the week-end.

Narragansett Out in Costume for Charity Ball

NARRAGANSETT, R. I.

Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin left the Dunes club for New York the first part of this week. Mrs. McLaughlin expects to spend about ten days in the city and then will make a visit at the Alexander Woollcott's summer home in Maine before returning to Chicago.

Saturday evening the Dunes club was the scene of the Bal de Boheme, the annual costume charity ball for the benefit of the South County hospital.

The brilliance of the decorations and costumes as well as the social prominence of the people in attendance rivaled the famed Beaux Arts ball in New York.

The ballroom and dining room overlooking the ocean were thrown en suite, and on entering one was immediately transported to a street café in the Latin quarter of Paris. Lucian Easter Smith of New York was in charge of the decorations. Kenneth Murchinson, also of New York, was in charge of the general arrangements. Both these men are on the committee of the Beaux Arts ball.

Lester Lanin's orchestra supplied the music, and the entire orchestra was appropriately costumed as sailors from Madagascar.

Mrs. W. D. Orthwein of St. Louis was host at a dinner at the club for about thirty persons, preceding the ball.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Dunes club will be held this week.

Thursday afternoon a swimming meet between the Watch Hill Girls' club and the girls' swimming team of the Dunes club was held at the pool.

Miss Betty West of St. Louis was also a guest of the club for a short stay this last week.

State Legion Auxiliary Is to Have Parley

Illinois Group to Hold Convention Beginning Tomorrow in Quincy.

By Ruth DeYoung.

MRS. WILLIAM GLENN SUTHERS. [Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

With both the national president and a candidate for the national presidency attending, it looks as if the meetings in the Mississippi river town would hold more than passing interest.

Mrs. Albin Charles Carlson of Willmar, Minn., was elected general head a year ago at the close of her third year as chairman of the organization's national child welfare committee. Since the constitution restricts a presidential term to one year, Illinois has presented Mrs. Melville Mucklestone to succeed Mrs. Carlson. Opposition to Mrs. Mucklestone recently has loomed up in the person of Mrs. Thomas George Gammie of Ponca City, Okla.

Mrs. Suthers Recognized as Authority on Parliamentary Law.

Besides Mrs. Carlson and Mrs. Mucklestone, headliners at the state convention will be Mrs. T. K. Rinaker, retiring president of the Illinois department, and Mrs. William Glenn Suthers, who, it is expected, will be elevated to Mrs. Rinaker's position without opposition. Mrs. Suthers, an authority on parliamentary law, now holds the first vice presidency.

The all inclusive and constructive year's report to be presented at Quincy speaks for Mrs. Rinaker's leadership the last twelve months. Young and attractive like most American Legion auxiliary officers, Mrs. Rinaker is progressive in thought and action. She sees the power and possibility in friendly coöperation among women's groups, regardless of their organization lines. She suggests a central clearing house where their ideas and programs may be pooled at least once a year.

Illinois Auxiliary Stresses National Issues During Year.

The Illinois department has stressed rehabilitation and child welfare, Americanism, and national defense the last year, in line with the program of the national auxiliary. The state report will show that material on immigration, subversive activities, and the R. O. T. C. has been sent out monthly for use in 99 discussion groups.

The state unit has done a good deal in the way of loaning money for needy boys and girls to continue their education, and it has spent $20,528.65 for child welfare in the last twelve months. Officers of the department joined successfully in sponsoring the state bill appropriating $600,000 for library extension. The membership has been increased by 21 organizations, and these are only a few of the state's accomplishments.

R. Pattison Kline Is to Address Opening Session.

Mrs. R. Pattison Kline will address the opening session of the convention at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in Quincy's Orpheum theater. Mrs. Carlson will address the afternoon session. The election will feature Tuesday's program.

Mrs. Mabel Thompson of Quincy is the general chairman of the convention, with Mrs. Ruth L. Brown, also of Quincy, as the official hostess. Headquarters will be in the Quincy hotel.

National League of Women Voters Issues New Pamphlet.

From Washington comes word that the National League of Women Voters has issued a new publication on the judicial system. The pamphlet should carry weight and create considerable interest, with the judicial branch or third house of the government in the limelight.

The publication, written by Julia M. Hicks Carson (Mrs. William J.) of Philadelphia, is a brief summary of the workings of the judicial system and is intended primarily for league members in their study of the court system. The league's long time advocacy of women jurors as a factor in the betterment of legal machinery led to an early interest in court procedure and, more recently, to a determination of special study of the system.

The judicial system summary is published under the Belle Sherwin fund, established in recognition of her years of service to the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Sherwin was president of the national league from 1924 to 1934.

Mrs. John Van Wakeman, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, and her board have been working strenuously this summer on the organization of a junior group. Last week temporary officers were elected and the first meeting scheduled for 7:30 Sept. 13 at the Auditorium hotel. The program will be worked out along the lines of the parent organization.

Miss Helen Barney is the temporary president, with Miss Florence Smith, Miss Betty Grice, and Miss Gertrude Jennings vice presidents. The recording secretary is Miss Madeline Wenger and the corresponding secretary Miss Catherine McCallem. Miss Catherine Merz is the treasurer.

Chicago Society Continues Its Trek to New Hampshire Hills

BRETTON WOODS, N. H.

The White mountain resorts have welcomed this week many important Chicago society people. Many visitors also motor from their summer homes along the New England coast to see the incomparable scenery and sniff the balsam laden air, usually remaining for one or two days. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barbour, who left Chicago the last week by motor, have arrived to spend several weeks at a hotel here. Mrs. Barbour has not been here for the last few years, but was greeted by many old friends, some of whom she sees during the winter in Pasadena, Cal. She and Mr. Barbour were with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ehrmann of Terre Haute, Ind., also of the Pasadena colony, at Saturday evening's dance in the ballroom.

The Misses Eleanor and Mary Dick of Chicago, who are members of the younger set in the Bretton Woods colony, were frequently in the saddle during their stay, riding over the forest trails to Mount Stickney, the base of Mount Washington, the Howland trail to Crawford Notch, and other interesting trails in the vicinity.

Miss Beatrice McManus is a late arrival from Chicago at Crawford Notch.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Chamberlain and Miss Ethel Chamberlain of Chicago are touring the mountains by automobile. They were at a noted Randolph mountain climbing rendezvous this week having luncheon. They then proceeded to Colebrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Mack of Chicago, who are passing the summer at Dixville Notch with their daughter, Mrs. Mark Whitman, gave a luncheon party this week on Sugar Hill in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Keller of East Orange, N. J., whose luncheon guests they recently were at Bretton Woods.

Miss Ruth Winslow Robinson of Chicago visited Colebrook this week on a mountain tour.

Mrs. H. Robert Sweitzer and son Robert Sweitzer of Chicago are guests at Lisbon of Mrs. Hill Griffith, who formerly was Miss Philippson of Chicago. She has long been a member of the White Mountain summer colony.

Miss Bertha Erminger, who has been the guest for some days of schoolmates at their summer home on Asquam lake at Holderness, has now returned to join her mother, Mrs. Howell B. Erminger of Chicago, at Whitefield, where they are spending the season.

Mrs. Thomas F. Vietor of New York and Sugar Hill gave a buffet dinner for fifty guests on Friday evening at Hilltop farm. All the group later attended the subscription supper-dance, the first of two, held at Mrs. John H. Winterbotham's playhouse on her Franconia estate. The affair was given for the benefit of the Littleton hospital. Mrs. Winterbotham was at Peckett's Hayloft theater Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole to attend the Barnstormers' performance there of "Kind Lady."

Prof. and Mrs. William S. Gray and party of Chicago will arrive on Aug. 31 at Crawford Notch for a sojourn of some weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Wood are among Chicago arrivals there this week.

Arriving today at Peckett's on Sugar Hill to occupy one of their cottages are Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDougal of Chicago, who for some years past have been annual visitors there.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Harn of Chicago, who are on Sugar Hill, drove to Crawford Notch one day this week for luncheon.

Society Plans Horse Shows for Early Fall

Equestrian Events Will Keep Calendar Brilliant After Labor Day.

By Judith Cass.

AFTER Labor day has been properly celebrated with house parties at all of the fashionable resorts, society's attention will turn to events of an equestrian nature. The Dunham Woods Riding club in Wayne is planning its horse show for Sept. 8 and the following week-end, Sept. 13 and 14, the Fort Sheridan horse show will draw a large and enthusiastic attendance. In addition to these shows, the various hunt clubs near Chicago will be resuming their activities.

Joy Morton is chairman of the Dunham Woods show, which will be the fourth annual one in that community, and like the others it will benefit the Wayne fire department, which is maintained privately. Assisting Mr. Morton will be Raymond O. Mitchell, John L. Dole, Perry Dryden, Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., Charles R. Lindsay III., and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson Jr., the former Marianne Stevenson. Jesse Burt is secretary of the show.

Children Will Criticize Parents' Riding.

The family class which was such a popular event last year will be continued in the coming show. A seat and hands class for adults in which children will criticize their parents' performance has been added to the schedule, and another new event will be a class for jumpers open only to members of the Wayne hunt.

As usual, the show will start at 9 o'clock in the morning and continue through 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon with an hour out for luncheon, which will be served at the club. Probably there will be a dance the preceding evening at the club, and certainly several of the exhibitors will be spending the week-end there.

Two Debutante Parties Scheduled for Thursday.

Two of the earliest debutante parties of the season will be given this week, one on Thursday at which Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Fleming will entertain for Miss Dorelle Moulton, daughter of the William E. Moultons, and one on Saturday which Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith will give on board their yacht, the Kenkora II., for four Winnetka buds. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will entertain at dinner and dancing at the Onwentsia club Thursday night for Miss Moulton, whose parents are giving a tea-dance for her on Sept. 6 at the Skokie Country club.

The four young women for whom the Smiths will entertain Saturday afternoon at a tea-dance are the Misses Frances Price, Evelyn Shuman, Katherine Bulger, and Rosemary Kemper, who are daughters, respectively, of the Edwin S. Prices, the John R. Shumans, the Thomas S. Bulgers, and the James S. Kempers.

Two weddings of interest will take place this week, both of them on the north shore. On Wednesday afternoon Miss Patricia Calkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Calkins, will become the bride of J. Fred Schoellkopf IV., in her parents' home in Hubbard Woods, and on Friday evening in Christ church, Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Edmonds' daughter, Betty, will become Mrs. William A. Frazer Jr.

Calkins-Schoellkopf Nuptials to Be Quiet.

The Calkins-Schoellkopf nuptials will be quiet, with just relatives at the 4 o'clock ceremony, which will be read by the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church. A few intimate friends will come later to wish the bride and bridegroom happiness. Patrick Harold Hoggson will serve his brother-in-law as best man. The bride will have no attendants. Following a European honeymoon Mr. Schoellkopf and his bride will make their home in Buffalo where his family resides.

Dr. Gerhard will officiate also at the Edmonds-Frazer wedding which will be solemnized at 8:30 o'clock. A reception will follow at the Indian Hill club and Mr. Frazer, who is a son of Mrs. William A. Frazer of Omaha, and his bride will live in Riverside.

WEDDINGS

Every wedding and engagement published in The Tribune must bear the signature of a member of the family and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. Announcements must reach the society editor on Tuesday noon of the week preceding publication.

Durer Prints on Display at Art Institute

Their Austere Magnificence Delights; Seymour Etchings Shown.

By Eleanor Jewett.

ONE of the attractions arranged by the Art institute for the summer weeks is already only a delightful memory. The exhibition of lithographs and prints by contemporary Mexican artists has recently closed. A collection of prints by the German master, Albrecht Dürer, is replacing it. These austere but magnificent Dürer prints are hung in gallery 12. Gallery 18 has also been newly arranged and a group of etchings by Sir Francis Seymour Haden is installed.

The print galleries are retaining a number of popular little exhibits. For instance, one may still enjoy the Gurley collection of original drawings, an unusually fascinating series. The prints by the old masters, the Rembrandt etchings, the Albert H. Wolf collection of prints, the Italian Tarocchi cards, and the effective lithographs by Toulouse-Lautrec are magnets, drawing us to one of the coolest parts of the museum.

Milles' "Fountain of the Tritons" Is Refreshing.

If you are really looking for a cool spot, however, go deeper into the Art institute. Walk through Gunsaulus hall with its intriguing array of china and glass and decorative hangings, its bits of this and that in porcelain and Dresden ware, go slowly so as to miss nothing of its thousand and one delights, and at the far end go down a few steps and find yourself in front of Carl Milles' "Fountain of the Tritons." The same Swedish sculptor, it will be remembered, designed the Diana fountain in the Diana Court building, farther north on Michigan avenue.

The "Fountain of the Tritons" is a refreshing sight, a bit heavy in the modeling perhaps, and the figures are surely more than a little coarse, but there is a robust vigor about them that is striking, and the streams of water which shoot through the sea shells or dolphins in their hands are amazingly welcome.

Period Rooms Worth a Trip to Basement.

Beyond the fountain and in the cool part of the museum, one that urges itself upon you as being below street level and therefore necessarily remote from the hot winds that sweep the less fortunate heights, you will find the period rooms. These are purely delightful. There is a Dutch room and there is an early American room, either of which is ample repayment for the exertion you have gone to to discover them. But more follow. There are two Georgian rooms, the Jacobean room, the French Lacker room, the Portuguese room, and the Gothic room. There is material here for a morning of leisure.

Neighboring these are all the galleries of the decorative arts, the Renaissance rooms, the Swedish rooms, and the Oriental galleries. When you pass through these last be sure to take the time to go slowly through the gallery devoted to Persian art. It is a fascinating hall.

In the east wing galleries of the Art institute the summer shows proper are on view to Oct. 13. A reader of this column writes in admiration of the sculpture of Peterpaul Ott: "While his work is not radical, it is modern. There is nothing ????? (handwriting hard to read—might be "dead or dry about it"—yes, probably is); instead there is a violence that I noticed many people stopped to admire and comment about. Why do you miss these better things?"

Ott's Sculpture Strong but Earthbound.

That last is a hard question to answer. One might flippantly turn the tables: "But are these the better things?" However, a serious consideration of the comment brings the statement that Ott's sculpture is not as new to us as it might be and already it has been discussed at sufficient length in these columns for the pieces which are in the summer show to warant merely the mention of their presence and the assurance that they are rather strong, which they are. Peterpaul Ott won the Chicago artists' exhibit first prize this spring with his large portrait head of a Chicago journalist.

The head was a good likeness, but the feeling ran high that it was an affectation to have made it so large. Mr. Ott's study of the dancer, Kreutzberg, has been extremely popular. It has a suggestion of frozen yet mobile rhythm that is disconcertingly effective. One remembers a study of hands that was hauntingly intimate, but one also associates with Peterpaul Ott the vague impression that some time, somewhere, one marked him down as an artist more interested in the real than the spiritual, in the commonplace than in the imaginative. He has facility and vigor, but does he not ride Pegasus on a curb and with wings close bound?

Black and Whites Are William Schwartz's Forte.

Another correspondent recently notified us that William Schwartz was a far more remarkable painter than we had any conception of. Mr. Schwartz is enjoying a one man show of paintings at the Art institute this summer and he also has an interesting composition in the Findley Chicago artists' exhibit. The opinion is merely a personal reaction, but we have always thought Mr. Schwartz's black and white work stronger than his paintings. He has done some magnificent lithographs and drawings.

His paintings (purely personal reaction again) seem to be theatrical, with a leaning toward melodrama and thunder in the wings. He paints for pattern rather than for meaning. His color is often beautiful, but too often is the sense of his composition morbid with the posed morbidity that leads some precious souls to keep rotting apples in their room. Who was the great originator of that? Oscar Wilde? Or was it Poe?

THE SIMPLE LIFE OF MEXICO

Polo Mallet Directs Social Whirl in East

King of Sports Fills Twenty-four Hours of Every Day on Long Island.

By Nancy Randolph.

The polo mallet is the magic wand directing all activities on the fashionable north shore

NEW YORK these days. Long Island society at the moment is divided into the polo players, their relatives, and their friends—and twenty-four hours out of the twenty-four are consecrated to the king of sports. A jaunt out to any of the practice fields in and around Westbury would reveal some of our most genteel millionaires in an atmosphere of anything but gentility.

The lads are in serious training for the national open championship which gets under way Sept. 7, and believe you me, when our boys practice they don't fool. The matter of a cracked skull or a broken collar bone, even in fun, is a mere detail to these reckless riding, hard hitting millionaire mallet swingers.

No less than six American teams will compete for the coveted open cup. Winston Guest will line up his defending Templeton champions precisely as they were last year when they walked off with the national trophy. Cousin Mike Phipps will be No. 1; Winnie himself, No. 2; Stew Iglehart, No. 3, and Brother Ray Guest, back.

Newport still manages to dash off small dinner parties of from fifty to 150 nightly. Champagne salesmen are waxing fat in society's most exclusive spa.

And yet every one complains bitterly that it's the dullest season in years, that it is to yawn, and that the tennis festivities just past were not so hot.

Apparently the trouble is too many persons are conspicuous by their absence. Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Livingston Mills have sold the Victorian mansion he inherited from his mother, the socially formidable "Tennie" Mills.

Newport no longer figures in the summer plans of the Astors, who've leased their home and avoided the resort for three seasons.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney hasn't occupied her old white frame house in years. And her sister, Countess Laszlo-Szechenyi, remains abroad because she can't afford to open up that mammoth mansion, The Breakers, which she inherited from her mother, the late dowager, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Maybe they're prejudiced, but Jack and Ellen Tuck French Astor, while admitting there are other nice babies in the world, are certain their William is "tops." They talk and act exactly like all normal young parents to whom the first born is nothing short of a miracle.

Jack—along with the whole household at Chetwode—is most solicitous of young Tucky, who still looks pale and fragile.

Not until Mrs. Astor is fully recovered will the christening of the Blessed Event take place. The tentative date is now set at Oct. 1 and the place either at Chetwode or the Astor marble palace on 5th avenue.

The folk below stairs are planning still another gay equivalent to the annual Butlers' ball. It's to be known as the Annual Estate Stafs and Tradesmen's ball.

The affair will take place at the Garden city hotel on Sept. 28, just before the butlers, housekeepers et al., are called upon to close the summer estates and get ready to return to Park avenue.

Such elegantes as Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. George Whitney, wife of the Morgan partner, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Fulton Cutting, Mrs. 'Brose Clark, Mrs. William C. Langley, Mrs Guy Fairfax Cary, Mrs. William C. Potter, and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps have gladly consented to be patronesses.

The proceeds will be divided between Protestant and Catholic charities through the Masonic order and the Knights of Columbus.

Face-Up Clock at This Airport Times Planes

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—(AP)—So that airmen may know what time it is merely by looking overboard, the biggest clock in the southern hemisphere is being installed at the Rand airport here, its face toward the sky. The dial is 30 feet in diameter and four inches thick. The works are in a subterranean chamber. The hands will be illuminated at night.

● Cardiff, city of Wales of the Severn estuary. . . . Busy with iron and shipping. . . . Glamorous with ancient history. . . . High street, with much to sell, but bounded by the high wall and gate tower dating from Norman times. . . . In the castle Robert of Normandy was once imprioned. . . . Now the residence of the Marquis of Bute. . . . Here is the National museum of Wales with many a memorial of the days when Cardiff was a walled city of five gates. . . . Many excursions possible from the city. . . . To Llandaff, a cathedral town of old world dignity. . . . Successor to a church founded in the sixth century. . . . ● Ayer, town of the "Twa Brigs," Tam o'Shanter, and the bonnie banks of Doon. . . . Surrounded by the farms tilled by Burns. . . . Inhabited by the "honest men and bonnie lassies" sung by Burns. . . . The wayside cottage outside the town which a Scotch baby made an international shrine on Jan. 25, 1759. . . . Banks of the Doon now ornamented, tea garden refreshments in their bowers. . . . Better a glass of ale at the old Tam o'Shanter inn on High street. . . . The fame of Burns repaired the Auld Brig in 1910. . . . Gone are nearly all the quaint and narrow streets of the poet's day. . . . There have come since the steepled town hall, the tramway line to his But and Ben cottage. . . . Enough is left for Auld Lang Syne.

Traveler Sees Great Chinese Plain from Air

By Mason Warner.

SHANGHAI, China.—Aviation should prosper in China. It is ideal flying country in the northern and central parts— a great level plain, with only a few hills, and those unimportant. I flew from Peiping to Shanghai.

The plane was scheduled to leave Peiping at 6:30 a. m. and arrive in Shanghai at 3:30 p. m., thus traveling in nine hours an approximate distance [by rail] of more than 1,000 miles, including stops at Tientsin, Tsingtao, and Haichow.

I was awakened from sound slumber at 4:30 on the morning of departure. Bathed, shaved, dressed, packed. At 5:30 the auto from the airport arrived. Driven to legation quarters, where we picked up the wife of a United States government official, who proved to be the only other passenger. She had never flown before, was a little timid, and listened with misgivings to my assurance that she would enjoy the experience, saying she doubted it, as she was subject to seasickness. We drove to the airport through mud so deep we arrived fifteen minutes late; so did not take off until 6:45.

"They Are All Like That."

Tientsin, the first stop, is eighty miles from Peiping. The woman enjoyed the flight, but was startled when the plane circled for the landing. "What are we coming down for?" she asked. I shouted: "Tientsin—first stop." She looked at her wristwatch, and shook her head violently for "No," indicating "Impossible!" When we landed she said: "I'm a changed woman—so far as railroad travel in China is concerned. Why, it takes three and a half hours on the fastest express to go from Peiping to Tientsin, and here we are in forty-five minutes. I just don't believe it yet."

She was going to Tsingtao, about 400 miles. She slept the last half of the trip. Bidding me good-by, she said: "I've lived in Peiping ten years and always have taken the train before, but never again! Twenty-four hours of heat and dust compared with four hours of cool comfort."

When I told Norman David, the pilot, what she said, he observed: "They are all like that after their first trip. The trouble is they won't take the first trip, and we are flying half loads as a result."

David, like most other first pilots on Chinese air lines, is a former United States army flyer and saw service in the great war. Don Wang, his Chinese co-pilot, learned to fly at an airport near Chicago.

Meeting the River of Sorrow.

When we were up half an hour from Tientsin David passed a radiogram to me reading: "Please investigate on way back possibility of landing at Yang Kio Kow." Across the bottom he had written: "May make a landing or two not on schedule—don't be alarmed."

We circled Yang Kio Kow at low altitude two or three times, but did not land. The entire population of the town, four or five hundred, came out and watched the plane. The village was a salt making town on the ocean beach and presented a peculiar appearance from the air. There were many circles and squares, with mud walls three to five feet high. The circles appeared to be deep wells filled with water. The squares contained gleaming white piles of salt.

Conversation in the plane was difficult because of the noise of the motors, but both David and Wang did everything possible to keep their passengers comfortable and interested. David pointed out one of the old beds of the Hwang-ho, "the river of sorrow," or the Yellow river, which has changed its course many times in the recorded history of China. At one time it entered the Yellow sea 400 miles north of its present mouth. In 1877, when floods broke the river banks and a vast area was inundated, it is estimated that a million people lost their lives. As late as 1898, in another rampage in its present course, 1,500 villages were destroyed and thousands of lives lost.

Man-Pulled Boats Dot the Scenery.

The plane delivered about 12 ounces of mail and took on half a pound at Haichow, one of the three stops. It is a walled town in a region infested with bandits. Soldiers were on guard at the airport, and three fortresses were visible in the surrounding highlands.

From an airplane one can appreciate the ramifications of the great system of canals and natural streams that spreads its network throughout north and central China. Viewed from a moderate height, it seems that the country has little need for railroads. Flying high, one cannot see the details of the trafic, but many man-pulled boats dot the scene as far as vision reaches. The canals are in straight lines and the small creeks and rivers twist and turn in every direction, so that it seems as if every farm in the vast country had water transportation conveniently near.

From the air you get a true conception of the density of population in China. One can count a hundred villages in plain sight from an altitude of 1,500 to 2,000 feet.

Hospital Spreads Modern Methods.

We arrived at Shanghai forty-five minutes late on account of our late start and because we made an eighty-mile detour around a fog over Tientsin.

I had a letter of introduction to Miss Glyde Leach, formerly of Chicago, who for four years has been chief nurse of the surgical operating rooms of the Peiping Union Medical college, known also as the Rockefeller hospital. It was founded and endowed with many millions of dollars by the Rockefeller Foundation through the China Medical board.

The architecture of the fine, large buildings established a precedent and set an example in China by utilizing the characteristic Chinese features of roofs and general outline in combination with the practical advantages afforded by the construction of modern, multi-storied, western buildings. The interior of the rooms and the equipment are the same as in New York or Chicago institutions of similar character and high standing.

A Small Imitation of a Dragon.

I was having tea with Miss Leach on the veranda of her home in the North compound when she suddenly pointed to the bottom roll of a matting that rested on the porch rail and said: "See him. Look—there."

Looking, I saw what appeared at first glance to be a chameleon or a lizard about four inches long. "Isn't he nice? That's a little house dragon. He catches flies and mosquitoes. There's another one around, some place. He is bigger than this one. Look, isn't this a nice little fellow?" I looked again, but the little dragon disclosed no characteristics that appealed to me. Indeed, he was fierce looking in a small way. Enlarged a hundred times, he would have been a good model for a Chinese artist working out a dragon motif—which most Chinese artists do.

In response to my questions Miss Leach said: "Yes, I like China. Why not? Nowhere else in the world will I find opportunity for such interesting work in my profession. You ask if you think we are making any real progress over here. I do not know. Nobody knows. I hope we are. I know China is an immovable mass—inscrutable, unchanging, changeless. Maybe that is why we like it. It is so mysterious, so impossible, really to know the Chinese people.

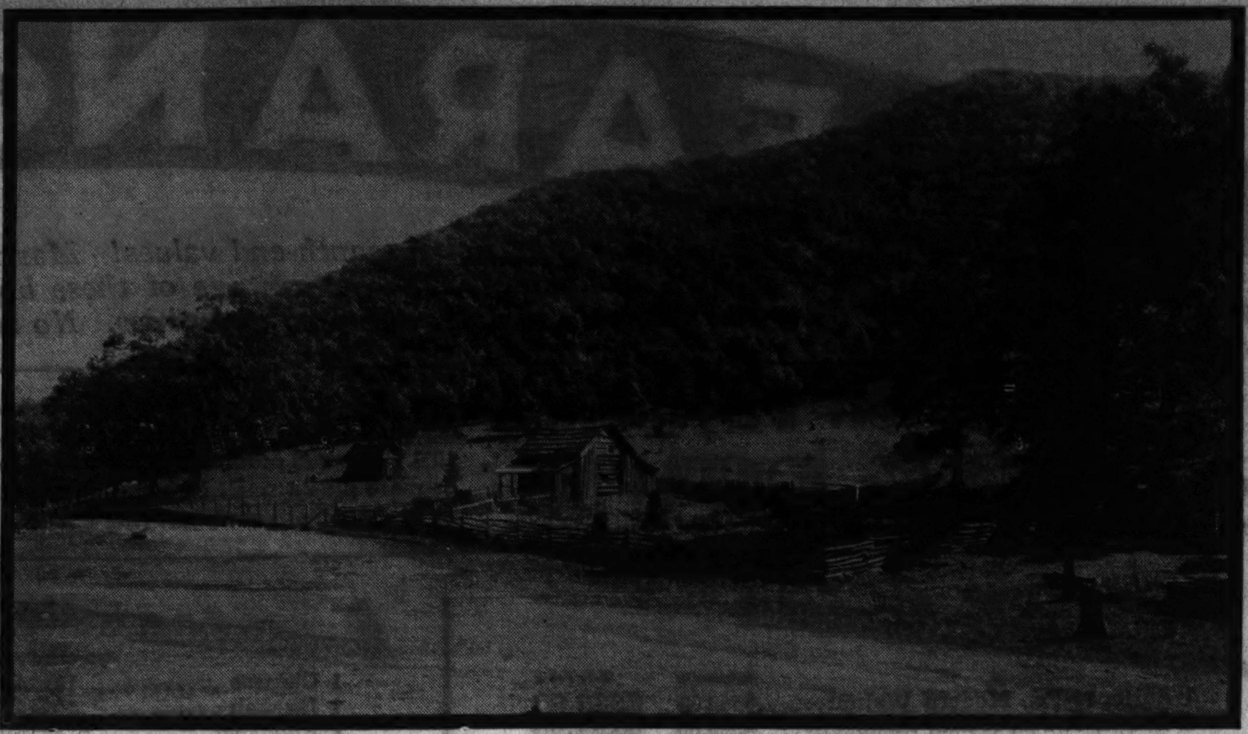
Beautiful, Mysterious, —and Dusty.

"We are teaching Chinese doctors and nurses. They do good work among their people. But they are so few, so very few, and there are so many Chinese, so many good Chinese. Think of the millions of people here—how they live, their poverty, their superstition. Yet they will not change. Perhaps—." She paused, and then resumed:

"Sometimes I stand on the Tartar wall on a moonlight night. I look over the city and see the temple roofs with their lustrous green tiles, then I turn to the palace and temple roofs of gleaming yellow in the Forbidden City, that silent and beautiful area, uninhabited now, deserted, lonesome.

"I look out over the sandy plains and imagine I can see the charging hordes of Tartars galloping toward these walls—bowmen and spearsmen, swordsmen and stone throwers—the air filled with flying arrows. These walls and temple roofs preserve memories of the past.

"The future of Peiping? I don't know. But Peiping will survive. They have moved the capital to Nanking and all the government officials are there now. There is no demand for Chinese rugs, compared to what there was. There is little work for the natives, but they are master craftsmen in jade and make beautiful things in ivory and bronze and porcelain. Peiping was here thousands of years ago. I believe it will be here thousands of years hence—as beautiful, as mysterious, as alluring, and I fear as dusty as it is today."



ON THE BORDER BETWEEN A PARK AND A RESERVATION

Soco gap, where the Cherokee Indian reservation and the Great Smoky Mountains National park join. Here the $20,000,000 proposed federal scenic parkway connecting the Shenandoah and the Smoky Mountains parks will reach its climax. A fine highway now leads to the spot from Asheville, N. C.

San Francisco to Celebrate Birth of Its Commerce

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—San Francisco this fall will celebrate a century of commerce. It will commemorate the fact that a hundred years ago Jacob Leese and Capt. Richardson built the first wooden houses in what is now the business district. The dates are Oct. 14 to 19.

The celebration will center on San Francisco's progress in the period from 1835 to 1869. Efforts will be made to reproduce around Portsmouth plaza, the cradle of the city's commerce, replicas of early day scenes. Such landmarks as the Jenny Lind theater, the Hotel Niantic, the hall of justice, Maguire's opera house, and the clipper Flying Cloud will be brought back to life. There will be impersonations of such characters as Gen. John C. Fremont, Thomas Larkin, Gen. Phil Kearny, Emperor Norton, William T. Coleman, Samuel Brannan, and Lola Montez.

A pageant featuring these scenes and characters will culminate in a ball at the Civic auditorium. The committee in charge is headed by Lewis F. Byington and Fred Dohrmann Jr.

Third Bus Line Joins Terminal

THE Burlington Transportation company last week joined the Safe Way lines and the Santa Fe Trail system in the operation of the Chicago bus center at 35 West Van Buren street. As a result more than 100 departures are now being made daily from that terminal. The Burlington runs between Chicago and Davenport, Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, and the Pacific coast. Safe Way connects this city with Toledo, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and New York. The Santa Fe operates to the Pacific coast by way of Kansas City, Wichita, Denver and Albuquerque.

Asheville Has Best Season in Five Years

ASHEVILLE, N. C. — Asheville this summer has enjoyed a tourist season considerably above the records of the last four years. August is the top of the season, but many vacationists extend their stay well into September. The regularly scheduled programs of entertainment have been carried out with increased attendance, and the golf courses have been thronged.

This highland region has had no epidemics of any kind. Both state and county official reports show the health average exceptionally good. Night temperatures all summer have ranged regularly from 55 to 60 degrees. There has been a total absence of mosquitoes.

The Great Smoky Mountains National park is continuing its attraction for visitors from all sections of the country. Entrance to the park is a little more than an hour's easy driving from Asheville, on paved highways and through one of the most scenic sections in "the land of the sky." Starting at Asheville, with an elevation ranging from 2,200 feet to 3,000 feet, the motorist ascends gradually until in the heart of the park the elevation is a few feet under one mile above sea level.

Polish Motorship to Leave for U. S. in Mid-September

THE new motorship Pulsudski, first Polish trans-Atlantic liner to be built since Poland regained its independence, will leave on its maiden voyage from Gdynia Sept. 15, arriving in New York Sept. 24. This was announced by the Gdynia America line following completion of successful trial runs at Cherso, on the Dalmation coast.

Out of Trieste, where the liner was built at the Monfalcone shipyards on an international barter basis, the first trials were held at a speed of 18 and 19 knots. The following day the Pilsudski ran for nine hours, fully loaded, at a speed of 20 knots. Cables received from Trieste by the Chicago office of the line report perfect precision and smoothness of sailing for all the trials.

The Pilsudski is 514 feet long and 72 feet wide and has a replacement of 16,000 tons and a capacity of 800 passengers.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

DOTTING the plains for miles around the gates of Babylon are huge stone lions bearing the ancient, but still timely, inscription: "Every one that goeth by Babylon shall be astonished." It would appear that a great many travelers to the Mediterranean are going to be astonished this fall and winter. Under an arrangement completed this month, important scenes of the Old Testament have been opened up for the first time. Through a combination of rail and motor excursions a new tourist country has been made easily accessible from Palestine.

The tour through the cradle of biblical history may now be made from either Beirut or Damascus. The Iraq railway and its overland route extension offer the visitor to the near east an attractive side trip to the lands of the ancients.

● Modern equipment takes the pilgrim through not only the scenes of the flood and the supposed site of the Garden of Eden, but Babylon and the holy cities of Kish and Ur of the Chaldees, the birthplace of Abraham. Evidences of the mighty expeditions against the kingdom of Israel are to be seen at Asshur, one time seat of Assyrian genius. Nearby is Nineveh, which the Medes razed in 626 B. C., thereby blotting out the great military power of the east.

Asshur stands on a spur of the Jabal Damrin, overlooking a vast depression through which runs the Tigris. Thousands of years ago a dam across the valley converted it into an inland sea on which ships could sail to the stone quays of the city. The quays are visible today and may be recognized from the Old Testament descriptions.

● Babylon, once the glory of kingdoms, bears witness of the vanished magnificence of the gilded age. Not far from it is Berlin, where a newly finished museum contains the most valuable objects taken from the Garden of Eden, together with the cuneiform inscriptions accredited to Daniel when he ruled over the whole province of Babylon. Then there is the community of Nebuchadnezzar, with its associations with Cyrus the Persian, and with the Jews of the Captivity who "sat and wept" by its irrigation streams. The streams are still in use, and serving the same purpose they did before the birth of Christianity.

Tourists surprised by their first sight of the vaulted bazars of Bagdad will find counterparts at Basra, a suburb of Ashar. In the days of prosperity Basra rivaled its bigger sister in splendor. Today its chief claim to fame lies in its having been the port from which Sinbad the Sailor set sail on the voyages recorded in the Arabian Nights.

● The former Persia, now known as Iran, is an exotic country three times the size of France. Its past is a story of lavishness and savage cruelty. Under the new system of rail and motor bus roads its future promises to be a story of renewed wealth, without the cruelty. The wealth will come from the tourists. The cruel punishment of travel disappeared when the sleeping car replaced the caravan.

Raise Height of Buildings.

LONDON.—(AP)—The London county council has raised the height to which buildings may rise in this metropolis from the old limit of 100 feet to 150 feet, which probably frequently will scrape the lower strata of the city's foggy sky.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Instead of a "Dear Julia" letter this week, we are printing some communications from readers.

H. P. JUNKINS, Aurora, Ill., sends us some excerpts from a "Scriptural Album with Floral Illustrations" given by his grandfather, Frank Harrington, a theatrical man, to the young woman who later became his wife. Friends who inscribed their names in this album took a gloomy view of life, warning "Sarah," its owner, of false friends and of dark clouds of woe which would darken her pathway, as time went on, and pointing her to heaven as the only place where true joy might be found. We print one of these verses, with spelling unaltered. This is dated Boston, 1847.

With siren smile, but heart of ice,
Thy souless friends will court thy smile,
Nought less than truth will then suffice
To keep thin heart from tasting guile.
But mayest thou all sorrow shun
And live in spotless purity,
Light now thy spere with Virtue's sun,
And live as for futurity.

Albertine Schuttler, Wauwatosa, Wis., sends the words of a song called "Only a Wreath of Oaken Leaves," written and composed by Bobby Newcomb in 1885, and dedicated "To Little Nellie Grant." Its background is an incident reported in a New York paper of July 30, 1885. This incident is stated thus: "Gen. Grant's little grandchild made a wreath of oak leaves and placed it on the dead general's coffin. They soon decayed and her tears fell fast at the idea of the wreath being removed. The embalmer, in sympathy with the child, chemically prepared the leaves and proved that science defied decay. The wreath was the simple and only decoration on the hero's casket."

Only a wreath of oaken leaves
By tiny childish hands were laid,
A cherub's tribute to the dead,
A Hero who life's debt had paid.
Alas! The oak leaves soon decayed
And childish tears began to flow.
She sobbed "'Twas all I had to give
And grandpa knew I loved him so."

A cheery voice fell on her ear
And checked the tears that fell as dew,
She smiled like sunshine through the rain,
For "I will make the oak leaves new,"
Thus spoke a noble generous man.
The childish heart was robbed of grief,
He kept his promise and next day
On the Hero dead they laid the wreath.

We find it easier to forgive the rhyming of "wreath" with "grief" than the transformation of "oak leaves" into "oaken leaves." But then, it all happened a long time ago.

Josephine Patterson Phillips, Geneva, Ill., sends a story of Gen. Grant, told by her sister, Grace Patterson Ewen. The sisters were daughters of the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Patterson, for thirty-five years pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Chicago.

"One evening during my early childhood in Chicago we were watching the older members of our family dressing to go to a reception in honor of Gen. Grant at the home of our neighbor, Gov. Bross. Suddenly my younger sister was seized with a longing to join the party. When told that she was too young, she sobbingly said: 'I've never seen Washington and I've never seen Lincoln and I think I might see Gen. Grant!'

"Later in the evening one of my sisters repeated this to Gen. Grant, whereupon he smiled delightedly and said: 'You tell that little sister that if she will be out in front of your house at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning I will ride by and let her look at me.'

OLD CHICAGO HEARTHSTONES.

No. 4: 945 N. Dearborn Street.

The comfortable, old fashioned house occupied by Judge and Mrs. George A. Carpenter was the home of Mrs. Carpenter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph N. Isham. Five generations have entered its hospitable doorway, for Mr. and Mrs. George W. Snow, Mrs. Isham's parents, lived with them, we believe, for a time, in their later years. George W. Snow, grandfather of Mrs. George A. Carpenter, came to Chicago in 1832, before the city was even a village. This house is one of the few in Chicago to have been occupied continuously by descendants of the original owners.

[Has any old house in Chicago intrigued your imagination? If you will ask us, we shall try to find out its history. If you know the story of any important old house, send it to us. For any such story printed, we shall be glad to send an autographed copy of "Dear Julia."

DODGE WINS IN 80,000 MILE TEST AS EASIEST DRIVING AND RIDING CAR!

Also Leads All Cars Tested In Gasoline and Oil Economy

... Reports Andrew H. Ryan, M. D., Noted Authority in Fatigue Research

THE scientific tests, just completed by Dr. Ryan, noted authority in fatigue research, throw the spotlight on an entirely new factor in motoring—the tremendous importance of a restful ride to the driver of an automobile. These tests proved conclusively that a more restful car actually keeps our minds more alert, helps us to avoid accidents, and helps to maintain the efficiency which is so important in our daily work.

Great athletes have long known the value of rest. They know rest produces greater efficiency and steadier nerves to win important contests. The same is true with all of us. Rest is a big factor in our daily lives—particularly when we are behind the wheel of a motor car.

Dr. Ryan's tests showed that, of the five competitive makes of cars tested, one was far more restful than the others—that it produced from 41 per cent to 69 per cent less evidence of "auto fatigue" than the other four. This car was the Dodge!

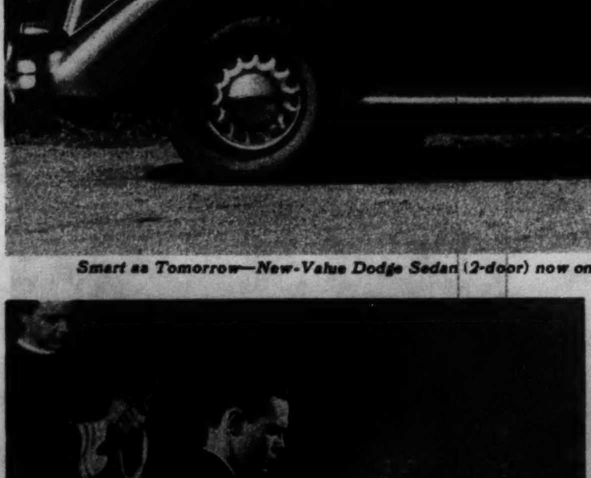
And here are some reasons why Dodge won! Dodge has the famous "Airglide Ride" . . . patented Floating Power engine mountings . . . quick, sure genuine hydraulic brakes . . . the Dodge safety all-steel body . . . finger-tip steering and shifting—all these combine to give this restfulness in the Dodge ride which Dr. Ryan's tests prove.

Dr. Ryan also kept a record of gas and oil consumption under varying driving conditions. Again Dodge won—proving itself the most economical of the five cars tested! This performance checks with the reports of Dodge owners everywhere who say Dodge gives them from 18 to 24 miles per gallon and saves up to 20% on oil.

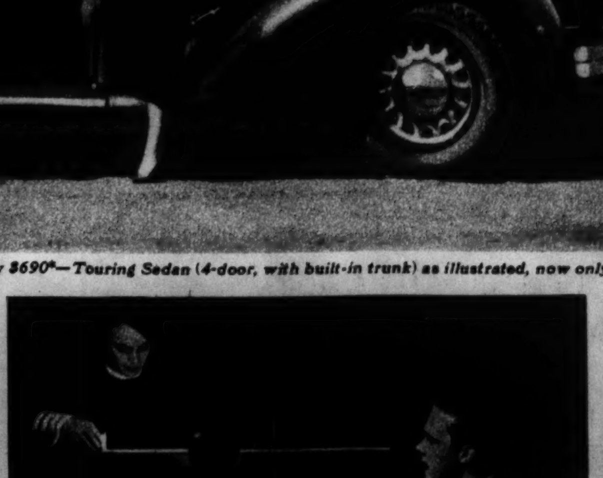
Drive a Dodge today. Prove to yourself that Dodge is easier riding, easier to drive. Take the free economy test. See for yourself how Dodge can save you money!

DODGE DIVISION—CHRYSLER MOTORS

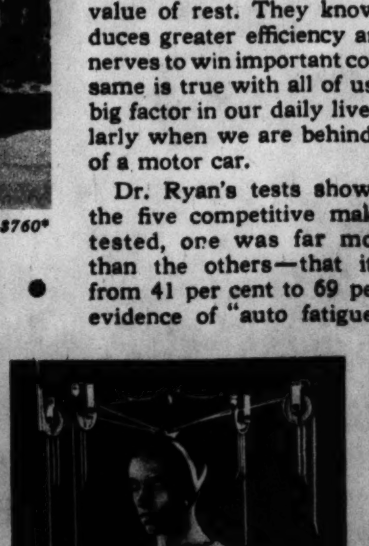
DR. ANDREW H. RYAN, noted authority in the field of physiological and psychological research, has just completed a series of exhaustive tests on "auto fatigue," covering more than 80,000 miles of driving. The purpose of these tests was to determine the relation of "auto fatigue" to safety, comfort and efficiency of drivers of five competitive makes of cars. Dodge was the winner—producing from 41% to 69% less evidence of "auto fatigue" than the four other cars!



HAND-EYE COORDINATION—this test measures the driver's ability to coordinate muscular movements with eye impressions, an important measure used in the study of "auto fatigue." Dr. Ryan's drivers showed better coordination after driving the Dodge than after driving the other makes tested.



VISUAL ACUITY TEST—another one of the scientific tests to measure "auto fatigue"—records reduction in eye efficiency that results from driving strain. This test also supports the conclusions reached that drivers were less fatigued after driving Dodge than after driving the competitive cars tested.



POSTURAL STEADINESS TEST (left), used by Dr. Ryan, measures "auto fatigue" by the amount of body sway before and after driving. Drivers were found to sway less after driving the Dodge all day than after driving the other cars tested.

DARE-DEVIL DRIVER TESTS Dodge all-steel body (right). Strapped to the seat, W. E. Blandenburg, Los Angeles, plunges a speeding Dodge over this embankment. Over and over it goes . . . twisting . . . crashing . . . lands right-side up! Blandenburg hops out without a scratch and then drives the Dodge off under its own power! Never before has there been such a demonstration of Dodge safety and sturdiness!

Read why Super Suds—and no other soap—could keep Mrs. Offutt's hands lovely through four years of washing dishes.

WHY let dishwashing ruin your hands? It's so easy to keep them always smooth and lovely! Just use Super Suds . . . the remarkably different soap that Mrs. Offutt and millions of other women have used for 4 or more years!

For Super Suds is a new form of soap—created specially for dishwashing! Made in tiny hollow beads, it dissolves instantly, completely! Unlike the average, slow-dissolving soap, it leaves no undissolved particles . . . no impurities that irritate tender skin and give hands that red, ugly, "dishwashing" look.

And because Super Suds dissolves so quickly, so completely, it makes dishwashing far quicker and easier. It leaves no gummy, undissolved particles to smear or mar your dishes or glasses. Just a quick rinse and they come sparkling clean in a jiffy!

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers Demonstrate "The Piccolino"

1. THE BEGINNING of "The Piccolino," as Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers dance it in "Top Hat." On the vamp of the music the partners do individual turns to the right, swinging into ballroom position. They are shown in the turn.

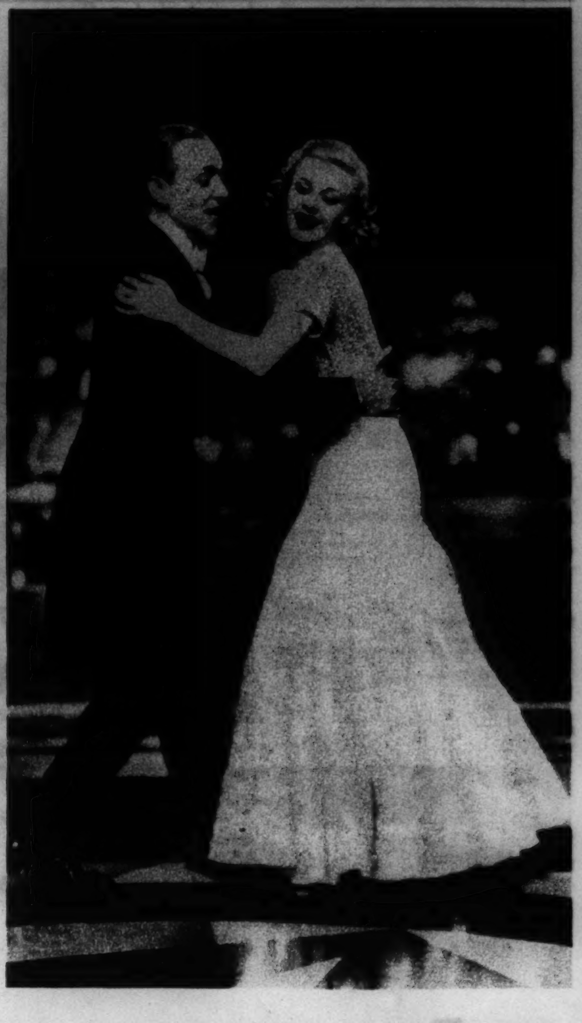
3. THE DIP KICK—The partners separate to a vamp in the music, step with the left foot, dip and lightly kick the floor behind them with the right foot. Step with right, dip and kick floor with left. Repeat entire routine twice, step back to ballroom position.



4. THE PICCOLINO BOX—Repeat the Piccolino step, as described in Pose No. 2, four times; but in this instance execute a complete box.

5. THE PICCOLINO WHIRL—Repeat the step and dip kick combination (Poses No. 2 and No. 3) twice. The girl then stands still while the man takes three steps around her, starting with his right foot. Man then stands still while girl steps around him.

6. THE WHIRL CONTINUED—Repeat the whirl three times, man and girl alternating. On the man's last turn they take ballroom position, then make a turn together.

9. THE SPIN CONTINUED—It stops to a pause, the position of which is shown in Pose No. 10.

10. THE FINALE—The pause at the end of the Piccolino spin. The partners face each other for one count.

11. THE FINALE CONTINUED—Partners do the Piccolino step and finish with the whirl, in which they step around each other alternately and then do the turn together. (Poses No. 2, No. 5, and No. 6.)

12. CLOSING—The dance ending with the final turn position.
